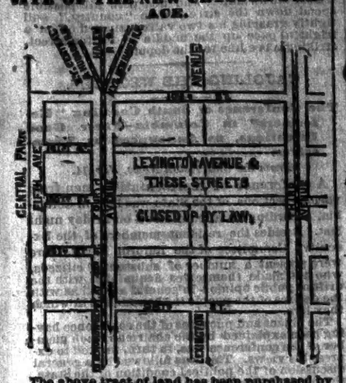
The New-York Times.

VOL. XX.....NO. 5983. NEW-YORK, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1870. PRICE FOUR CENTS.

SITE OF THE NEW CRYSTAL PALACE.



The above tract of land has been purchased by "The Industrial Exhibition Company," for the purpose of erecting thereon a Palace of Industry for all nations.

Said tract extends from 46th to 103d-st., and from the 3d. to the 4th-av., forming an area of 22½ acres, uncut by any streets.

One of the most creditable acts passed by the last Legislature of the State of New-York was the act incorporating the Industrial Exhibition Company of New-York.

Section four of its Charter explains the objects of the Company:

SECTION IV. The said corporation is hereby authorized to purchase and hold such real estate as may be necessary, and to construct thereon such buildings as may be necessary for the maintenance and carrying on of the business of exhibiting the products, goods, wares and merchandise, machinery, mechanical inventions and improvements of every nature, name and kind, and such as are usually exhibited at Fairs, and to award and pay to exhibitors therein such prizes and premiums, and honorary distinctions, as they shall deem proper; and to lease, let or own stalls, stands, rooms and places in said building or buildings, upon such terms and conditions as the Board of Directors shall deem best for the interests of said Company, and for the promotion of science, art, commerce and literature. And the said Company is hereby further authorized to construct shades for picture-galleries, and to exhibit therein paintings and statuary of any nature and kind, and to buy and sell such paintings and statuary, and to award such prizes for the creation of the same as such Board of Directors may deem proper; and generally, said Corporation shall have power to carry on in its said buildings erected for the purposes hereinbefore mentioned, all such business and purposes. And said Corporation is hereby further authorized to purchase and hold, by gift, subject to all provisions of law relating to devises and bequest by last will and testament, grant, lease, or conveyance, any real estate, or interest therein, which shall be necessary or useful for carrying on the business hereby authorized to be carried on by said Corporation.

SEC. VIII. The building to be erected shall be fire-proof.

IMPORTANT TO STOCKHOLDERS.

SEC. IX. Persons subscribing to the stock of this Company, or being Directors, shall incur no personal liabilities beyond the amount of the capital stock held and owned by them respectively.

INCREASE OF THE POPULATION OF THE UNITED STATES AND OF NEW-YORK CITY SINCE 1850.

Population of the United States in 1850	23,191,876
Population of the United States in 1870	42,000,000
Population of New-York City, 1850	515,547
Population of New-York City, 1870	1,042,345
No. of miles of railroads in 1850	7,365
No. of miles of railroads in 1870	67,264

It is the fashion for Americans to visit Europe. This enterprise being carried out as befits our nation, the tide of travel will turn, and bring hither in crowds the inhabitants of transatlantic countries.

ELIGIBILITY AND MEANS OF COMMUNICATION.

The Palace will be situated below the centre of the island, only one block removed from Central Park. The New-York Central and Hudson River Railroads, the Harlem, the New-York and New-Haven Railroads will all have a depot on the ground. The Third-avenue Railroad passes on one side, the Madison-avenue Railroad on the other. The Second-avenue Railroad is only 200 feet distant. The East River is only 1,600 feet away. No other spot on the island is so central, and so easily reached by the peoples of both Brooklyn and New-York.

Will the stock pay?

The sources of income are: Rent; entrance fee of exhibitors; admission fee of visitors; charges for expenses.

There is not space to be rented to exhibitors, 2,844,000 square feet, at $1 per square foot, equal to $2,844,000.

Each exhibitor would be required to pay an entrance fee of $50; number of exhibitors, 22,000 —equal to $900,000. Daily visitors ought to average (there being 50,000 strangers in New-York each day) 12,000, at 50 cents each—$1,800,000 per year.

Ten out of 22,000 exhibitors—

Each exhibitor will be required to pay for the following articles:

Gas	$3 per year	Police	$20 per year
Water	10 per year	Janitors	20 per year
Heat	40 per year
	$110 per year		$1,320,000

RECAPITULATION.

Income from rent, at $1 per square foot	$2,844,000
Entrance fee for exhibitors, $50 each	980,000
Twelve thousand visitors daily, at 50 cents each	1,800,000
Gas, water, heat, janitors, and police, at $110 each	2,520,000
Total income	$8,154,000
Estimated expenses, including interest and sinking fund at rate of $1,000,000 annually	3,768,000
Net income	$5,381,000

The estimated receipts are below the receipts of similar enterprises, and the expenses, including purchases of "Fine Arts," curious machinery, and curiosities, one-third greater.

The upper story of the building will be an Art Gallery, with sky-light opening through the top. The width of the Art Gallery will be 120 feet, and the length will be 3,760 feet; or two rows of paintings, which will give 7,520 feet of wall or space in length, on which to exhibit paintings.

The second story from top will be given free to Artists in Studios, and ample space of same story be needed; and a Library will be included on such floor.

There will be four Observatories—one at each corner of the building.

EUROPEAN ASPECT.

Granville's Circular Virtually Condemned by His Colleagues.

A More Conciliatory Policy Toward Russia Resolved On.

Count Bismarck Disclaims Privity in the Russian Demand.

Interposition of the Treaty Powers Invoked by Turkey.

No Reply from Russia Yet Received in England.

A Serious Engagement Reported in Eastern France.

Switzerland Preparing to Guard Her Neutrality.

THE EASTERN QUESTION.

The British Cabinet Opposed to War—A Conciliatory Course Resolved—Virtual Condemnation of Earl Granville's Abrupt Course—Mr. Russell's Report on Bismarck—Turkey and Italy Again.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—It is noticed with more than surprise that GRANVILLE sent his note to Russia without waiting for the approval of his colleagues. A Cabinet Council was held today, at which it was resolved to adopt a more moderate tone toward Russia and seek to conciliate her. The leading members of the Government denounce a rupture. They say war would be unpopular, and the country is unprepared for it.

PRUSSIA.

Mr. ODO RUSSELL telegraphs to the Foreign Office that Count VON BISMARCK disclaims all privity with the Russian circular.

TURKEY AND ITALY.

TOURS, Nov. 23.—It is understood here that Turkey is resolute in her purpose of maintaining the treaty of 1856, and Italy will act in concert with England and Austria

Turkey Invokes the Interposition of the Treaty Powers—Italy to Act with Them—Earl Granville's Circular Still Unanswered—The Czar Hopes for Peace—Disastrous Commercial Effect Apprehended in Calcutta.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—The Times, today, has a special telegram from Constantinople, saying that the Sultan invokes the interposition of the guaranteeing parties.

ITALY WITH ENGLAND AND AUSTRIA.

The Morning Post has information confirming the report that Italy will act in concert with England and Austria.

NO REPLY FROM RUSSIA.

The Foreign Office distinctly contradicts the rumor of the reception of a reply from Russia.

HOPES OF THE CZAR.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 23.—To an address from the Lithuanian regiment, the Czar replied yesterday: "I hope there will be no war; but if God will it, you will again prove your known devotion."

RETICENCE OF COUNT ANDRASSY.

PESTH, Nov. 23.—In the Diet, yesterday, Count ANDRASSY, on being questioned, declined to give any information as to the negotiations with Russia touching the Black Sea difficulty.

THE EFFECT IN CALCUTTA.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—Late advices from Calcutta announce that the complications threatened by the Russian question have completely prostrated all business. The market is overstocked with Manchester goods, and heavy losses are expected.

CONFIDENCE IN RUSSIAN COMMERCIAL CIRCLES.

Advices from St. Petersburg represent that commercial circles remain confident that peace will not be broken with England.

A More Warlike Feeling in England—Crowdsden Rumor of a Hostile Dispatch from Russia—Advice to Great Britain—Austria and Italy—The Peace of Moscow—Turkey Desires Peace.

LONDON, Nov. 23—½ P. M.—The news is more warlike again today. At this hour there is considerable excitement at the Stock Exchange, and the market for American securities and railway shares is flat. A rumor is now current of a hostile dispatch from Russia, which has had a paralyzing effect on the street.

A MORE PEACEFUL STATEMENT.

The Telegraph, this morning, says the Russian reply is expected on Thursday. It is generally thought it will not be unfriendly.

WHOLESOME ADVICE TO GREAT BRITAIN.

The Duke of CLEVELAND writes to the Times, this morning, arguing against a war between England and Russia. "The English" he says, "have no army for foreign service. England has no allies but Austria and Turkey, and they are both bankrupt."

AUSTRIA AND ITALY.

Semi-official statements have been received from Vienna today. It is denied that Austria has proposed a conference relative to the Eastern question. It is also denied that Italy declines to co-operate with England and Austria for enforcing the provisions of the Paris treaty. A Vienna telegram says that the soldiers whose terms of service have expired are only dismissed on furlough, in view of possible complications on the Black Sea difficulty.

TONE OF THE MOSCOW JOURNALS.

The Moscow papers are less insolent and confident than those of St. Petersburg.

TURKEY INDISPOSED TO FIGHT.

It is reported here today that Turkey, for the sake of peace, is anxious to have the Black Sea opened—a course recommended at Vienna.

THE WAR IN NORTHERN FRANCE.

Siege of Mezieres and Montmedy Abandoned—Lille and its Defenses.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—The reports of military movements in the north of France, received this morning, are quite encouraging for the French. It is reported that the Prussians who have been besieging Montmedy and Mézieres for the past few days have suddenly raised the siege, and gone toward the interior of France.

LILLE.

The City of Lille is well armed, provisioned and garrisoned. The citizens are expecting a siege. The manufacture of mitrailleuses and other arms is actively going on in the town. Lille is a first-class fortification, and is thought by the engineers to be nearly as strong as Metz and Strasbourg.

A NEW COMMANDER IN THE NORTH.

The commands of BOURBAKI, FIRRY and MICHEL, in the north of France, have been suppressed, and the entire district assigned to Gen. FARRE. Gen. BOURBAKI is expected at Tours to command the Eighteenth Army Corps, in the Army of the Loire. Gen. MANTEUFFEL's presence at Gisor's prevents Gen. BOURBAKI from joining his new command.

Gen. MANTEUFFEL, at last accounts, was in the neighborhood of Laon.

OPERATIONS IN THE EAST.

A Serious Engagement in Eastern France—The Result not Known.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—A serious engagement has taken place at Hericoucb, on the Lescne. No particulars have been received.

THE SWISS FRONTIER.

Switzerland is reinforcing her troops stationed on the French and German frontiers.

WERDER OPPOSED.

The Tours Moniteur reports that a sufficient force is now opposed to Gen. WERDER to stop his further advance southward.

TOURS, Nov. 23.—Communications with Auxonne and Besancon have been restored. The troops with which WERDU was advancing have have been transferred to the command of Prince FREDERICK CHARLES.

LYONS.

The authorities of Lyons have removed the Equestrian statue of NAPOLEON I. from the Place Bellcour.

PARIS AND ORLEANS.

The Civic Guard and its Duties—Fire on Fort Ivry—A Surprise of Prussians at Bouget—The Germans Massing on the North Side.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 23.—The Independance Belge, of this city, has dates from Paris to the 19th, received by balloon.

THE GUARD CIVIQUE.

It is said that an organization called the Civic Guard, composed mainly of foreigners, has been completed in Paris. Many of the inhabitants who are fit for service have also been enrolled. This body executes the orders of the Government, distributes the rations to the citizens and soldiers, and performs other services of a similar nature. The morale of the people was excellent.

PRUSSIAN FIRE ON FORT IVRY.

For two days the Prussians had been firing on the engineers who were at work in front of Fort Ivry. Forts Vauves and Issy returned the fire.

ANOTHER SURPRISE AT BOUGET.

The France-Tireurs surprised the Prussians near Bouget, on the 18th, killing four of them.

MASSING ON THE NORTH SIDE.

The Germans were massing on the northern side of the city, near St. Denis.

NO NEWS FROM TOURS.

The people of Paris have not heard anything from Tours since the 14th of October.

Reconnoissance by French Sharpshooters—Foreign Residents Forbidden to Leave Paris—French Successes.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—On the 13th inst. the sharpshooters in Gen. TROCHU's army made a reconnoissance from Paris as far as Champigny, three miles south-east of Vincennes. At that point a large body of Prussians was encountered. After a sharp action the Prussians were dislodged and the stores collected there destroyed. The Parisians returned to camp without serious loss.

FOREIGNERS FORBIDDEN TO LEAVE PARIS.

All foreigners, including neutrals, have been forbidden to leave Paris. The Prussians had already refused to permit them to pass their lines.

FRENCH SUCCESSES.

Dispatches from Versailles, of yesterday's date, have been received. Several skirmishes had occurred south of La Loupe, in all of which the French were successful. The Eighty-third (French) Regiment captured one gun from the Prussians.

An Encounter Somewhere—The New Prussian Line—Capture of a Prussian Convoy.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—Advices from Tours have been received up to Tuesday, the 22d inst. The day before the Mobile Guard opposed the Prussians two hours before giving way.

PRUSSIAN PROGRESS SOUTHWARD.

The Prussians threatened Nogent le Rotron and Le Mans with a force 3,000 strong, and afterward occupied Nogent without resistance. Another force is moving on Arcenton. The German line extends from Senoches to Auxerre, taking in Dreux.

THE ARMY OF THE LOIRE.

It is denied that the Army of the Loire is to move toward Paris.

THE NATIONAL GUARD.

TOURS, Nov. 23.—The National Guard of Evreaux and the country people harass the Prussian troops.

A FIGHT AT VERNON.

The Manchester Guardian learns from Havre today, that a detachment of 1,500 Prussians was routed at Vernon, and lost fifty killed and wounded. [Vernon is in the Department of Eure, on the left bank of the Seine, and on the Paris and Havre Railroad, thirteen miles north-west of Mantes and forty-two miles from Paris. It contains a population of between 4,000 and 5,000. It was once fortified, has an antique church, and a college founded by HENRY IV. It has manufactures of cotton cloth and velvet. Not far from it is the forest of Vernon.]

The French resumed the offensive at Vernon, and they captured a large Prussian convoy. Its escort, 1,800 strong, fled after a slight combat. There are no Germans in the valley of the Eure. The Moniteur reports four more military executions.

MISCELLANEOUS.

German Unity—A Discount from Schleswig-Holstein—Annexation of Bavaria—The Crusoe Iron-Works—French Men-of-War at Turkey—Another Armistice Rumor.

BERLIN, Nov. 23.—The elections in Schleswig have generally resulted in favor of those candidates who support the proposition for annexation to Denmark.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—The annexation of Bavaria to the North German Confederation is imminent. The annexation treaty with Wurtemberg was signed today.... The story lately published that the manufactories of M. SCHNEIDER, at Le Creusot, had been sold to an American company, is authoritatively denied.... A large fleet of steamers, ships and frigates, including four French men-of-war, remain in Turkey Harbor. Another French man-of-war is at Brixham, taking in coal.... There are rumors in circulation that renewed efforts for an armistice have lately been made.

Loressal.

OLIVER CHARLICK, the President of the Long Island Railroad, who was reported a short time since as dying, and who has been dangerously sick for a number of months, surprised the officers and employes of the Long Island Railroad by appearing at the Company's office, at Hunters Point, yesterday, about noon. He received the congratulations of many of the citizens of Long Island City, as well as the hearty good wishes of those connected with the railroad. Mr. CHARLICK has been away from the office so long that his return in health caused great rejoicing. His stay at the office was short on account of his not having yet regained his usual strength.

WASHINGTON.

Retirement of Army Officers—Estimates of Appropriations—How Senator Sumner's Trunks Were Interviewed—Democratic Protectionists—The President's Course Approved—Tapestry of the Capitol—Bogus Abstract of an Official Report.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—The Boards for examining and reporting upon the applications of officers to be placed upon the retired list, have reported favorably to the Secretary of WAR upon the cases of seventy-one officers, as incapacitated for active duty, and they have been ordered to be retired by the Secretary of War. The Secretary of War has also ordered to be retired ten officers, under the clause of the act of Congress passed at last session, authorizing the retirement of officers who had served over thirty years. In addition to these measures for the reduction of the list of officers, the supernumerary list is being rapidly augmented, and Gen. HANCOCK's Board is busily engaged in attending to the large number of cases which have been sent before it for examination. The prospect is that the Secretary of War will be able by the 1st of January next, when the reorganization takes effect, to reduce the number of officers to the standard required by the service itself.

ESTIMATES FOR APPROPRIATIONS.

The estimates of appropriations for the ensuing fiscal year are about completed, and promise to be somewhat less than for last year, though the decrease is by no means as great as it would have been but for the unfavorable operation of the law of July last, which covers all unexpended balances into the Treasury. The operation of this law is of very questionable efficiency. If it only operated to carry to the surplus fund such balances as remained after the completion of any object specifically appropriated for, it would do very well; but, on the contrary, it operated to embarrass every item in the public expenditures which has not consumed its entire appropriation by a specified time, no matter whether such expenditure be for the best interests of the Government or not. Then the matter can only be remedied by reappropriating the same money, a process simply of putting money in one pocket by taking it out of the other. Some good may come out of the law in the end, but not much apparently as it is now interpreted. Hon. H. L. DAWES, Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, will not reach the city until the last of next week. In the meantime, the estimates will be forwarded to him.

FUNNY COLLAPSE OF THE INTERVIEWERS.

The business of interviewing by newspaper reporters, which has been carried to an absurd extent by some of the city papers here, met with a most ludicrous collapse last night. It seems that a couple of Senator SUMNER's trunks arrived here, and an enterprising newsgatherer who saw them immediately jumped at the conclusion that the Senator was here himself, and both morning papers contained the Senator's arrival, comments on how well he looked, and his views on the new party movement and the removal of Mr. MOTLEY. Your enterprising contemporary of the World, also, had his views at some length, especially as to the new party. This morning, the Senator's residence was besieged by other interviewers, who, to their horror, they learned he was not here nor likely to be for nearly two weeks, only his trunks. Upon this point the Evening Star wittily says: "It would seem that the incorrigible reporters of our morning contemporaries not only followed the baggage-wagon to the Senator's house, but were able by some wonderful exercise of clairvoyance to ascertain from these trunks his views in regard to the leading questions of the day, and also the condition of his health. Such trunks are worth having. BLITZ and the other wizards have wonderful trunks, but no such trunks as these; but for all that, Mr. SUMNER didn't come with his trunks. When the trunk of an elephant arrives in town you may be pretty sure that the elephant is with it, but with a Senator it is different. Mr. SUMNER's trunks are in Washington, Mr. SUMNER is in Chicago."

DEMOCRATIC PROTECTIONISTS.

To the list of Democratic Protectionists now troubling the new party of revenue reformers, should be added ALEXANDER MITCHELL, of the First Wisconsin District, successor to Gen. PAINE. His election was openly urged by Democratic workmen in Milwaukee, because he was for high tariff, as against LYON, the Republican candidate, who sympathized with revenue reform. As to JOHN ROGERS, Democratic member elect from the Sixteenth New-York District, there is no doubt about him. He is a pig-iron Democrat, and owns large blast furnaces in Clinton County.

COMING AND GOING OF OFFICIALS.

Gens. SHERMAN and GARFIELD have gone to attend the annual meeting of the Army of the Cumberland at Cleveland, Ohio. Senators SAWYER, of South Carolina, and OSBORN, of Florida, have arrived here for the session. Also, Gen. C. C. WASHBURN, of Wisconsin, and Mr. WIELACK, of Indiana, members of the House.

APPROVAL OF THE PRESIDENT'S COURSE.

It is somewhat noticeable that such members of Congress as have yet arrived here, and have expressed themselves as to the action of the President in holding up the McGirrahan case so long as it was before Congress, have spoken very decidedly in praise of the impartiality of the President's course. Naturally, members of Congress resent an interference by any of the Departments with a matter under their consideration; but the fairness and safety of the President's course is so manifest that their approval is both natural and positive.

CARPETING THE CAPITOL.

A new, and seemingly a very commendable suggestion, is receiving a partial trial in regard to the furnishing of committee and other rooms in the Capitol. Heretofore, they have been fully carpeted. The flooring of all these rooms is of beautiful imported mosaic tiling, and covering it with a carpet is, in a manner, like attempting to ornament a marble building by painting. The only excuse for putting down a carpet on such a flooring would be to protect the feet from cold. But when Congress is in session the Capitol is constantly heated, and it is impossible for the floors to become uncomfortably cold. Mr. FRENCH, the Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate, with the consent of the Committee on Printing, has procured some large and elegant rugs for their room, which he has placed under the tables and before the fire-grate, leaving the rest of the floor uncovered. The effect is very fine. The room looks much neater, and has an appearance of substantial richness about it. Some very large and fine rugs are to be placed in the retiring room of the Senate, known as the Marble-room, and no carpet will be put down there. Visitors to that magnificent room will no longer be distressed by the impression a carpet suggests of a perishable wooden floor to an otherwise superb and indestructible apartment. Besides the improvement of taste displayed, the new arrangement, if generally carried out, will save a large annual outlay for carpets.

Dispatch to the Associated Press.

GREENBACKS EN ROUTE FOR CALIFORNIA.

About a week ago the United States Treasurer dispatched a special car to San Francisco, Cal., with $2,000,000 in greenbacks, to be there exchanged for mutilated notes. The expedition was in charge of Messrs. GILLFILLAN, GUTHRIE and WRITING, of the Treasurer's office, and Messrs. FINE, WRITING and MORGAN, of the Secretary of the Treasury's office.

THE REPORT OF THE SECRETARY OF NAVY.

Some of the newspapers here have recently published what purports to be an abstract of the report of the Secretary of Navy, to be submitted by the President to Congress with his annual message. The matter having been brought to the notice of the Secretary today, he said in looking over the article he noticed that it contained views submitted by him in his first report, with additions of a general character, and he was at a loss to know how an abstract could be made of his forthcoming report, as he had conversed with nobody on the subject, and up to last night had not written a line of it.

VENEZUELA.

Arrival of the Filibusters Virgin and Billy Butts—Alarm of the Spanish Authorities—The Virgin Chased by a Spanish War Vessel—Blockade of all the Ports—Passengers Without Passports Subject to Fine.

From Our Own Correspondent.

CARACAS, TUESDAY, Nov. 8, 1870.

A great commotion has been created in this City by the Cuban Junta of New-York making this place a rendezvous for vessels freighted with munitions of war, to be used against the Spaniards in Cuba. On the 21st of October, a telegram was sent via Havana to New-York stating that the steamer Virgin and schooner Billy Butts had arrived at this port from Curacoa. The Virgin's cargo was not known at the time, but it was understood to be, on the best authority, arms. She had acted as consort from New-York to the British schooner Billy Butts, which had on board a large quantity of arms. After provisioning the schooner left, leaving the Virgin here. The day after she had left four gentlemen came ashore, one of them reported to be the famous Cuban, Gen. QUESADA, and paid a visit at night to one of the leading citizens to consult him with respect to four hundred volunteers who were to embark in his vessel and start for Cuba forthwith. He was unable to get the men and so set sail the next day for the Gulf of Mexico, but to which port is unknown. The reason why he found no men is that all were engaged in the civil war now raging here. QUESADA seemed greatly chagrined at his failure, and evidently thought he had been made somewhat of a dupe. The Virgin was chased by some of the vessels of the Spanish Squadron, the commander having been informed of her character by the Consul at New-York, but she managed to escape.

OPPOSITION TO GUZMAN BLANCO.

GUZMAN BLANCO has issued stringent orders to the foreign Consulates at New-York and other places to clear no vessel for Venezuela which has munitions of war on board. It is said that this action is in consequence of these filibustering expeditions. He has also forbidden the sale of any war vessels or war material belonging to the Republic, and declares that should such a sale or transfer take place he will nullify it when he becomes President of the United States of Venezuela, which he believed would be very shortly. The greatest indignation is expressed against his system of enforced loans, which are for large amounts on all classes, rich and poor, and have to be paid within three days, otherwise a seizure of goods takes place. So much embitterment has GUZMAN created on this and other subjects, that a combination against him is on foot, and that of no mean order. The next letter received from here will probably tell of a revolution within a revolution.

SCHEMES OF GEN. HERNANDEZ.

From Maracaibo the dates are to the 28th of October. Gen. HERNANDEZ, formerly Commander-in-Chief of the Government Army, has proclaimed himself Governor of the State of Zulia, and is about forming a standing army of 1,500 men to attack Guzman, and also a National Guard. Every man in the State is to bear arms if called upon, and is to be on the same principle as the Prussian Landsturm. He has caused an appropriation of $60,000 on the Customs receipts to be made for the use of the forces, and has decreed that no communication of any kind shall take place with Truxillo, which is in the hands of GUZMAN. All the ports are vigorously blockaded by the navy, which consists of some ten vessels, half of which are steamers. All persons embarking in vessels without passports subject themselves to a penalty of $1,000. A smart shock of earthquake was felt here, and lasted about twenty seconds. The Consul of the North-German Confederation, together with the British Consul, have arranged that a vessel of war of either nation shall be present in Venezuelan waters at all times for the protection of their interests. The Adler (German) has been a long time on the station, and is now to be replaced by a British war vessel, momentarily expected. The United States have promised to send a vessel here, but have not yet done so.

THE WEST INDIA CABLE.

Details of the Parting of the Cable Between Aspinwall and Jamaica.

From Our Own Correspondent.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Tuesday, Nov. 8, 1870.

The arrival here of Her Majesty's steamer Vestal, and subsequently of the steamer Dacia, with Sir JOHN BRIDGE on board, has put us in possession of particulars relative to the parting of the cable while being laid from Colon to this island. The Dacia arrived at Colon on the 18th ult., but owing to the heavy sea and wind, the laying of the cable could not be commenced until the 24th, when the heavy shore end was landed with the assistance of the boats and crew of Her Majesty's steamer Vestal. At 3 P. M. the Dacia started laying the cable, and was soon followed by the Vestal, which then took the lead, as the compasses of the vessels laying telegraph cables are liable to error from the change which is continually going on in the mass of iron on board, as the cable is being paid out. By noon, on the following day, the 25th, the expedition was in latitude 10° 57', longitude 72°, 19'—102 miles from Colon. On the 26th, the sea increased, and no observation was obtained, but the total distance run by dead reckoning was 243 miles. The Californian steamer passed close to the Dacia at 1 in the afternoon.

THE BREAK.

At 2½ on the morning of the 27th, an irregularity was observed in the electrical tests, the ship was stopped to pass the cable from the stern to the bows, in order to pick it up for about two miles to the place where the variation in the tests showed itself. During the change, which is made by means of a hawser and chain passed round the outside of the ship from forward aft, the wind shifted, and her mizen staysail, which had been set to bring her head to the wind, was taken aback; the hawser, instead of passing clear away from the ship's side, fouled it and was cut through, letting the cable go to the bottom. This took place in latitude 14° 13', longitude 74° 45'—320 miles from Colon.

ATTEMPTS TO RECOVER THE CABLE.

The Dacia made two attempts at grappling afterward, but the weather was so bad that nothing could be done, and being short of coal, she had to return to Kingston. The weather may prevent her from taking up the cable, and completing the work for some time, but there is no cause for apprehension as to the ultimate accomplishment of this, the depth (900 fathoms) being very much less than the depths from which other cables have been recovered.

ACCIDENT TO CAPT. DOWELL.

In grappling for the lost cable, the ship lost eight hundred fathoms of wire rope and two hundred fathoms of chain. When the wire rope snapped, it broke with a strain of eleven tons. The recoil struck Capt. DOWELL, throw him down and rendered him insensible for several hours. In endeavoring to lower the buoy to mark the spot whence the cable disappeared, one thousand fathoms of ten-inch hawser were lost, with fifty fathoms of chain and two mushroom hawsers. In a third attempt, five hundred fathoms of ten-inch hawser were lost, with one hundred and fifty fathoms of chain and two powerful grapplers.

Quashing an Indictment on Account of Irregularity.

A motion was made before Judge BEDFORD, at the Court of General Sessions, yesterday, to quash an indictment found against J. DE PEYSTER, charged with stealing $60,000 from the St. Nicholas Hotel. Counsel for the prisoner announced that an examination had been fixed in the case by Justice SHANDLEY for 10 A. M. yesterday. In the meantime, he found that the case had been taken before the Grand Jury, and that an indictment had been found against the accused, without waiting for the preliminary examination before the Police Magistrate. Judge BEDFORD said that he would quash the indictment not only from courtesy to Justice SHANDLEY, but because of the right of PEYSTER to have a preliminary examination prior to being indicted.

WESTON'S WALK.

One Hundred Miles in 24 1-2 Hours—Programme for Today.

WESTON walked until 11 o'clock last evening, at which time he retired to rest, after making a total of 230 miles. He failed to make 115 miles inside of twenty-four hours, owing to a loss of sleep on the previous night, and to a sprained ankle. The latter accident was caused during his tramp yesterday. Since Tuesday afternoon he has actually had no sleep, with the exception of two hours. He made 100 miles in twenty-four and a half hours, yesterday, notwithstanding his disability. He frequently drank cold water, but all the food which he ate during the twenty-four hours did not exceed three boiled eggs and some beef-tea. He maintained a steady and unflagging step throughout the whole time, excepting two intervals of about ten minutes each, when he stopped to rest, and another interval of one hour and fifteen minutes, during which he slept. Drs. MOTT and AUSTIN FLINT, jr., and Prof. R. OGDEN DOREMUS were present for the purpose of regulating his diet and making medical observations. The Rink was attended by several hundred spectators, among whom was Prince DOLGOROUKI, accompanied by Señor MAGLHAWS, Charge d'Affaires of the Portuguese Embassy, together with Rev. Dr. POTTER and family, and others. At the close of his tramp last evening, he was examined by Drs. FLINT and MOTT, who pronounced him to be in fine condition. His pulse was found to beat pretty regular, and his respiration was the same as when he commenced. On being weighed, the singular fact was ascertained that he increased 2¾ pounds since Tuesday night, at which time he weighed 118¾ pounds. He felt cheerful, and showed no signs of exhaustion. He said that he would resume his 400-mile walk today, and that he would make another attempt toward accomplishing his proposed feat of making 112 miles inside of twenty-four hours. He will commence about 10 A. M. Mlle. CHRISTINA NILSSON will be present during the day to witness pedestrian feats. The following table shows the time and the number of miles he walked yesterday:

WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

Second Day of the Convention at Cleveland—Letter from Henry Ward Beecher.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 23.—The Woman's Suffrage Convention of Wednesday was called to order by Col.

lightly declare war. We are not a war-making Government; we are only a war-carrying-on Government when war is made upon us.

HOW TO BEAT A VICIOUS NEIGHBOR.

I would apply the same doctrine to nations that I would to individuals under like circumstances. If my neighbor takes advantage of the fact that his line lies close under my windows, to build a high fence to shut out the light and air from my dwelling, in order to show his hostility to myself and family, do I stop to inquire whether he has put that fence one inch over on one inch within the line which divides his land from mine? If he has put it one inch over I may use him to the extent of law. But there are no Courts of law to adjust disputes between nations. If he has put it one inch on his own land, to gratify his ill-will and injure me, what is my remedy? Simply, to declare him a bad neighbor, and that I will have nothing to do with him in the future, save to get him out of my neighborhood if I can, and as soon as I can, either by causing him to move or by removing myself. So would I do with England. If she will not make reparation for the wrongs done us during the war by her hostility, not by simply making good the millions that our merchants lost, but by making good all that the nation had lost, I would treat her as I should my vicious neighbor, who gave vent to his enmity by darkening my windows—declare that I would have nothing to do with her, that I would neither buy nor sell with her, or, after due notice, hold diplomatic or commercial relations with her henceforth until full reparation is made. Complete, thorough and permanent non-intercourse is the remedy. That is not war. That is not a casus belli under any suggestion of the law of nations. We have the undisputed right to trade with whom we please, or to refuse to trade with whom we please.

THE RESULT OF NON-INTERCOURSE.

True, Great Britain, when the Government of China refused to have its subjects poisoned by English opium, sent a fleet and forced the opium down the throats of the Chinese at the mouth of her cannon; but what publicist ever dreamed that this was done under any provision of international law, but simply an exhibition of force? Besides, China had not been admitted into the family of nations. When the United States decides not to buy British goods until she settles the Alabama claims, I am willing to see Great Britain, if she thinks best, send her fleets to our ports and force us to take the manufactures of iron and wool. We know how to conduct a defensive war, whether by sea or land. I do not deem it either unmanly or unfair to say to England that she shall have none of our cotton or breadstuffs until this question shall be adjusted, although the deprivation to Manchester, Birmingham and Bradford might work a revolution in her Government in six months. Nor would it be more unmanly or unfair to declare such non-intercourse, because now is our opportunity, inasmuch as Russia and France are not ready, and England from their exhaustion, to take from us all the surplus that we have both of cotton and food for export, even if they become sellers of the first to England. Nor is it our fault if England's delays in doing us justice have postponed our complaint, so that our relations with Russia have substantially put her at our mercy. The saving to the country by non-importation of British goods—the impetus given to our manufactories—the protection thus afforded to American industry, would very soon quite make good to us all that we have lost in money by the Alabama outrages. The United States Government ought to assume and pay all that there is of ascertained loss to the individual citizens because of those claims.

ENGLAND'S ONLY PROPER COURSE.

For, after all, the great injury and wrong is not one to be compensated in money. The better reparation to this nation would be for England to remove all opportunity or cause of collision between the two nations in the future. As long as those must always exist so long as England has a Government under her control, and for the acts of which she is responsible, stretching from ocean to ocean, across our northern border, and for many hundred miles intervening between us and our Western Territories, Alaska, and while she holds her naval stations and depots at Jamaica, Nassau, from which our commerce and our coast can be menaced in any future war on this side the Atlantic. Therefore would I suggest that that which would best satisfy the people, that which would best meet the case, would be to ask England and that which England could part with herself it most honor, by showing a desire to take away all ground of possible unfriendly relations in the future, would be that she should withdraw her power from this continent. I do not ask her to give to Canada and her Provinces. I should be willing to assume all the Alabama claims and settle all possible differences between the two nations to-morrow, if Great Britain will leave the Western Continent. Simply divorce herself from them, and permit her Provinces of Canada, Nova Scotia, New-Brunswick, Prince Edward's Island, Newfoundland and British Columbia, each to settle for itself, by the action of its own people, what shall be its future. I am asked, Will the Provinces vote for annexation to this country? I am willing to take the votes of those men and countries will not for their own best interests.

WAR FROM OUR FISHERY COLLISIONS.

But there are other and more difficult complications arising daily, which demand, in the interest of peace between the two nations, the immediate settlement of the Alabama claims, in a manner which shall take away all possibility of future entanglements. For the purpose of forcing a reciprocity treaty upon the United States, the Canadian Government has been for the past two years renewing its pretensions to the exclusive right of the fisheries in the great bays and estuaries along shores adjoining the British Provinces; pretensions which are only to be examined to be found unjust; pretensions under which they have seized a number of vessels belonging to the United States upon the flimsiest pretexts, broken up the voyage, turned loose the crews, who are part owners, and subjected the owners to the hardship of defending their claims to their own property before a British Vice-Admiralty Court, only to find their vessels, if they succeed, returned to them stripped of their lines, cordage and running rigging, allowed to go to wreck while in the hands of the Court, with their cargoes perished; the voyage broken up, and the means of continuing it carried off without any responsibility for the loss. Canada claims to enact laws providing for the seizure and confiscation of our vessels if they fish within the limits which she prescribes, and should we found taking shelter for more than twenty-four hours in her bays and harbors, whatever the inclemency of the weather, or even if buying provisions or supplies therein, with which to fish anywhere upon the broad expanse of the ocean. This condition of conflicting rights and claims cannot long rest without collisions which will severely endanger the peace of the nations. American seamen are not too patient of wrongs from that Power which impressed their fathers and scarred their backs on the high seas—till we went to war for sailors' rights.

OUR RIGHTS TO THE FISHERIES.

As the conflicting claims of the two Governments to these fisheries are but little understood save by students of our international relations, I may be pardoned, I trust, for trespassing upon your patience a few moments to succinctly state exactly our rights and the claims of Canada. The importance of the fisheries on the northern coast of America was very early known and appreciated by both France and England. Indeed it is almost certain that the Grand Banks were known and fished by Europeans before the discoveries by COLUMBUS. When France had colonized Canada, Acadia and Cape Breton, she built her strongest fortress on this Continent at Louisburg, so important did she deem her fisheries, and to protect them, which were first ventured by the infant colonies of Massachusetts Bay, without any assistance of the troops of the mother country, and the fisheries were thereby wrested from France. This gallant exploit was done in 1758, a year before WOLFE attacked Quebec, and was the beginning of that series of victories by which Great Britain destroyed the power of France upon this Continent. The expedition was under a Massachusetts General, and largely composed of Massachusetts troops, and was fitted out and carried to its successful result that Massachusetts fishermen should have their rights secured to them. And permit me to say here, that the rights obtained by the fathers will be maintained by their sons.

IMPORTANCE OF THE FISHING RIGHTS.

In the negotiation for peace which terminated the war of the revolution, JOHN ADAMS, although his State had suffered fearfully in the contest, had contributed more men and money than all the other States put together, and was enormously involved in debt, yet that sturdy, incorruptible old patriot, declared that the war should go on rather than give up any portion of rights to the fisheries; and by the treaty of 1783, all the rights of fishing in Canadian and Nova Scotian waters, that we had ever enjoyed in common with other British subjects, were especially reserved to us. At the conclusion of the war of 1812, the subject of the fisheries was not brought into controversy in the negotiations of the treaty. It is necessary to observe, however, that the rights of fisheries secured by this treaty did not extend, to the shores of Newfoundland, of the Magdalen Islands, or Labrador, nor did it include the right, which was well secured by the law of nations without it, of putting in for shelter and repairs into the provincial ports and harbors. For the three years succeeding the war there was never a suggestion from any quarter, that we did not enjoy all the fishing right we had ever had since JOHN ADAMS' time.

THE CONVENTION OF 1818.

It being deemed of the highest importance to obtain the right to land upon Labrador, the Magdalen Islands and Newfoundland to cure the codfish, HUSK and GALLATIN were appointed commissioners in 1818 to negotiate for such unprovided-for privileges. To obtain these they incautiously—and as I think unwisely—surrendered the right always before enjoyed by our fishermen to take and cure fish within three miles of the land on the coasts, bays, harbors and creeks of the provinces. The continuous construction of the provisions of the treaty made by them by all parties, as well the local officers and magistrates as those of the Imperial Government, was to permit our fishermen to fish in the great bays and gulfs like those of Chaleurs and the Bay or Fundy, and that the three-mile construction only applied to those little bays or harbors wherein we had reserved the right to go for shelter and repair.

A FALSE CONSTRUCTION ON THE TREATY.

For more than twenty years this construction prevailed without question, when suddenly the Colonial Governments, desiring to force upon us a reciprocity treaty, and thereby to gain commercial advantages, claimed a construction that the three-mile line was to be drawn from headland to headland, i. e., from a point three miles outside of one headland to a point three miles outside of another headland, and by which the great bays of Fundy and Chaleur were shut in from our fishermen, where we had been accustomed to fish ever since the capture of Louisburg, by our fathers, in 1758. This new construction was firmly and earnestly protested against by our Government, but unfortunately not resisted. But an opinion of the British Crown lawyers was taken, who decided, with the singular infelicity of carelessness of examination, that as "headlands" were referred to in the treaty, the line must be drawn from a point three miles outside of one headland, to a like point opposite the nearest headland. Now, it is a curious fact that the word "headland" is not used in the convention at all; so that the opinion was simply an unfounded decision, sustained only by the arrogance of British Power.

ENGLAND'S OWNED ARROGANT PRETENSIONS.

Nor is this the only instance in which England, in her dealings with us, has construed treaties to suit herself, and we have tamely—my, ignominiously—submitted to her pretensions of interpretation. We cannot fail to remember, in the treaties of 1783 and 1814, that our boundary line was to "run from the source of the St. Croix to the northwest angle of Nova Scotia, and thence by the highlands that divide the waters running into the St. Lawrence." But when it was found that the "highlands" then described came a little too near Quebec, the principal fortress of Great Britain on this continent, her diplomatic claimed that those highlands could not be our boundary, because the river of the St. John, whose head-waters begin on the Atlantic side of those highlands, did not run into the sea at all, but emptied into the Bay of Fundy! And England coolly told our Commissioners, who, upon this basis, and the Government of the United States, for the sake of peace, yielded up a large portion of the territory of Maine and Massachusetts upon this absurdity. This could easily be done in the interest of peace, because, it was said, that the Bay of Fundy was British, but only to the States, it cost it nothing to make the concession. Have we not sufficiently abased ourselves for the sake of peace to the grasping arrogance of British dominion?

ACTS OF THE PROVINCES.

As soon as this construction of their claims was sustained by the British Government, the Provinces passed acts confiscating the vessels of our fishermen found in their bays and harbors; restricting their right to put in for shelter and repairs to twenty-four hours only, and declaring it cause of the forfeiture of the vessel if found there for a longer period, whatever might have been the stormy condition of the sea. And, in order to make the seizing officers wholly irresponsible, exempted them from personal liability in case they captured our vessels without probable cause to believe they had infringed even this odious law. In support of such illegal enactments, the British Government and the Provinces fitted out and sent on to the fishing grounds of our fathers as many as eighteen armed vessels to drive our fishermen from these great bays and gulfs, destroying their property and crippling their enterprise to millions in amount—scarcely less than the Alabama claims. To such an extent was this carried while the Reciprocity treaty was king urged that our fishermen were allowed to remain more than twenty-four hours in any port, or to take any supplies except such necessary equipments as would enable him to put to sea; and if he lingered longer, or bought other provisions with which to prosecute his voyage, he was seized and confiscated.

ENGLAND FORCED THE RECIPROCITY TREATY.

This crippling of our fisheries had the desired effect, and in 1854, President PIERCE, who was a New-England man, and deeply imbued with the views of those interests and privileges, to-day, made a treaty of reciprocity of commerce with Canada, which remained in force until 1866, when fortunately the exigencies of the war and the unfriendly legislation of the Canadians caused its abrogation, and we are now free from all entanglements of such provisions. How greatly it benefited Canada, will be seen in this, that while in 1854, at the date of the treaty, our total of exports into Canada was twenty-four millions, her exports into the United States were only eight millions; yet in five years what we sent Canada had dwindled to twenty-two millions annually, while she sent us twenty-four million dollars' worth of her products, or quite treble the amount before the treaty. It is to be hoped that a reciprocity treaty so onerous, especially to our agricultural interests, will never be renewed, during the existence of this treaty our fishermen exercised the same rights and privileges in British waters and on British shores as their own subjects, without complaint, murmur or collision, and the British fishermen did the same upon our—a privilege, by the way, which we still permit them to enjoy unmolested.

OLD LAWS REVIVED.

Canada, now that the treaty is annuled, has again revived her oppressive laws passed prior to the treaty, and is enacting new and more stringent ones against our fishermen, arming revenue cutters supported by British men-of-war, who have been engaged even during the present Summer in arresting our own fishermen, inasmuch that some seven fishing vessels have been seized, their voyages broken up and crews discharged in foreign ports without cause, save apparently for the purposes of annoyance. Nor is British insolence unprecedented here. Massachusetts alone sends more than fifteen hundred sail of vessels on to the northern fishing grounds at different seasons, every year. It is evident that these seizures and condemnations cannot continue. Our fishermen will not long submit to be plundered by the Canadian revenue cutters without defending themselves.

ARMED COLLISION INEVITABLE.

A collision is inevitable if there is no other way in which our rights of fishing can be protected. If the Government is powerless to preserve our rights through its diplomacy, a collision is desirable, because then this series of injuries will be terminated in a manner that will astonish diplomacy. Therefore urging the settlement of the Alabama claims in the manner I have suggested, by withdrawing British power from the continent and giving us an ocean-bound Republic, is in the interest of peace and not in the interest of war. No statesman, no patriot can desire war. Nay, no partisan can desire war, as it would jeopardize his party. War is by far too terrible to be lightly levied, or until all other means have failed. We, as a nation, unhappily now know what war is, its effects, its sequences, and its consequences.

A PEREMPTORY DEMAND OF OUR RIGHTS.

It is said, by certain timid anglophobists, that a peremptory demand upon England to do what we believe of right ought to be done, to be followed, if refused, by a declaration of non-intercourse, on our part, will bring on war by England. I prefer to see an honorable adjustment. As the action I have proposed to be taken is fully within every rule of international law, such result ought not to follow, and cannot follow, unless England chooses to add violence to her hostility and injustice toward us. Much more earnestly than I have suggested have been taken by nations in pursuit of their just rights, and not been held to be causes of war. He here quoted some acts of CROMWELL, and from JACKSON'S message to Congress in 1834, when the French Chamber of Deputies had neglected to vote appropriations to pay claims to our citizens which were acknowledged to be due, and continued:]

FISHING RIGHTS DEFINED BY QUEEN ELIZABETH.

When we make any declaration to England of our rights in the fisheries, I want no other language of instruction to our Ministers than that given by Queen ELIZABETH, in 1603, to her Ambassadors, when she settled British rights of fishing with Denmark. The British Queen tells them:

"And you shall further declare that the laws of nations allowed to every Prince in his and every man's else of using ports and coasts of Princes in amity for traffique and evoidance danger of tempests; so that if our men be barred thereof, it should be by some contract, which we understand not that we have."

I ask no stronger language than this, and I have used none, in demanding the rights of my constituents and country. But it must be followed up by acts with a determination to make it good by the Administration and the governing party of the country.

VIGOROUS ENFORCEMENT OF OUR RIGHTS.

In my poor judgment such language, properly enforced to the Court of Great Britain, would bring about an honorable adjustment of all our claims, and a full acknowledgment of all our rights. And I also believe that, upon full examination of the case in all its bearings, the form of settlement I have already suggested would be found the most consistent with the honor and pride of England, most convenient and satisfactory to this country, and most certain to secure lasting peace and amity. Mere money, without other reparation, will never satisfy the wounded honor of this country. We must have for our satisfaction something more of concession and apology; and it is for Great Britain to say in what form that will be easiest to herself. I can have no doubt but that her withdrawal from the continent will satisfy our people, although it is only the anticipation of an event which must happen in a few, very few, years, but an hour of a nation's life. If England refuses this, let her say what reparation she will offer to us, the injured party. If nothing, then let all intercourse between the two countries cease.

OUR ALTERNATIVE NO JUST CAUSE OF WAR.

This, our alternative—non-intercourse—I do not conceal, either from myself or from you, although not a justifiable cause of war, would, unless it led to a settlement of the difficulty, probably result in a declaration of war by Great Britain. If so, be it so. And in that case I again would say, in the language of JACKSON to France:

"If [Great Britain] make that occasion for hostilities against the United States, she but adds violence to injustice, and could not fail to expose herself to the just censure of civilized nations and the retributive judgments of heaven."

GREAT PROVOCATIONS TO A WAR.

Let me say nothing now of the keen sense of wrong and injury inflicted. Let me say nothing of the rising gorge at the thought that England took advantage of our crippled condition to plunder us of that which she could not have dared other wise to do. Let me say nothing now of the fact that what she did was done to crush a hated commercial rival. Let me say nothing of the fact that she based her pretensions to concessions in mankind that the great experiment of freedom to all, now being wrought out by the American Government, was a failure, and thus in the interest of despotism to crush out all hope of republican liberty throughout the world. Let me say nothing of the fact that her hostile acts were done in the interest of a Confederacy whose corner-stone was slavery, and whose object was to perpetuate that slave power whose the greed of British merchants and slave-traders had fastened on our country in its infancy.

GREAT TEMPTATIONS TO MAKE WAR.

But I do remember and cannot forget that we have sixteen hundred thousand naturalized Irishmen in this country, every one eager to avenge the wrongs done his mother-land, the Green Isle of the ocean, by British tyranny, which drove him from her soil. I cannot but remember that they require no urging to join our armies in a war with their oppressors, but are prevented by the repressive hand of our Government, in the interest of peace and in sacred regard for our treaties of amity, from making war on their own account, and that if we did not hinder them they would take Canada by contract in sixty days. I cannot but recall the truth that our Southern brethren, many of the best and bravest of whom have held high places in our Government, with a vain attempt to rise to rival the glorious memory of its history, are impatiently longing to fight once more under the starry golden of the and Gar. Give the privilege to the brave sons of the South, to defend their country again in a foreign war, and specially one with Great Britain—not loved by them any more than by us—and it would bring us all together again, uniting us with one flag, one country and one destiny. In so much is this reunion the hope of the patriot, that one feels almost to doubt whether to adhere to it would not be worth all the loss of blood and treasure in such a war. Again, let me not forget that it would be a war upon the ocean, never an easy one, and in which the millions of American arms have been from. And I cannot fail to perceive that the saving of money by the non-importation of British goods, and the stimulus given to American production, would quite equal all the expenditures of the war. I never forget, that in much is our weak, we have no commerce to lose. Quite all our ships are none already because of the warlike acts of England's cruisers, which we have so long suffered in insulted silence, although we know that we can sweep the seas of her commerce from the ocean. As a Republican and a partisan, I do not forget that whenever a country is engaged in a foreign war, the Administration or the Government is always sustained by the patriotism of the people. Never would that be so signally demonstrated as in a defensive war with England, brought on by the Republican Administration, in a firm, manly and statesmanlike endeavor to enforce the rights of our injured and despoiled citizens, to avenge our insulted honor, and to establish our fishermen in those rights now taken from them by England's wrongs, which their fathers won for England and which themselves won in their right arms. As a party man I do not fail to remember that of the twenty odd hundred thousand votes of the Democratic Party now in opposition, twelve hundred thousand at least are naturalized Irishmen who would stand side by side with a Republican Administration in a war with Mother-land, Ireland's ancient foe, as nearly as twenty years, and would vote as they fought. As a politician, I have an incentive to such a war, as its results would be the perpetuation of the Republican Party in power for more than a generation.

"LEAD US NOT INTO TEMPTATION."

If, therefore, when we ask for our just rights and indemnification for our losses through her acts, England should incline to offer us, instead thereof, such a proposition as I shrewdly think, such causes, with such hopes, with such results and such memories, ought not every patriotic American to address to Her Majesty's Government a portion of the prayer which we were taught in childhood every day to say to our Father in Heaven, with some modification of phrase in the original than as translated by English Bishops—"Suffer us not to fall into temptation!"

DECEMBER MAGAZINES.

—Old & New preserves its customary features of thoughtful suggestiveness and bold and impartial criticism, with a due admixture of light, sketchy literature. "Wanted, a States man," by J. P. CLARKE, is such an exposition as might be expected from its author of the great national questions which still await statesmanlike treatment. Among these are the question of the freedmen, of our paper currency, the tariff, and the Alabama claims. The difficulties beetling these subjects are touched on with a judicial fairness which cannot fail to command admiration. "Athens and Her Enemies" is a poetical address read at a Harvard College dinner in June last by WILLIAM EVERETT. Eminently suited as the verses are to the subject which suggested them, and to the secondary application for which the writer employs them, we imagine that not a few readers will find in them a touching parallelism to the present case of beleaguered Paris. All such will doubtless wish that the Spartan interposition for Athens should find its echo in these later times, and that on behalf of the capital of France some one should give the "solemn, stern reply,"

"It is not mean a city die,
That wrought such mighty things for Greece."

"Tarry at Home Travel" is a highly suggestive account of how Rev. GEORGE AXTON accomplished a tour in the Holy Land without stirring from New-England. "The Holy Gospels," by C. A. SAINTE-BEUVE, is a very fragmentary treatment of a great subject, and by no means in the best manner of its author. Homage to his fame can be the only excuse for its reproduction. "The Improvisatore and the Healer," by FRED. W. LORING, is a sketch after the manner of RALPH KEELER, and eminently worthy to rank beside his annuals of Bohemianism. The other papers in the number are "The Last Week," by A. A. WOODHULL, an effusive critique on "Jefferson's Rip Van Winkle," "Ah Yinn," a Chinese study, by JULIUS A. PALMER, Jr.; another installment of Mrs. BROWN'S story, "Pink and White Tyranny;" "Natural and Revealed Religion," by Dr. BELLOWS, and "The Dying Gladiator," by THEODORE LYMAN. Mr. MORRIS contributes some poetical reflections on "December;" H. H., a poem entitled "Vintage;" and Mrs. E. E. FORD, another on "Forms," neither of which are of very remarkable merit. On the whole, however, the number quite sustains the established reputation of Old & New.

—Appletons' Journal, just issued in its monthly form, presents features of unusual excellence. The most notable among these are the illustrations to a newly-commenced series of papers on "Picturesque America." These are from drawings made by HARRY FENN in the course of an extensive tour through the Southern States. The admirable taste of those truly artistic sketches will be at once apparent to the most untutored eye. In the selection of subjects great taste and judgment has been displayed, and on the completion of the present series the readers of this popular periodical may expect to be in possession of an illustrated guide of very phenomenal merit, to the picturesque points of Georgia, the Carolinas, Eastern Tennessee and Virginia. Other portions of the country will be illustrated in the course, so that these sketches will form for some time a leading feature in the Journal. Among other contributions to the present number are the second installment of Dr. VENTON'S trip "To Lake Superior and the Mississippi from New-York;" the continuation of Miss MARRYAT'S novel, "The Poison of Asps," "A Night on Stamboul," by B. VON FLINDERS, "Fleodmont Virginia," by T. B. MAURY, "A Southern Corn-Shucking," by HENRY C. WOODS, &c., &c. A handsome steel engraving entitled "Hunting Buffaloes" forms the frontispiece to this exceptionally good number.

Gov. Clayton, of Arkansas—His Action as the Late Election.

A telegram to the St. Louis Democrat has been widely published, accusing Gov. CLAYTON, of Arkansas, of "selling out" the Republican Party at the recent election in that State. A Little Rock correspondent of the same paper contradicts this story at sixes and says:

"The charge that his trip to Phillips County was for the purpose of defeating Republican candidates, or that it had that effect, is ungraceful as well as false, the truth being that he went there specially to heal dissensions and secure the full Republican vote for the regular party candidates. That this endeavor was defeated by the obstinacy of a few bolters, who had been persuaded to put out a separate ticket for the Legislature, was no fault of the Governor's. The truth is, that ROOTS was fraudulently nominated for Congress over Judge BENNETT, of Helena, and the Roots Convention admitted the Anti-Bennett delegation from Phillips County. BENNETT refused to become the nominee of a separate convention, but referred the matter to the Republican voters at the polls. Not content with this outrage upon the Republicans of Phillips County, the Roots [illegible] put out a ticket against the Legislature, [illegible] that the people for Congress, [illegible] Democratic ticket, [illegible] Republican ticket. [illegible] show that the Governor did not, as charged in your special dispatch, defeat the Republican candidates for the Legislature, nor turn "almost the entire Republican vote against ROOTS, the nominee for Congress."

INSIDE PARIS.

Lord Hamilton's Visit to the Besieged City—The Elections—Remarks of Arago and Trochu—Final Results of the Ballot.

From Our Special Correspondent.

PARIS, Friday, Nov. 4, 1870.

The elections, as was anticipated, have resulted in an overwhelming majority in favor of the Government of National Defense. The figures given this morning are 275,234 "Yes" to 19,323 "No." This result is only partial, the reports from the several arrondissements not being complete, and the vote of the various army corps in and around Paris not having been sent in. The voting, yesterday, was conducted with the utmost calm, and there is no better proof of the progress of republicanism, that is, of the cause of order and progress in France, than is to be found in the attitude of the population of Paris on this occasion. No violence, no disturbance of any kind in any quarter of the city, every voter seemed impressed with the importance of his vote, and went with the utmost earnestness to give it in. The day will be a memorable one in French annals, for it stands out as a demonstration that a great change has been wrought in the character of the people by the horrible reverses resulting from an epoch of false splendor and of corruption. No military events have occurred since the retaking of Bourget by the Prussians and the unaccustomed silence of the cannon of the forts seemed to add a sort of dread solemnity to the ceremonial of the elections. The polls were closed at 6 in the evening; toward 7, the first results were made known at the Hotel de Ville. The grand place, in front of the building, was occupied at sunset by an imposing force of National Guards. In front of the Porte de l'Horloge, a spacious platform, covered with red cloth, had been erected, and as soon as any estimates of importance were known, the Mayor of Paris, M. ETIENNE ARAGO, made his appearance, accompanied by the two Assistant Mayors, (Adjuncts,) Messrs. HERISSON and CLAMAGERAN, and by Col. MOUTAGUT, of the National Guards. Twelve soldiers of the Mobiles and twelve National Guards bearing lighted torches formed the background of the platform. M. ARAGO was received with enthusiastic applause, and when silence prevailed he made the following address:

DEAR FELLOW-CITIZENS: This is the first time since the Republic of 1848 that the ceremony which you are assembled to witness has taken place on the Place de l'Hotel de Ville. The Mayor of Republican Paris has thought it well, in these solemn circumstances, to put the inhabitants, the defenders, the municipal Magistrates, in intimate communication. To-morrow, at 11 o'clock, in public session in the Hall of St. Jean, within the Hotel de Ville, will take place the official proclamation of the votes of the twenty arrondissements of Paris, of the communes that have taken refuge here, and of the Gardes Mobiles of the army. In the meantime, I decired to make known to you this evening, semi-officially, and allow me to say, in our family circle, what the result of the ballot, which has been cast at this moment, is 275,234, yes—19,323, no. Dear fellow-citizens, after a day which has afflicted the Hotel de Ville, the Government of Defense wished to submit itself to the test of universal suffrage. This test is favorable. Never has a government of short hour been approving by any Government. Your governors, emboldened by your suffrages, will gather new spirit to enable them to sustain, with indomitable energy, the honor of the country, and assure against all its enemies, the triumph of the Republic, one and indivisible. Honor to the City of Paris! "Vive la République!"

This short address was received with the greatest enthusiasm and with ten thousand cries of "Vive la République!" Immediately afterward, all the battalions of the National Guard proceeded to the Louvre to pay a visit of congratulation to Gen. TROCHU. The General, surrounded by all the members of the Government, made his appearance on the portico of the court of his residence, as soon as notice reached him of the honor intended—one which he and his colleagues, I may say in passing, could willingly have had deferred, fatigued and harassed as they were by the events of Monday night. Only about four thousand soldiers could find place in the spacious court, but room was made for the officers of half a dozen other regiments who desired to hear the speeches. Gen. TROCHU made a very brief soldierly speech:

"Citizens," said he, "you have given us the most imposing demonstration that I have ever received protesting that solemnly against the disgraceful violence of a most insupicious day. We did not wish to triumph. Your acclamations force us to depart from the reserve we desire always to maintain. In the name of the Government of National Defense I thank you! Citizens, let me add my cordial response to the cry of: 'Vive la Republique!' The Republic alone can save us, and I add, if we lose it we would be lost with it."

The General was interrupted frequently by the bravoes of his hearers; every arm was raised, every voice was heard in one cry of enthusiastic sympathy—one of the scenes deserving to be immortalized by the pencil of a great artist, to be placed by the side of the pictures in which MIRABEAU and the great men of the First Revolution figured. M. JULES FAVRE also spoke a few words, in which he again reiterated his declaration, "not an inch of territory to be ceded," which seems to augur ill for the success of the armistice. Another scene of "bravoes and waving of hands" succeeded, followed by the troops (those from the outside taking part) filing in order and presenting arms to the members of the Government. It was not until after 1 o'clock that this imposing manifestation came to a close, the last echoes of it reaching my windows from the Rue de Rivoli, across the Place du Carrousel, to my residence on the Quai.

RESULTS.

The results made known this morning at the Hotel de Ville give 321,573 Yes, 53,563 No. The number of No would not be so great if it were a question of choice between TROCHU and the Government of National Defense and the Flourens-Blanqui tribe. Many of the Noes disapprove of the inactivity of the army—want to make sorties and get massacred as a matter of course. The Noes may therefore be estimated as divided between a peck of wild, ambitious fanatics, and a class of ignorant pretenders to military science. It is impossible for an impartial observer not to be filled with admiration with the energy, the firmness, the unflinching courage of the members of the Government of National Defense. It seems impossible for them to have done more or better within the short period they have directed the State. There are strong rumors of the success of the armistice this evening, but I confess I have lost faith in it. There are no signs which indicate to me that a cessation of hostilities is possible.

SATURDAY, Nov. 5.

The final result of the vote in the army is as follows: 236,623 yes, 9,063 no; making 557,906 yes to 62,638 no.

Sale of the Baltimore Gas-Light Company—New-York Capitalists in the Field.

From the Baltimore Gazette, Nov. 22.

The announcement that a sale was yesterday made of the property and franchises of the Baltimore Gas-light Company to New-York capitalists will simply astound the community. The fact that the sale was rushed through almost without consultation with many of the stockholders, and that the directors came to the meeting pledged to carry out the terms of sale virtually agreed upon beforehand, is an extraordinary as it seems incomprehensible. There was no reason for such unseemly haste. There was scarcely any excuse for the curt uncourteousness with which the message from the Committee appointed by the first branch of the City Council, inquiring the price asked by the Company for its property, was received. There was no reason why the motion of Mr. GAHAGAN to postpone action for a few days should not have been adopted, especially when a majority of the gentlemen present were decidedly in favor of it. The directors had made up their minds to sell, and one of them, as a director, asserted that he considered it his duty, individually, to second, and that he would not accept an offer of $500,000 more from other parties. The sale was made to S. L. HERRIN, of New-York, who purchases for private capitalists, and declares that they have no connection whatever with the People's Gas Company. The terms of the sale are at the rate of $3,000,000 for the whole stock, 15,500 shares. The Company reserves all its surplus funds, amounting to over $700,000. Each stockholder will receive about $215 per share, it is said, on final settlement. As yet only 9,000 shares are [illegible]

NOTES FROM THE PEOPLE.

The Young Men's Christian Association Saturday Afternoon Concerts.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Permit the writer to thank you for your very just criticism of the opening Saturday afternoon concert, at Association Hall. It is unfortunate for the music-loving public that the gentlemen having the direction of these concerts do not interest themselves in giving a more attractive programme than that of last Saturday afternoon, or, in fact, of most any Saturday of last Winter. The talent employed has not been of the highest order either. It is to be hoped that the list of church tenors and obscure baritones will soon be exhausted, and that artists of known merit and popularity will take their places. If the low price of admission does not warrant an increased expenditure, pray allow us the privilege of spending half a dollar for a good concert. REX.

What Shall We Do With the Statue of Justice?

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Though our Courts have been held for a long time in the New Court-house, I notice that, with all the additions made, the Statue of Justice remains in her old position upon the City Hall, where justice used to be administered in the days of OAKLEY and DUER,) as if she clung with fondness to that spot where she was revered before our Judges became the tools of political knaves. We presume the omission arose from the fact that most of the Judges of the present day, have concluded to have nothing to do with that antiquated goddess—justice being an exploded idea in this City. It, however, the Court-house be finished without bankrupting the City, (a very doubtful question, if the past be a criterion of the future,) no doubt the gang of scoundrels who control our City, would like to have the image of Justice in the new building, so as to preserve the semblance of virtue at least. The great question will then be, Where shall the goddess be placed? We notice that inside of this building there are many circles and Hags, as if the idea of a ring was continually uppermost in the minds of those engaged in the construction of the so-called Court-house, "where injustice is sold for a price." Now, in the good old times, when the Courts were used to obtain what was right and just, the statue of a Justice" was placed on a pedestal surmounting the building, with her equal scales, not blind to all considerations except those of equity.

But now, it would seem more proper to place the goddess in the centre of the Ring in the rotunda of our new Court-house, to show the world that Justice is only administered within the Ring; and that those who expected to get their dues must get inside of the Ring, near the shrine of the goddess. She should no longer be represented as blind, but as a sharp-sighted damsel, with a good look-out for the biggest purse, as the weightiest argument in a case.

A Correction.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The telegram relating to the fortifications of Asoff in the morning papers evidently means Nicholaieff. Asoff is at the north-east extremity of the Sea of Asoff, and defends nothing, and is itself not worth defending. The Sea of Asoff has only seven fathoms in its deepest part, and is not safe for vessels larger than common gunboats. Possibly it may mean Kherson on the Dnieper, the ship-yard of the Black Sea, and near Nicholaieff, but as the Dnieper is not navigable for large ships, Kherson is not probable, but no one may stress should be laid on its being impregnable. W. J. R.

Mr. Spurgeon.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

DR. FOSTER, yesterday, in speaking of Mr. SPURGEON, says he entered London fourteen years ago. That is a mistake. Fourteen years ago Mr. SPURGEON preached in Dr. Burton's church in Fourteenth-street, Brooklyn. When he hired the hall at which Dr. FOSTER spoke I do not know. N. E.

A Timely Suggestion.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The holiday season being near for the "sport," as it is termed, of trying fowls to stones and otherwise, the undersigned would kindly, and in the spirit of humanity, remind all persons about to engage in this cruel and demoralizing pastime that it is contrary to law, and that the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has taken the necessary measures to enforce the same, by the arrest and punishment of offenders discovered in the violation thereof.

HENRY BERGH, President.

Young Ladies' Branch of the Ladies' Christian Union.

The Young Ladies' Branch of the Ladies' Christian Union, a report of whose monthly meeting appeared in the Times Oct 26, took possession of the suite of rooms corner of University-place and Ninth-street, which they have leased, on Nov. 1, and a few days saw the rooms were thrown open to those to whom the Society proposes to extend its aid. Their affairs are progressing finely, and quite a number of young women have availed themselves of the opportunities afforded by the Association, which are similar to those offered by the Young Men's Christian Association, the field of action of the "Ladies' Branch" being somewhat narrower than that of a similar class to those young men who are benefited by the labors of the Young Men's Christian Association. The rooms of the Society are large, well lighted, heated and ventilated; they are comfortably carpeted and furnished; and about 400 books have been donated to the library. Arrangements are to be made shortly for the magazines and papers. The dress-making and other departments are in active operation, the first-mentioned having given employment to quite a number of young women. Mrs. MARSHALL O. ROBERTS, Mrs. RILEY A. BRUCE and Mrs. JOHN VANDERBILT are the ladies who have been in attendance every day, and work with great persistence to forward the interests of their praiseworthy charity.

New-York Foundling Asylum Fair.

The grand Metropolitan Bazaar, in aid of the Foundling Asylum, is about drawing to a close, after three weeks of great success. No effort has been spared on the part of the good ladies charged in the undertaking to raise the anxiously-desired amount, $100,000. There is still, however, a deficiency of $25,000, and as the Fair will not close till Saturday, the charitably-minded have still an opportunity of aiding one of the most deserving institutions in the City. The Fair will be open today, and contributions will be thankfully accepted.

Obituary.

We regret to announce the death of M. ALBERT BERGER, the well-known importer. M. BERGER was a native of Gotzenbruck, in Lorraine, the first city which during the present Franco-German war fell into the hands of the Prussians. He was an ardent patriot, and one of the most zealous and generous promoters of the charitable subscription to alleviate the sufferings caused by the war in France. M. BERGER was thirty-nine years of age, and resided at Scotch Plains, N. J.

A Judgment Against "Erie."

Miss NEWBURGER has recovered a judgment against the Erie Railroad Company for $1,005 50, being the value of a trunk and contents which had been checked by the Company's agent, but never delivered to plaintiff. The cause was tried, yesterday, in Part II of the Superior Court, before Judge JONES and a jury. The defense set up was, that the lost baggage was not of the value alleged by Miss NEWBURGER. The jury found in favor of the plaintiff for the full amount claimed.

The Case of the Spanish Sailors—What Capt. Grindle Has to Say about Them.

B. V. CROOK, first mate of the ship Old Colony, was released on bail by Commissioner SHIELDS yesterday, Capt. GRINDLE becoming his bondsman. HUGH DOHERTY and WILLIAM McDONNELL, second and third mates of the same vessel, were remanded to Ludlow-street Jail. The three mates are charged, as already stated in the TIMES, by RAYMOND RAU, a Spanish sailor, with cruel and unusual punishment at sea. RAU and a fellow-seaman named FRANCO FRANK are now in custody, awaiting an examination on a charge of attempted mutiny and arson. Capt. GRINDLE is the complainant in their case. He denies the statements in regard to the alleged brutal treatment of the two sailors on his ship. He says that when he left Spain he was short-handed for men, and that he was compelled to take FRANK and RAU to help complete his crew. He soon found that they were bad men, and "shirked" their duty, placing the vessel in a perilous condition. On one occasion RAU was discovered with a razor in his possession, with which he threatened to kill a fellow seaman. At another time he deserted the lookout and broke into the hold for the purpose of hiding himself away in the cargo. On being found, some matches and powder were taken from him, with which, it is supposed, he proposed to fire the Old Colony. Capt. GRINDLE claims that the ill-health and suffering condition of RAU and FRANK were brought about by filthy habits on their part. He announces that he has sailed from this port for the last fourteen years without ever before being charged with ill-treating his sailors. The examination in the case will be continued in a few days, and it will be ascertained whether the officers or seamen are to blame.

DEPARTMENT OF PARKS.

Meeting of the Commissioners—Conditions of the Finances—The Zoological Gardens—Local Location—Other Improvements.

The Board of Commissioners of the Department of Public Parks, met on Tuesday afternoon, in stated session, with the President, Commissioner SWEENY in the chair, Commissioners HILTON and DILLON present.

Several communications were received and appropriately referred as follows:

From SHEPARD KNAPP, and others, property-owners at Washington Heights, petitioning for the laying out of an avenue between the Kingsbridge road and West Boulevards, north of One Hundred and Fifty-fifth street. Executive Committee to report thereon.

From the Engineer in charge of the Bureau of Civil and Topographical Engineering, relative to the organization of said Bureau; said the work in progress, which was laid on the table and ordered printed.

Treasurer HILTON presented an estimate of the amount of moneys required for surveys in the towns of Yonkers and West Farms, Westchester County, under the act of 1869, chapter 826, which was laid on the table and ordered printed, and resolutions were adopted, calling upon the Treasurer of said county to furnish moneys to carry out the provisions of said act.

From Commissioner FRANKLIN, relative to establishing a reading-room and public library at the Central Park, and proposing to donate a collection of pamphlets and magazines. Referred to the Executive Committee. From the Controller, submitting a statement of donations made to the Department, numbering 141 specimens of birds, which have been placed in the collection in the Museum at Central Park. From WM. P. MELLEN, donating a pair of antelopes.

Treasurer HILTON reported that Mr. ROBT. L. STEWART had donated a fine specimen of the Ancanceria Excelsior.

A report was received from the Executive Committee, relative to changing the grade of Fourth-avenue, below Eightieth and Eighty-ninth streets, which was laid on the table and ordered printed.

The Treasurer reported the condition of the finances, showing a balance in bank of $20,291 78, which was approved and ordered filed.

A report from the Executive Committee of their note and proceedings, also as to matters referred to them from time to time, was received and approved, as follows:

Resolved, That the President advertise for proposals for removing the Rotunda Building in the City Hall Park, and for the purchase of the materials comprising the same, the building to be removed within thirty days and the ground to be left in a level condition.

Resolved, That John J. Gannon be and he is hereby appointed Condition Engineer in this Department.

Whereas, The present grade established by law for the Eighth-avenue involves the reconstruction in a great degree of that portion of the Central Park lying adjacent to said avenue and One Hundred and Tenth street, including the various transverse roads and drives connected therewith, all which in general outline appears from the report of the Engineer-in-Chief to the Board, Sept. 27, 1870; and

Whereas, The changes required being so great, it is desirable that the reconstruction and alterations when entered upon by this Department, should be so arranged as to be unobtrusive to the public; therefore,

Resolved, That the plan of the Engineer-in-Chief's report upon the subject be printed for general distribution, and the same is hereby referred to him.

Resolved, That this Committee select and designate for the site of the Zoological Garden the meadow or green immediately north of the upper reservoir, and that the Engineer-in-Chief be hereby requested to submit plans for necessary and suitable buildings and structures thereon.

Resolved, That the Engineer-in-Chief and Fred. Law Olmsted be requested to call in the services of an architect-in-chief in locating the various structures and buildings to be erected in the Zoological Gardens and in devising their general plan and character.

Resolved, That the building formerly used as St. Vincent Restaurant be removed, and the ground be put in order.

A resolution was adopted relative to the organization of the Bureau of Landscape Gardening, and directing that a daily garden journal be kept of its operations, the work performed, the weather, the temperature of the greenhouses and propagating houses, and such other practical information as shall be directed to be ascertained and recorded.

Resolved, That the subjects following be referred to the Engineer-in-Chief, with power viz:

1. Completing the walks and roads on the City Hall Park.

2. Widening and improving State and Whitehall-streets, and the improvement of Battery-place and walks of the Battery as shown on the plan therefor of a previous report and adopted.

3. Completing Washington-square and the walks and drives in Central Park, as may hereafter be approved and adopted.

Resolutions were adopted, calling upon the Controller of the City for moneys for payment of work, services and materials for improving the several public squares and places, the Boulevard and other works under the control of this Department.

Resolutions were adopted ordering a walk to be laid out, connecting the main drive on Central Park, opposite the Museum Building, the Engineer-in-Chief to submit a plan thereof to the President, to whom the subject was referred with power; directing the Engineer-in-Chief to report a plan for paving and lighting the various transverse roads across the Central Park, with an estimate of the cost thereof; ordering the Park Commissioner to detail a police force and report all improper conduct or inattention to work or duty by any of the employes on the Central Park or any of the parks under the charge of this Department; also that the park and gate keepers at Central Park shall take notice of and report all obstructions and encroachments on the streets and avenues surrounding Central Park, and that no animals or vehicles be allowed to stand thereon, and to be forthwith removed when they interfere with the public travel; authorizing the Treasurer to enter into contract for compiling the Report of Sewers and Drains in the towns of Yonkers and West Farms, Westchester County; authorizing the President to contract for completing the Battery wall, stairways and basin; authorizing the Treasurer to sell the iron railing and stone on the Battery; authorizing the Treasurer to erect houses for keeping tools, &c., on the Battery; also at Tompkins-square; authorizing the Treasurer to repair the railing around Tompkins-square.

A communication was received from WM. M. TWEED, Commissioner of Public Works, relative to regulating and grading One Hundred and Twenty-second-street, between Sixth and Seventh avenues, and the same was ordered done by contract or otherwise. The Treasurer was authorized to purchase tree-boxes or guards to protect the trees on the borders of the various City Parks. The Treasurer was authorized to open and erect in Central Park cottages for the convenience of ladies and children, and to place additional conveniences upon the Central and the various City parks.

On motion of President SWEENY, it was resolved that an inclosure be erected around the statue of ABRAHAM LINCOLN, similar to that around the equestrian statue of WASHINGTON, and after some further routine business, the Board adjourned.

Kings County Supervisors—Action on an Insurance Job—Charges of Blackmailing, Bribery and Other Offences.

A meeting of the Kings County Board of Supervisors was held yesterday afternoon, Supervisor OSBORN in the chair. A communication from the members of the Bar was received, asking that the salaries of the Judges of the City Court be raised, in view of their recent increase of labor, from $5,000 to $7,000 per annum. The communication was referred to the Committee on Salaries. The salary of Mr. FRANK MALLISON, Clerk of the City Court, was fixed at $3,000 per annum. The Board of County Canvassers were authorized to have 1,000 copies of the official canvass printed. The important feature of the meeting was the presentation of a resolution by Supervisor OSBORN, directing the insurance agent for the county, E. J. LOBER, to transfer the policies on the County buildings, amounting to $500,000, from the Kings County Insurance Company to some other company. Supervisor CROOK denounced this as a job "put up" by LOBER and his friends for black-mailing purposes. In fact, the Supervisor insinuated that LOBER had been the Company in question and had tried to make them "come down" with a heavier percentage than they were willing to give, and that this move to transfer the policies was made simply in revenge. On hearing these remarks, Mr. OSBORN stated that there had been bribes made use of by the Company in question to secure the retention of the policies, and that as far as he knew the assertions made by Supervisor CROOK were groundless. On this point quite an interesting debate sprung up, the substance of which was that there was no person in the Board particularly immaculate, and that if Mr. LOBER was actuated by pecuniary considerations, he was neither better nor worse than those who opposed him. The entire matter was then referred to the Law Committee, and the Board adjourned.

The Exemption of Bonds and Mortgages from Taxation.

The State Board of Commissioners for the Revision of State Taxation gave a hearing yesterday morning, in this City, to a large number of gentlemen representing real estate owners and building associations on the subject of the exemption of bonds and mortgages on real estate from local taxation. It was represented that this exemption is already granted in Pennsylvania and New-Jersey, which, in fact, draws capital from the State of New-York, and that the high rate of local taxation imposed on mortgages, which are easily accessible, as matters of record, prevents capitalists at home from loaning on the description of security, and thus seriously limits the means for the development of City and State property. It is understood that these associations are to make an independent effort before the Legislature to procure the remission of the tax, and the object of the meeting was to induce the State Commission, of which Mr. DAVID A. WELLS is Chairman, (now engaged in investigating the subject of taxation,) to adopt a similar policy.

Anti-Tweed Movement in Elizabeth, N. J.

The people of Elizabeth have formed an anti-Tweed association, but the Councilmen opposed and betrayed the citizens, claiming that some of the latter pay no tax at all, while many of them pay but a small tax. The citizens have looked into the tax book, and find that ten Councilmen contribute with ten citizens in the following manner:

Attractive Instruction.

Before trying the plan of compulsory instruction, so strongly recommended by Mr. MUNDELLA, it may be well to test the efficacy of attractive instruction. If the school-room is made pleasant, adorned with pictures, enlivened by flowers and living plants, and the studies enlivened by the introduction of exercises that stimulate and quicken the mental powers, the children may enjoy the hours spent in school, instead of loathing

"The drilled dull lesson,
Forced down word by word."

They will, it is thought, seek the place that contributes to their mental gratification. To approximate to the ideal of a school was given on Tuesday at the "Avenue B" School, under the Children's Aid Society, by Miss ANDREWS, the teacher of the school. The exercises consisted of reading by the little ones a lesson thoroughly learned with almost perfect expression, the drawing of a picture that bid fair to stand with true proportion and great accuracy, cyphering, spelling many strange words, lessons on animals, singing, &c. The animal lesson was on the "Dragon Fly." Their observations on its thorax, sternum, mandibles, veined wings, &c., were worthy of cultivated students. Pleasure in this exercise was shown in a liveliness and spirit manifested in the eager looks, quick motions, prompt and intelligent answers that was very gratifying to the mothers of the children and the friends of education present. If this sort of enjoyable instruction was more general, and not left to the efforts and sacrifices of interested parents, there would be less need for compulsory education. There were present a number of the parents of the children, with C. L. BRACE, Secretary of the Society, and J. W. REINNER, Superintendent of the Schools.

Grammar School No. 34—Opening Exercises at the New School-house.

The new Grammar School No. 34, in Broome-street, between Sheriff and Willett streets, was formally opened yesterday by the distribution of the semi-annual certificates to the pupils of the different departments. The new school was recently completed at a cost of nearly $100,000, has capacity for the accommodation of 2,400 children, contains everything necessary to confer an advanced education, and possesses all the conveniences for the comfort of the scholars. The interior was neatly and aptly fitted up yesterday in honor of its inauguration, and the event attracted quite a large number of the friends and patrons of the institution. The exercises were conducted under the superintendence of the following trustees: Dr. J. H. Irvin, Frederick Holsten, Frederick Gedmann, Richard Evans, Mr. Lynch and Mr. Conn. The exercises comprised recitations, choruses, duets and solos, and the preliminary scales and fundamental elements the pupils acquitted themselves in a manner creditable alike to their intelligence and the efficiency and care bestowed on their education. The semi-annual certificates were given to twenty-five boys and about an equal number of girls. Prizes were also distributed, and addresses were delivered in praise of the excellent appearance of the school and the exhibition just witnessed. Major CODY made a very happy speech to the children, generally impressing on them the necessity of attention to the instructions of the excellent teachers that had been placed over, and a proper appreciation of the benefits the trustees had conferred upon them in furnishing them such a school. He advised the girls to pay but little heed to the teachings of the "strong-minded," and cautioned the boys to cherish for their models men of virtue and worth, rather than those worthless dandies who parade our principal thoroughfares. He commended them for their proficiency, and their teachers for efficiency, industry and care. The exercises concluded with prayer.

The Suit Against Jay Cooke & Co.—Motion for an Attachment.

The Government suit against JAY COOKE & Co. for the recovery of several thousand dollars, the value of several alleged spurious Seventy-thirty Bonds purchased from the latter at the Sub-Treasury, was before Judge BLATCHFORD, at the United States District Court, yesterday. Several letters belonging to the defense were produced by order of the Court, in which it was announced that the Government had prosecuted the bonds to be counterfeit, and that they, JAY COOKE & Co., intended to hold the parties from whom they had obtained the bonds responsible, in case the Government made any demand for the recovery of their value.

District-Attorney DAVIS said that he proposed to offer evidence to show that the bonds were tied, after which he moved for an attachment against Mr. FARNSWORTH, of the firm of JAY COOKE & Co., for contempt of Court, on the ground that he had attempted to keep back information from the Court which he was bound to give. Counsel for the defense characterized this motion as a high-handed proceeding. Judge BLATCHFORD subsequently said that he would hear the argument on the motion on Saturday.

UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT.

Argument in No. 240 was suspended, to be concluded Monday next, by arrangement between counsel and the Court proceeded to hear No. 220, William H. Seymour and D. S. Morgan vs. David M. Osborne et al.; appeal from the Circuit Court for the Northern District of New-York. This is a suit brought upon five distinct patents relating to improvements in reaping machines, and the automatic rakes and wheels connected therewith, the appellants claiming that the appellees were guilty of infringement. The Court below found for the defendants and dismissed the bill, and this appeal is taken to review that decision. It is admitted that the opinion below in favor of the appellees was founded upon the ground, mainly, that it seemed probable that neither the invention of the appellants nor that of their assignors was such as to justify their patents in covering mechanical equivalents; and the other in holding that certain cross-bars claimed by the complainants did not require invention. The Court held that the inventor of the appellants, assignor of the combination of the sweep-rake with the quadrant, shaped platform directly behind the cutting apparatus, was not the person who would entitle them to a patent covering mechanical equivalents in the means of combining those portions. This is the first error claimed above. The other point is, that neither the appellants nor their assignors were the first who had invented and described an automatic rake in combination with the cutting apparatus and other means of harvesting machines; that alleged invention being merely a combination of old parts which required no invention. Many other points are raised, mostly of a technical character. The main question, however, is as stated above, and insists that the patents involved in the suit are for mere effects or results, and not for any invention.

Geo. Gifford and E. A. Stoughton for appellants; D. Wyatt for appellees.

No. 241—Submitted on printed points—The Steamer Daniel Ball vs. The United States—Appeal from the Circuit Court for the Western District of Michigan—This was a libel of information in behalf of the United States against the steamer, to recover a penalty claimed to have been forfeited by the owners of the steamer, on account of not having procured an inspection thereof, and obtained a license while engaged in transporting passengers and merchandise on Grand River, in Michigan, as required by the Navigation acts. Two questions arose: Whether the steamer was running on navigable waters of the United States; and secondly, whether the statute was applicable to navigation on such waters between ports and places of the same State. The Court below held that the waters were navigable, and that the common law doctrine, which limits the jurisdiction of the Admiralty in this country, to the ebb or flow of the tide but upon the navigable capacity of the waters. On the second point it was held that as the voyage thought commenced and ended within the State, was a continuation of the transportation of freight, from one State to another, it formed a link in commerce among states, and the vessel so engaged is subject to the Navigation laws under which the proceeding was instituted. These are the questions to be revised, the Government claiming the correctness of the decision and the owners of the steamer contesting it.

A. T. Ackerman, Attorney-General, for Government; A. T. Molleyshin for appellees.

No. 242—Submitted on printed points.—Wm. H. Field, plaintiff, etc., vs. Wm. W. Rossington et al.—Error to the Circuit Court for the Eastern District of Arkansas—This is a suit by factors to recover certain advances made on merchandise left with them for sale. The only question involved is as to the time when they received certain instructions to sell before a definite time in price set. The factors claimed they did not receive the order till after the time had elapsed, and they were instructed to sell and they did not. The indictment was for the factors, and the plaintiff in error seeks to recover on the goods.

Stations and Rose for plaintiffs in error; A. H. Garland for defendants.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS—NOV. 23.

Before Judge Brady.

THE RIGHTS OF REAL ESTATE OWNERS UNDER THE TAX SALE LAW.

In re the Application of Patrick Callaghan to Referees to Assess for the Morningside Park.—An application was made recently before Judge BRADY, at the Supreme Court, Chambers, by one Patrick Callaghan, for an order to set aside an award made by the Commissioners in the matter of the "Morningside Park," on the ground that the land which had been taken belonged legally to him, and not to the person to whom the award was given, and who claimed to hold it by virtue of a tax lease. Judge BRADY has just decided the case against Mr. Callaghan, and, in an elaborate opinion, holds that the award made by the Commissioners, having been confirmed by the Court, after due notice was given to all parties interested, is final and binding. Yet, although final in regard to the condemnation proceedings, he says it is not conclusive as to the rights of claimants inter sese, so that the applicant is not without remedy. He can, by action, accomplish the object of his application, and by the interposition of the Court, the rights of the parties can be fully protect his rights, if it be, as alleged, that the lease executed by the City authorities of the sale for taxes was a nullity. In view of the questions presented, the Court, in his opinion, thinks that it is not necessary to consider whether the Commissioners were right in recognizing the lease presented, and changing their award. He thinks the rule laid down in Bloodgood vs. Mott, 7 Cowen, 279, gives the authority for changing the award. Although there are adverse claimants, it is the proper and the better course to award to unknown owners.

Before Judge Barnard.

MOTION TO ADMIT TO BAIL.

A motion was made, before Judge BARNARD, at the Supreme Court Chambers, to admit Adam Langfried to bail on a conviction for the felony, on his writ of habeas corpus and certiorari obtained by Mr. Wm. F. Howe, counsel for the prisoner. From the papers in the case it appears that Langfried kept a bakery in Ludlow-street, and on the evening of the 19th inst. a number of rough persons entered his shop and made an assault upon his customer; that during the mêlée he used his pistol, and shot one James Singleton so that he died in a few minutes; that he fled from the City, subsequently the Grand Jury found an indictment for murder. A bench warrant was then issued against Langfried, who, meantime, had been set at liberty on bail, which was forfeited, and put in the Tombs. The object now is to get him out, on the condition that good bail is tendered.

District-Attorney Garvin opposed the motion, and in the course of his remarks said that the facts, as he had been developed, tend to show a case of willful murder.

The Court after an examination of the evidence, denied the application, the prisoner remanded and the prisoner remanded to the City Prison.

SUPREME COURT—CIRCUIT—PART I.—NOV. 23.

Before Judge Van Brunt and a Jury.

THE DEFUNCT COLUMBIAN INSURANCE COMPANY—AN INTERESTING LITIGATION.

Osgood et al. Receivers vs. Maguire.—This action was brought by the receivers of the Columbian Insurance Company, to recover on two promissory notes which the defendant gave to the Company, one dated July, 1865, payable twelve months after its date, and the other, on the same date, for insurance on the defendant's vessel. It will be remembered that the Company failed, and was put into the hands of a receiver in the fall of 1866. The defendant admitted the execution of the notes, but claimed that he had been defrauded by the Company, and that he had paid the premiums on the policies, for which the notes were given, in the belief that they were good policies, and that the Company had no authority to issue them. The defendant also claimed that the Company had received and had the benefit of the premiums, and that the Company had no jurisdiction to dissolve the Company, nor to appoint receivers; that the only way in which a corporation could be wound up was by a suit in the name of the Attorney-General, strictly in the manner provided by statute. The defendant also claimed that the plaintiffs were not authorized by any statute, and that the Court

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE WAR.

Advices from Paris dated the 13th report an encounter between French sharp-shooters and a Prussian force, at Champigny, three miles south of Vincennes, in which the Germans were repulsed and a quantity of stores destroyed by the French. Dispatches from Versailles, by way of London, also report skirmishes in which the French were victors. All foreigners are strictly forbidden to leave Paris, including citizens of neutral countries. The Indépendance Belge has balloon advices from Paris to the 19th, in which the morale of the people is said to be good. Engineers engaged in front of Fort d'Ivry were fired on by the Germans, the guns of Forts Vanve and d'Issy returning the fire. The Germans are said to be massing near St. Denis, on the northern side of Paris. No news from Tours had been received in the capital since Oct. 24. A Prussian force 1,500 strong, was routed yesterday at Vernon, on the Paris and Havre Railroad, about forty-two miles from Paris. The presence of German troops near Argenton, about seventy-five miles due south of Orleans and fifty south-east of Tours, is reported in London telegrams of yesterday. Le Mans is also threatened by a force of three thousand Prussians. Nogent-le-Rotron, midway between Chartres and Le Mans, is occupied by Germans in strong force. Encouraging news for the French was received in London yesterday from the north of France. The Prussians are said to have abandoned the sieges of Mézières and Montmédy and gone toward the interior of France. In Lille the inhabitants have prepared for a siege. The manufacture of arms is actively carried on there. The commands of Gens. BOURBAKI, FERRY and MICHEL have been consolidated under Gen. FARRE. A Berlin telegram says the Schleswig elections have resulted in favor of candidates who support annexation to Denmark. The annexation of Bavaria to the North German Confederation is imminent, according to a London dispatch. The treaty annexing Wirtemberg was signed yesterday. Rumors are in circulation in London of a renewal of the efforts to secure an armistice.

THE EASTERN QUESTION.

A special dispatch to the London Times from Constantinople says that the Sublime Porte has invoked the interposition of the treaty Powers. Other dispatches represent her to be anxious to avoid hostilities, and to have urged the treaty Powers to consider the demands of Russia. She is even represented to be willing the Black Sea should be opened. The London Morning Post of yesterday, claims to have confirmatory information that Italy will act with England and Austria. The rumor of a reply from Russia is distinctly denied from the British Foreign Office. The Czar, in reply to an address from a Lithuanian regiment, on Tuesday, said he hoped there would be no war, but if there should, then the Lithuanians would again prove their known devotion. Commercial circles in St. Petersburg are represented to be confident that there will be no war with England. Another financial flurry was experienced in London yesterday, in consequence of the rumor that Russia had sent a hostile reply to the circular of Earl GRANVILLE, and the market for American securities and stocks fell flat. In a letter to the London Times, yesterday, the Duke of CLEVELAND argues against a war between England and Russia, in support of which he says Great Britain has no army for foreign service, and no allies except Austria and Turkey, both of whom are bankrupt. It is semi-officially denied from Vienna that Austria has proposed a conference on the Eastern difficulty. Austrian soldiers, whose term of service has expired, are not discharged, but are granted a furlough in case it may be necessary to call them out again. COUNT ANDRASSY, in the Hungarian Diet on Tuesday, declined to give any information regarding the negotiations with Russia on the Eastern difficulty. Advices from Calcutta say the threatened complications with Russia have prostrated business, and the market being overstocked with Manchester goods heavy losses are expected.

WEST INDIES.

The announcement of AOSTA's election to the Spanish throne was received with great enthusiasm at Havana. Salutes were fired, and the city given up to festivities. Today there is to be a reception at the palace, and on Sunday there will be a grand review of troops.... Gen. DE RODAS got 3,600 negroes at liberty, yesterday.... The vote for eighteen members of the Cortes will be taken in Cuba as soon as the electoral lists are completed....There was a collision on the Matanzas Railroad on Monday, by which five persons were killed and nine injured.

News from San Domingo is to the 9th inst. BAEZ had defeated CABRAL in a battle near the south-western frontier. The Haytians are assisting the latter in the hope of overthrowing BAEZ before the meeting of our Congress. Should San Domingo be annexed by the United States, it is said thousands of persons will emigrate thither from Central and South America.....A coolie expedition is organizing at Jamaica, destined for St. Thomas.

GENERAL.

The latest advices from China speak of the insincerity of the Government, and declare that the perpetrators of the Tien-tsin massacre are still unpunished. The Germans had been expelled from Cochin China, and the country declared in a state of siege.

Memorial observances in honor of the late ROBERT E. LEE were held at Raleigh, N. C., yesterday. A eulogy was pronounced by Ex-Gov. VANCE.

LEWIS CARTER was sentenced to one month's imprisonment at Cincinnati, yesterday, for preventing a colored man from voting.

Six inches of snow fell at Cincinnati on Tuesday night.

The next Illinois Legislature will be composed of thirty-two Republicans and eighteen Democrats in the Senate, and 103 Republicans and seventy-seven Democrats in the Lower House.

An incendiary fire occurred at Tompkinsville, Staten Island, yesterday morning, attended by a loss of $2,000.

Mr. SCHAFER, one of the men assaulted and terribly cut by JOHN DONOVAN, in a brewery at Buffalo, a few days ago, died yesterday morning.

The Canal Commissioners have resolved to close the canals of the State on the 8th of December.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has resolved to guarantee the bonds for building four iron steamers for the new line between Philadelphia and Liverpool.

Hon. WM. GASTON has been nominated by the Democrats for the next Mayor of Boston.

RODNEY W. DANIELS, Collector of Customs at Buffalo, is charged with using the public funds for his private business, and a Treasury Agent is in charge of his office.

The issue between the Maine Central and Belfast and Moosehead Lake Railroad has been decided in favor of the latter. The trouble arose from a lease of the latter road to the former, and a complaint that the conditions were not observed.

The Governor has appointed Col. SAMUEL WILLIAM JOHNSON, of Westchester County, late commandant of the Sixty-third Regiment of the National Guard, Commissary-General and Chief of Ordnance, in place of Brevet Major-Gen. WM. H. MORRIS, resigned.

We are indebted to Capt. SCHWENSEN, of the Hamburg steam-ship Westphalia, which reached this port yesterday, for valued additions to our continental files.

Thanksgiving Day.

PHILIP AUGUSTUS, in a play too seldom acted, is made to say that "for the right" every place is a temple and all seasons Summer. Our old enemy, Lord GRENVILLE, in urging a certain petition, the tune of moving which was said by its opponents to be ill-chosen, thus spoke in Parliament in 1805: "I answer, this year is the proper time—next year is the proper time—the year after, and every year, is the proper time." And so we may say of our Thanksgiving that all times and places are appropriate for it. To-day is the proper time—and to-morrow—and every day, to feel and to express gratitude for the mercies which are showered down upon us. Yet that a day should be set apart exclusively for this purpose—to bring out the general sentiment of the people on such subjects, and to furnish occasion for the scattered members of families to gather together around the home hearth—is a good thing in itself, and has always had a strong hold upon popular sympathies.

A certain austere objection to the ancient Church festival of Christmas gave to the earlier New-England Thanksgivings a peculiar fascination. The Pilgrim Fathers and their children were exiles, who had left behind them the jollity and the cheer with the holly and the mistletoe of the Old Country Christmas-tide. The exiles looked back on the flush, and warmth, and merriment of this festivity with regret, perhaps, but also with something of bitterness. They who were chiefs of the Church, and leaders in the land wherein such anniversaries were no less conspicuous a feature of social life than a sign of religious doctrine, were persecutors and contemners of their dissenting brethren who sought the "rock-bound coast" of a newer England, where they could worship their Creator as they saw fit, and could believe on Him. Happily, prejudice founded on such harsh memories has faded away almost into tradition. Both Christmas and Thanksgiving are celebrated now in Plymouth, and all over the land. The descendants of those who prayed with COTTON MATHER, and fought with MILES STANDISH, are as ready to do reverent honor to one day as to the other; and the fact that in so doing they gain two festivals instead of one, considering the few holidays we can enjoy, affords additional ground for congratulation.

Thanksgiving Day remains, however, the day of days for New-England and her children. It moves the latter as does no other day in the year. Whether toiling among cotton and sugar plantations in the far-off South, or delving for gold in dim caverns in the more distant Sierras, or chasing the whale through the bleak, inhospitable waters of the Arctic and Antarctic seas, wanderers from New-England homes set as much store by Thanksgiving as those they have left at comfortable firesides behind them. It is the day best remembered in childhood for happy reunion, for laughter and good cheer, as well as for its more serious purpose. The day of plump turkeys, and pumpkin pies, and minced pies, of richly-browned sausages, and cranberries, and crisp white celery, and a hundred other dainties, not forgetting the national and indispensable pork and beans. Such joys are not, indeed, for the miner, or the whaler, or for the traveler over the lonely prairie. But the spirit is with these exiles, if the creature comforts are not, and their hearts turn on this anniversary toward their stern but kindly native hills with something of the reverence and more than the affection with which the true believer in MOHAMMED turns his eyes toward Mecca.

Whether at home or abroad, on land or sea, Americans have very much for which to be earnestly thankful. With overflowing granaries, and cotton bags bursting with the wealth within, with a well-stored treasury and a national credit rising day by day, with an extent of available territory whose productiveness dazzles the imagination, while its development is yet in its infancy, the prosperity of the community at large is abundantly assured. Here, more than anywhere else meanwhile, the progress of the individual depends on his own exertions, and the facilities for his rise to competency have neither limits nor parallel. And when we think of our civil strife happily ended, under circumstances that preclude forever its renewal, and look out upon the jarring nations of the Old World—where all who are not actually fighting have their hands on the sword ready to pluck it from the scabbard, or expect daily to be forced to do so,—we have good reason, while grieving for bloodshed and destruction anywhere, to rejoice over the contrast. To rejoice is in one way to give thanks; yet we may hope that a true spirit of devoutness will inspire and elevate the merry-makings of today throughout our favored country. It is good to reflect that tens of thousands of firesides this day will be enlivened by pleasantness, and mirth, and innocent revelry; and none who rightly measure the purpose of life will think it a cloud upon their joy to keep in mind also their responsibility—to remember whose is the authority for the solemn declaration, that from those unto whom much is given much also will be required.

The "Mission" of the Republican Party.

Gen. BUTLER insists that the home mission of the Republican Party has ended, and that its continued usefulness depends upon the promptitude and vigor with which it addresses itself to the task of adjusting "great international and foreign questions." His method of adjustment is the adoption of a policy of non-intercourse with Great Britain,—with war as the inevitable result. Gen. SCHENCK, on the other hand, contends that the Republican Party has yet a great work before it at home, in the adjustment of fiscal and financial questions, in the development of our resources, in the application of just and economical measures to the administration of the Government, and in a reform of the civil service that shall divest domestic politics of their most corrupting influence. He sees the need of great reforms, and the magnitude of results that are contingent upon peace and prosperity; and he recognizes in the record and aims of the Republican Party proofs of its fitness for the performance of this task. The difference between these views seems to us the difference between demagoguism and statesmanship.

No party can be truly described as destitute of a mission so long as it adapts legislation to national wants, and honorably and efficiently administers the Government. Sensations are not essential to the vindication of a party, or the prosperity and contentment of the country. The fewer we have of them the better for both. When the time comes in which a party so utterly fails to realize the opportunities afforded by peace as to seek in war a justification of its continued existence, we may be quite sure that it had reached the verge of destruction. War is bad enough when unavoidable. To plunge into it merely for partisan effect would be to incur the execration of mankind. The wickedness that suggests it is equaled only by the poverty of resources which finds no scope for action in domestic affairs. We have happily passed through the vicissitudes of a great conflict, and have ample room for effort in the restoration of interests that have been impaired, and the revision and reconstruction of a policy forced upon us in a great emergency. The Republican Party has done something in this direction already, and if true to itself it will yet accomplish more. The condition of our industry and commerce, of our finances and taxation, would alone call for capacity and skill on the part of Congress and the Executive. A country like this—so marvelous in its growth and in the diversity of its resources, with great interests to be built up and great problems to be solved—has a mission peculiarly its own; and that party will best retain public confidence which evinces the wisest appreciation of the work to be performed. The Democratic Party has been spurned because its policy is obstructive and disorganizing. The Republican Party prospers because its policy has vitality and is progressive.

The unity of the party being essential to its success, we cannot wonder at the failure which attends attempts to identify it with narrow opinions and to limit its action within narrow grooves. The high tariff men who have tried to tie the party to the fortunes of monopolists, never found much encouragement and never will. An organization like that which lifted Gen. GRANT into the Presidency exists for other than sinister purposes. The free traders, who are now endeavoring to mold the party according to their fancy, will exemplify afresh the same lesson. They have not even a plausible pretext for taking a course that tends to dissention. If the tariff were a needless burden, there would be some reason in a movement to hasten its abrogation. Free traders might then demand a decision for or against protection as a principle. But the issue is inadmissible. The country relies, and, for years to come must rely, upon the Customs' revenue to meet imperative wants of the Government. The more candid of the free traders admit the fact. Mr. ATKINSON, who may be called one of the fathers of the movement for "revenue reform," so confessed at Boston, where the movement first appeared. While, then, the free-trade issue might be relevant as against the protectionist issue, it is so manifestly out of place in existing circumstances that its discussion cannot possibly lead to any useful result. And unless revenue reformers are free-traders in disguise, why vex the Republican Party with efforts which menace its integrity without the faintest prospect of achieving any practical good?

The expediency of reducing the revenue as fast and as much as possible is not denied by any considerable section of the party. Wide apart on almost all other questions, Messrs. SCHENCK and BUTLER are agreed on this. They recognize, in common with ninety-nine men out of every hundred, the paramount necessity of reducing taxation to the lowest practicable point. The doctrine that taxes must be imposed to pay off debt in advance of its maturity, was repudiated last session, and will be repudiated again in the session that is about to begin. Mr. SCHENCK's declarations upon this point may not be agreeable to Mr. BOUTWELL, but they harmonize with the Republican policy, and do much to explain its hold upon the convictions of the people. The tariff felt the effect of this policy to the extent of twenty-six millions of dollars out of the eighty million dollars reduced in the current year; and when the internal burdens are restricted to whisky and tobacco, as they soon will be, the tariff will be subject to further changes. The precise nature of these changes will be a fair subject of discussion, and there should be no difficulty in coming to terms, as between different sections of the party. Ultra free traders and ultra protectionists may be alike dissatisfied, but their relative strength is too small to make them formidable. Unless determined to be mischievous, they will be content to work within the party, and to abide by the compromise which the exigencies of the Government render necessary. Since there must be a tariff, the point to be aimed at is the construction of a scale of duties which shall combine productiveness with an incidental regard for the claims of domestic industry. The adjustment of this scale is part of the mission that remains to the Republican Party. It is a part which may be advantageously considered and settled within the party lines, and which will certainly not be promoted by schemes of reorganization, or talk directed against the maintenance of the party's unity.

Latest Phase of the Eastern Question.

Turkey has invoked "the interposition of the guaranteeing Powers" of the treaty of 1856. This simply means that the Sublime Porte and its allies have adopted a definite line of policy, and intend to abide by it. A treaty that was the joint production of a European Conference, can only be annulled by the same power that gave it birth. The first Russian frigate that enters the Black Sea will constitute the "overt act" that is the signal for war. Such was the original position of the English Cabinet, and the present echo from Constantinople is only important in so far as it shows that the position has not been receded from. Turkey moves at the bidding of Downing-street, and this prompt action on the letter of the treaty is intended to convince Russia that on her forthcoming reply are staked the issues of peace or war. In spite of various rumors to the contrary, it is necessary to bear in mind that no official reply to the note of the British Cabinet is as yet forthcoming. The Turkish demand closes the last avenue that was open for an escape from the emphatic negative given to the claims of Russia. In the full knowledge of what this means, the reply of Prince GORTSCHAKOFF has probably already been penned, and the world will shortly know whether it means war, peace or temporizing.

It must not be forgotten that the possibilities of the threatened conflict are gravely affected by the situation in France. The existence of an understanding between Russia and Prussia may be accepted as a certainty. The capacity of France for resistance is, to say the least of it, suffering no apparent diminution. If Prussia places herself on the Eastern question in a position hostile to the majority of her coignatories, they will certainly not hesitate to aid in the revival of the shattered energies of France. If Prussia cannot side with Russia without loosening her grasp on her prostrate foe, she will probably use her influence to bring Russia to a more pacific line of policy. At present, the whole question is in precisely that position of suspense where the slightest pressure on either side may determine its ultimate issue.

Whitewashing in the Methodist Book Concern.

This is the age of whitewashing. The foreign conspirators of the World, after attacking our excellent City Government last Spring, are now on their knees before the Tweedites in rapt adoration. We are positively assured that they wear silk masks and short daggers. It is incomprehensible why Superintendent KELSO does not look after them. They have been bought, it appears, with TWEED's greenbacks and British gold, which is perhaps as honest a way of coming by money as robbing a till. A paper which has lost money from its start is still in a position to provide funds by a circuitous method for the construction of "palatial mansions," not forgetting the stables. So that in this case the game of calling Tweed & Co. swindlers one day, and fancies the next, can at best be made remunerative. The till has assumed very large proportions—that's all.

This desire of the World,—which, by the bye, can no longer pretend to represent the Democracy even of the City of New-York, since the Herald has taken away most of its readers and all its former influence—this desire, we say, was not worth imitating, yet some people have been foolish enough to try what they could do in the same line. Mr. J. J. ASTOR and Mr. MOSES TAYLOR undertook to whitewash Controller CONNOLLY, but, found that somehow the color would not stick. They might as well have tried to wash a black-a-moor white. Undeterred by this second failure, the Methodist Book Concern must needs step into the field with brush and bucket. How this came about we can very shortly explain.

Two years ago a robbery of about a couple of thousand dollars was committed on the premises of the Methodist Book Concern. Suspicion fell upon a certain person, not connected with Mr. TWEED's newspaper, the World, who was dismissed from his employment. In August last another robbery of sixty thousand dollars was committed in the same establishment. Some time afterward, a large portion of the property was recovered, through the instrumentality of one of the officers of the Book Concern, who declined to give any information about the thief.

A Committee was appointed to inquire into the affair, and as the sage result of its deliberations, it recommended that no steps should be taken toward the arrest or punishment of the thief. Such is the way in which to further the cause of morality and justice, according to the ideas of the managers of the Methodist Book Concern. People will, of course, say that they were trained at the office of Mr. TWEED's newspaper. This, however, would be unjust to the Managers and Committee of the Book Concern. They may not be the wisest of mankind, but they are not so bad as the hypothesis in extenuation would suggest.

Such, however, being their views with regard to thieves, we cannot be surprised that they entertain an invincible repugnance toward men who endeavor to bring thieves to justice. Consequently, they suspended Dr. LANAHAN, because he had the audacity to bring certain frauds to light in the internal management of the Methodist Book Concern. Their principle is to shield offenders—nay, even to encourage them, if necessary. If anybody robs them, they tell him to do it again—perhaps on the principle of turning the other cheek to the smiter. The only person against whom they entertain a grudge is the person who informs against rascals. Spare the evil-doer—but punish the man who desires to see the Book Concern honestly conducted. That seems to be the theory on which the treatment of Dr. LANAHAN is based.

The Church and the public, however, are very much indebted to Mr. GOODENOUGH for bringing an action for slander against Dr. LANAHAN. It will probably explain some of the mysterious transactions to which we have referred, and enable the community to judge of the character of the mismanagement in the Book Concern, and the amount of the losses which have occurred in some of the departments.

The Ring Expanding.

Unless averted by some fortunate combination, the political plague whose ravages, thus far, have found fit food among New-York's unresisting tax-payers, will not only scourge the other cities of the State, but seize upon the entire municipal system of the country. There is something contagious as well as "cohesive" in the power of public plunder, and it would seem certain that, if over a circle was in process of indefinite expansion, the infamous Tammany Ring is that circle.

At Albany, notoriously, the corrupt politicians have had full sway for years, until the very atmosphere of that city is foul with the malaria of political pestilence. No less than in our own local government, these Tammany Ring-masters rule in the councils of the State, and sway Assemblymen and Senators there, as though they were, like the cormorants of our Common Council, mere tenants-at-will of TWEED & Co.

In other cities of the State the tactics of the Ring are becoming the rule of action on the part of local officials, whom a Winter at Albany, or a careful study of our Aldermanic minutes, has infected with the disorder. Quietly, but with a deadly certainty, the infamous system is spreading, (and in localities which least suspect their danger,) until such time as secrecy shall be no longer needful; when the mask will be thrown off, and these swindlers will suddenly confront whole communities of victims.

As though the Tweedites made a merit of being methodical, and were laying their siege by regular rule, Westchester County has been overrun and partially captured by their skirmishers, and is now in process of systematic sequestration. Uncalled-for improvements are improvised for the purpose of creating jobs and plundering contracts; assessments are levied upon all sorts of pretexts, and with an effrontery of extortion as unblushing as though there were no such thing as the right of property; taxes have been imposed so excessive in amount, and so unreasonable in their character, as to be little better than confiscation itself; the purity of the ballot-box has been laughed to scorn, and, in short, certain portions of the county have been degraded politically to a level with our own Sixth Ward.

That the influence of this system should have extended to that State of steady habits, Connecticut, is not matter of wonder, when we consider that the merest rivulet separates that Commonwealth from the county last named, and also that several of the leaders in the "Ring" have their lairs at Greenwich and Norwalk. Moreover, is not the most devoted Tweedite of them all a resident in a ducal palace at the latter place, and the chosen representative of Fairfield County in the Senate of Connecticut? New-Haven, therefore, and Hartford, the alternate seats of legislation, may be said to be already invaded; and that the legislators themselves have no fear of the strictures is manifest from the avidity with which they last Spring accepted the Ring's invitation to visit the dells and arbors of our Central Park. To be sure there was a little resistance manifested at first on the part of these virtuous rustics,—but, saying they would ne'er consent, they finally consented. The complete capture is now simply a question of time. If this be doubted, let us ask Connecticut to mark our prediction, that next Spring the callow statesman she has admitted to her Senate will be a member of the national Legislature, and will represent the Ring really, and the Commonwealth nominally, as one of Connecticut's delegation in Congress.

Surely, the logic of such events as are thus occurring around us on every side should be effective in opening the eyes of the most indifferent to the crisis which is now impending. The moves we have pointed out are only intended to enable these political gamblers to get the game into their own hands, and are the mere preliminaries which promise them, they think, the full control. They move steadily, and none too stealthily, upon Washington itself; and once intrenched there, corruption will flow broadcast over the land.

A Cry from a Real Estate Owner.

A correspondent asks us to tell him why the World recently published an article of two columns to depreciate the price of real estate on the very day an important sale was announced? He thinks that somebody must have made it worth the while of the World to take this course. He says that the World was paid a good round sum of money to throw over BLAIR, and again another sum to vindicate TWEED, SWENNY & Co. from its own attacks. Perhaps so—but the writer has not reached the bottom of the matter. The truth is, and we announce it with horror, that the World is hatching a frightful plot. It designs to bring down the price of all American securities and property in the interests of foreigners. The idea is to "bear" all stocks and real estate, and then restore the British Government on Manhattan Island, with the Prince of WALES at its head. The plan was suggested to a correspondent of the World in the course of a recent interview with the Queen at the Tower of London, and the particulars of the conversation were sent over the cable the same night, but so many "cable messages" had been manufactured in the office of the World that evening that there was no room for the genuine one. The Queen, it is said, gave the World correspondent the celebrated Koh-i-noor diamond for his trouble in writing out the message. This conspiracy, we trouble to add, also includes the revival of the Heptarchy on American soil. The World will for the future divide its favors equally between TWEED the First and ALBERT the Second. The City Hall has been completely undermined, and persons connected with the World staff are stationed at midnight in all the subterranean passages, each one seated on a barrel of gunpowder. The editor of the World himself has retired to a distance to watch the effects of the explosion. These are facts—and now, perhaps, our correspondent understands the attempt to run down the price of real estate, and all other property in this City.

Widening Broadway.

The hearing of tax-payers on the motion to confirm the report of the Commissioners for widening Broadway has been postponed till the 20th of December. This whole "job" of widening Broadway, like most other so-called "improvements" in this City, was concocted to facilitate "Ring" speculations in real estate, and the reason the confirmation of the Commissioners' report was postponed, was because TWEED, SWENNY and their associates have not yet completed their purchases of property on the line of the improvement. The confirmation or rejection of the report will probably depend on whether the Ring negotiations for a successful private speculation meet with a satisfactory result. At any rate, neither the interests of the City nor of property-owners not in the "Ring" will be likely to be considered in determining the question. Mr. JOEL FITHIAN, it seems, has resigned his place on the Commission, to which he was appointed on the withdrawal of Mr. MURPHY. The "job" was too bare-faced for Mr. FITHIAN, and he consulted his own reputation in getting out of it as soon as possible.

MINOR TOPICS.

Official returns of the late election from all the counties in the State show a falling off in the vote for Governor of nearly eighty-five thousand, as compared with the vote in 1868. Of this number the Republicans lost about forty-five thousand, and the Democrats forty thousand. Deducting the fraudulent Democratic vote cast in 1868, which was not less than thirty thousand in this City and the towns on the line of the Hudson River, we find that the Democrats polled at the late election within ten thousand of their vote two years ago, while the Republicans fell behind forty-five thousand. It is clear, therefore, that the Democracy owe their success entirely to the apathy of their opponents. Had the Republicans gone to the polls as generally this Fall as they did in 1868, WOODFORD would have been elected by a majority of several thousands.

If there should be another European war, the irrepressible and incomprehensible Schleswig-Holstein question may be expected to form one of the elements in the seething mass of international debate that will be stimulated into activity. It may be remembered that one of the provisions of the Austro-Prussian treaty of 1866 provided for the settlement of the question of the Elbe Duchies by a popular vote. As was recalled by the French Emperor, at the outbreak of the present war, this provision has been hitherto neglected by Prussia. Indications drawn from the result of the elections in Schleswig show that the Anti-Prussian feeling is once more in the ascendant, and that annexation to Denmark is now, apparently, the will of the people.

It is said that the Madras army is under orders to move at a moment's notice, probably because of the threatening complications with Russia. This is truly an alarming announcement. The likelihood of that army being detached from its ordinary duties can be inferred from an examination of what it consists of, and the duties it has to perform. It consists of eleven hundred odd Colonels and Majors, two hundred Captains, sixty Lieutenants, forty-one battalions of native infantry, reduced to a strength of about five hundred effectives in each battalion. These troops garrison Chusa, Burmah and the Madras Presidency, doing the same work, after a fashion, as the old army of five years ago with fifty-eight regiments of a thousand strong. The small European force in the Presidency—three brigades of artillery, one regiment of cavalry and four of infantry—is not too large to keep such a vast territory in order, especially with a hot-bed of fanaticism and sore of Adullam as the Nizam's capital of Hyderabad. An army could no doubt be raised, if required, and there are certainly officers of the higher grades to spare. In this direction the Turkish troops might well be supplied with experienced leaders, accustomed to Orientals, and acquainted with a kindred language. The Capt. BEYLES who defended and fell at Silistra, was a Madras officer on furlough.

The great German Confederation is rapidly crystallizing into shape. Wirtemberg has followed Hesse-Darmstadt, and Bavaria, the last of the South German states, is about to follow Wirtemberg. Any one who has noted the intense virulence with which the ultramontane leaders of South Germany have from time to time assailed Prussia, will readily understand that the triumphs of the German armies in France have had a radex as well as a direct effect. Sedan deposed the Catholic parties of South Germany as completely as it did NAPOLEON III.

Not content with the feats of cable dispatch legerdemain, the World seems determined to reduce the whole science of journalism to a perpetual drawing upon the imagination for one's facts. An interview with the trunks of Senator SUMNER, tending to the revelation of sundry remarkable sentiments of the owner, is the latest achievement of this peculiarly inventive journal. Perhaps the World will next favor an admiring community with, say, the mystic utterances of Mr. TWEED's boots, with which it may reasonably be expected to be quite familiar.

The Committee on Protests of the Board of Canvassers were engaged yesterday afternoon and evening in taking testimony on the returns from the Seventh Assembly District. The testimony was to the effect that in one instance two of the inspectors, a Republican and a Democrat, went out of the room for a moment before the votes for Assemblyman were counted, leaving the third inspector, a Democrat, to guard the ballots. There is no pretence that he tampered with the votes in any way, and had he done so, being a Democrat, he would not have been likely to do it in the interest of the Republican candidate. Nevertheless, the retirement of the two inspectors, even for a moment, is alleged to be a violation of the strict letter of the law, and on this ground the canvassers are asked to throw out the vote of the entire district. It was also proved, by affidavit of one READ, that in another district a man named TEBUER, who was not an inspector, assisted in counting the votes. The Committee refused to allow Mr. TWOMBLY's counsel, Hon. THOMAS R. SEWARD, time to procure the affidavit of TEBUER contradicting READ's statement, but closed the testimony abruptly, and will doubtless report on Friday in favor of CAREY, the Democratic candidate. The "Ring" have evidently determined that Mr. TWOMBLY shall be "counted out" at all hazards, in order to give them a majority in the Assembly; but they know perfectly well, and the public ought to understand, that the pretext they propose to use, if applied throughout the City, would throw out the votes of nearly every district in New-York.

Another testimony to the strength of the organized resistance which is now meeting the Prussians in the interior of France has been furnished by the raising of the siege of Montmédy and Mézières. The rapid approach of Winter renders some decided success essential to the carrying out of a plan of partial occupation between this and next Spring. If the armies now formed or forming in France succeed in evading the necessity for a decisive engagement, and yet continue to make themselves formidable, the Prussians will have a more powerful incentive to consider favorably the project of an armistice than any mediation that is likely to be brought to bear upon them.

The sad accident at the Whitney House yesterday, by which a gentleman was killed without a moment's warning, affords another instance of the way in which ordinary precautions against such disasters are neglected. Perhaps with an idea of gaucl elegance, the architect has given to this house a sharp, steep staircase, with very low balusters. Probably many thousands of houses in the country are similarly built, and no accident has occurred in them—but if the balaster of a staircase is so low as not to save a person from falling over it, it would be in better taste, on humane as well as "high art" grounds, to build it higher. True art requires the fitness of things to be observed. A building, or portion of a building, that does not really serve the purpose it is made to serve is false art, a sham, and however pretty it may look, is very likely to be productive of mischief sooner or later.

New Hall of the Beethoven Maennerchor.

The Beethoven Maennerchor last night inaugurated its new Club-house, in Fifth-street, near the Bowery, with imposing ceremonies. The members of the Society assembled early in the evening at their old head-quarters in Sixth-street, and after a choral performance formed, under the marshalship of Mr. BUCHHEISTER, a procession, which moved toward the new hall by a rather circuitous route—down Sixth-street to Avenue A, thence to Seventh-street and First-avenue, down First-avenue to Fifth-street, thence to Avenue A, and down the Avenue to Houston-street, through Houston-street to Second-avenue, up the avenue to Tenth-street, from Tenth-street to Third-avenue, and thence to the new hall, where the procession was heartily welcomed by an enthusiastic multitude, composed of the friends of the Society. The new hall, as well as numerous private dwellings and public places along the route, was brilliantly illuminated. The festivities at the hall on the arrival of the procession were of a miscellaneous character, and were concluded by a "commers." The Beethoven Maennerchor is composed of 800 members, of whom about 100 are active singers. The new hall was built on shares at a cost of $100,000.

Coal Swindlers—Short Weights.

Yesterday, on complaint of WM. FRANCIS, JOS. M. WOODS and two other men, were arrested in Jersey City. These men are engaged in the coal business in South Eighth-street, under the title of the Lehigh and Wyoming Coal Company. FRANCIS charges that on the 17th of this month he bought and paid WOODS, the defendant, for a ton of coal, to be delivered at his house. Upon its delivery he had some reason to think the quantity too small, and, having it reloaded, it was taken to the city scales, where the weight was found to be only 1,820 pounds. Another ton, bought a few days afterward, was found to weigh less than 1,700 pounds. It is said that this method of swindling has been carried on successfully for some time, the parties selling at low rates, and boasting that they would drive other dealers from the market. The parties were held to answer in $5,000 bail each.

GENERAL TELEGRAMS.

GENERAL EUROPEAN NEWS.

British Army Reform—Return of the Queen to London—The Iron-Clad Sultan, Top-Heavy—Polish Bishops Petition King William in Favor of the Pope.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—TREVELYAN lectured here to-night on army reforms. He strongly urged the abolition of the purchase system.... The City of Bradford avoids a contest over the School Board by agreeing to the appointment of five churchmen, three Independents, two Baptists, two Methodists, two Catholics and one Friend.... A Woman's Suffrage meeting was held at Manchester to-night. Many well-known persons were present, and several addressed the meeting.... The Queen has returned to London from Balmoral.... The iron-clad Sultan, just finished, was found to be so top-heavy that she had to take in 300 tons of ballast, before it was considered safe to ship her armament.... The Catholic Bishops of Prussian Poland have presented to King WILLIAM a petition in favor of the Pope.

CHINA.

Insincerity of the Government—The Tien-Tsin Assassins Unpunished—Cochin China in a State of Siege—Expulsion of the Germans.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—A dispatch from Macao, dated Nov. 8, has just been received here. The news contained therein seems to justify the reports before published of the insincerity of the Chinese Government. The leaders and officials implicated in the recent massacre at Tien-Tsin are still unpunished, but a few scapegoats had been sacrificed in the hope of satisfying the foreigners.... A late telegram from Saigon announces that Cochin China had been declared in a state of siege. The Germans had been expelled from the country.

THE WEST INDIES.

Rejoicing in Havana at the Election of a Spanish King—Accident on the Nuevitas Railroad—State of Affairs in San Domingo—Immigration to Follow Annexation—A Cuban Expedition at Jamaica—American Vessels at St. Thomas.

HAVANA, Nov. 23.—The dispatches from the New-York Associated Press announcing the election of the Duke of AOSTA as King of Spain, have created the most unbounded enthusiasm. Salutes were fired, and the city was given up to festivities. A reception at the palace has been arranged for to-morrow, and on Sunday all the troops in the neighborhood will be reviewed by the Captain-General.... Gen. DON RODAS today set at liberty 2,000 negroes. The electoral lists are now forming. Eighteen Deputies to the Constituent Cortes will be selected as soon as the lists are completed.... The city is exceedingly healthy.... On Monday, two trains, going in opposite directions on the Matanzas Railroad, came in collision near Cuba-Mocha, (the Shriven Tree,) and five persons were killed and nine wounded.

Advices from San Domingo to the 9th inst have been received. A battle had occurred near the south-western frontier, between the forces of CABRAL and BAEZ. The former were routed.

SAN DOMINGO, Nov. 9, via HAVANA, Nov. 22.—Letters are daily received from the farmers and ranchero of Central America, making anxious inquiry as to the time when the cession of the island to the United States will be consummated. Should the treaty be ratified, it is expected that Venezuela alone will send 20,000 emigrants, principally agriculturists.... The Haytians continue to give material aid to CABRAL, and hope to accomplish through him the overthrow of BAEZ before the opening of Congress in Washington.

JAMAICA, Nov. 21, via HAVANA, Nov. 22.—A cooile expedition is organizing here. Its destination is St. Thomas. Its special mission there can only be surmised.

HAVANA, Nov. 23.—Dispatches from St. Thomas state that on the 16th inst. the American brigantine Munros, from Rio for Gibraltar, with coffee, put into that port leaking; also bark Halo, FRANK, of Boston, from Savannah for Montevideo, with lumber. The latter is discharging cargo previous to making necessary repairs.

THE WEST.

Sent to Prison for Interfering with Negro Voters—Heavy Fine for Counterfeiting Revenue Stamps—Snow-Storm at Cincinnati—Official Returns of the Illinois Election.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Nov. 23.—LEWIS and HENRY CARTER, of Lawrence County, Ohio, father and son, were tried in the United States Court here, before Judge LEAVITT, on a charge of preventing colored men from voting. It appears that LEWIS CARTER used violent threats against colored men offering to vote. The jury found him guilty, but recommended him to the mercy of the Court. The Court sentenced him to one month's imprisonment in the jail of Lawrence County. The son was acquitted.... WM. M. MITCHELL, who pleaded guilty to affixing counterfeit stamps on caddies of tobacco, was fined $4,000 and costs.... Snow, last night, fell to the depth of six inches. It is considerably melted today.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—The entire official returns of the recent election in this State have been received by the Secretary of State, and show the following vote for Congressmen-at-Large and State Treasurer: Congressmen-at-Large—LOGAN, Rep., 168,805; ANDERSON, Dem., 144,190; LOGAN's majority, 24,075. State Treasurer—BATES, Rep., 167,607; RIDGELY, Dem., 144,458; BATES' majority, 23,149. The Republican majority on the remainder of the State ticket averages little less. The Legislature will stand as follows: Senate—Republicans, 32; Democrats, 18. House—Republicans, 102; Democrats, 77.

Fire at Des Moines, Iowa—Boiler Explosion at Terre Haute, Ind.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—The Carter planing-mill and sash factory in Des Moines, Iowa, was burned this morning. The loss was $20,000.... The Metropolitan Hotel, at the corner of Randolph and Wells streets, took fire about 2½ o'clock this morning, from the basement, and was damaged to the extent of $8,000. During the progress of the fire a terrible panic occurred among the guests, in which several were injured by leaping from the upper stories.

TERRE-HAUTE, Ind., Nov. 23.—The boiler in the Telegraph Flouring Mills in this city, owned by RICHARDSON & GIBSONS, exploded today with terrific force, killing an old gentleman, named DAVID BERRY, and seriously injuring his grandson, who died soon after. The engineer was also seriously injured. The damage to the mill is estimated at from $5,000 to $6,000.

THE EAST.

Democratic Nomination of Mayor of Boston—The Old School-ship Massachusetts Sold—Railroad Difficulty in Maine.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 23.—Hon. WM. GASTON was nominated last evening by the Democratic Ward and City Committee for Mayor by 79 out of 108 votes, of which Mayor SHURTLEFF had 23.

The old school-ship Massachusetts was sold at auction today for $7,200.

BELFAST, Me., Nov. 23.—The Railroad Commissioners, to whom was referred the issue between the Maine Central and Belfast and Moosehead Lake Railroads, arising out of the lease of the latter road, have made a report in its favor. They say that the road was ready Nov. 1, according to the requirements of the contract; that it is a first-class road, according to agreement, and that it is in condition to be operated during the Winter and Spring. The Commissioners have also decided that the corporation has until July next to complete minor details. The running of trains will be resumed by the Commissioners, who will also dispose of questions arising out of a continued refusal of the Maine Central Road to accept the Belfast and Moosehead Lake Road.

IMMIGRATION CONVENTION.

Opening Session at Indianapolis—Twenty States and Territories Represented—The New-York Commission Condemned and Federal Control Advocated.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 23.—The great National Immigration Convention began its session here this morning. There was a very fair attendance for the opening day, and in point of ability the members may be said to represent the best portion of the class who take an active part in public affairs in different sections of the country. There were delegates present from twenty States and Territories. A permanent organization was effected by the choice of Gov. BAKER for President, with one Vice-President from each State and Territory represented, Mr. J. W. HUSTED, of New-York, being one of the number. Four Secretaries were chosen, including J. A. LOOMIS and B. CASSERLY from the New-York delegation. Speeches were made by Govs. PALMER, of Illinois; HARVEY, of Kansas; MCCOOK, of Colorado, and Gen. CONRAD, of Indiana, advocating the plan of placing the control and management of the immigration to the country in the hands of the Federal authorities. Gen. BERNELIN, of Cincinnati, favored a co-ordinate jurisdiction in the matter, giving the general control to the Federal Government, and leaving the details in each State to the authorities thereof. A good deal of hostility was shown to the New-York State system, and the working of the Emigrant Commission. The charges were repelled in a spirited speech by Mr. HUSTED.

On the reassembling of the Convention for the evening session, which began at 7½ o'clock, Mr. WALLACK, of New-York, made some remarks in reply to the charges against the management of Castle Garden. D. C. PIERCEBURG, of Missouri, was of opinion that the imposition of the tax, known as "head money," upon the immigrant on his arrival was wholly illegal. Prof. BUTLER, of Nebraska, advocated the abolition of this tax, but praised the general administration of affairs at Castle Garden. Mr. MATTISON, of Wisconsin, expressed the fear that the Convention was intended as a cover for land schemes. Col. LOOMIS, of the National Land Company, repudiated this charge. After some further general discussion, the Convention adjourned till 9 o'clock to-morrow morning.

Detailed Report of the Proceedings—Temporary and Permanent Organization—President Persons—Resolutions and Speeches.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 23.—An informal meeting of delegates to the Immigration Convention was held this morning. Judge MARTINDALE, a delegate from the Indianapolis Board of Trade, presiding. A committee, consisting of Col. STAFFORD, of Iowa; Judge NEWMAN, of Indiana; GREENBAUM, of Illinois; FROST, of Nebraska, and REESE, of Wisconsin, were appointed to invite Gov. MERRILL, of Iowa, to preside at the temporary organization of the Convention, which will convene at 12 o'clock.

Gov. MERRILL, of Iowa, called the Immigration Convention to order at 12 o'clock M. ALBERT T. SHAW, of Memphis, was elected temporary Chairman, and Col. JOHN S. LOOMIS, of New-York, Secretary.

SPEECH OF COL. SHAW.

Col. SHAW, on taking the chair, spoke as follows:

I thank you for the compliment you have paid me and the great honor you have conferred upon me by selecting me to preside temporarily over your deliberations. I am no speech maker, and if I was I do not think I should deem it wise to force a speech upon you, for we have come together to deliberate and to act, rather than to make any talking display. I think you will agree with me that one good solid-shot fact is worth a whole fusilade of rhetoric. The call which has been read sufficiently indicates the objects and purposes for which this Convention is assembled. We can scarcely overrate the importance to our country, so great and so glorious, is but the child of immigration. All our 40,000,000 of souls are only immigrants, or the children of immigrants. We all trace back our origin over the water. We are Celts, or Teutons, or Saxons, or Latins. What a wonderful thing emigration and immigration have been for our country. Not vainly, we claim the first place among the nations. It is little more than 200 years since the first immigrants set foot upon our shores, and all our grandeur has been derived from those who have since followed. No wonder we regard emigration as a great and important interest. No wonder that Governors of great States should agree to call a National Convention concerning this interest. I trust we shall all the time remember this characteristic of our nationality—We certainly should know no North, no South, no East, no West, only a great and entire nationality, immaculate from any stain of sectionalism. Let the dead past bury its dead. Neither should we contemplate the introduction of any political firebrand here. While our deliberations and actions may become in the best and highest sense political, I trust we shall studiously ignore and repel any attempt to employ the shibboleth or tricks of partisanship. Allow me to suggest, in conclusion, gentlemen, that a strict observance of order and the usual parliamentary regulations will go far toward securing harmony of action and facilitating the dispatch of business.

STATES REPRESENTED.

A Committee of three, consisting of Messrs. SMITH, of Indiana; SMITH, of Wisconsin, and DOWN, of Arkansas, was appointed on credentials on the call of the State delegates from the several States and Territories. The following responded: Arkansas, Colorado, Tennessee, District of Columbia, Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, Kentucky, Mississippi, Minnesota, New-York, North Carolina, Missouri, Nebraska, Tennessee, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Wisconsin, Western Virginia and Ohio. A resolution inviting all the Governors, Ex-Governors, Senators and Representatives in Congress present, to take part in the deliberations of the Convention was adopted.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

On the reassembling of the Convention this afternoon, the Committee on Permanent Organization reported Gov. BAKER, of Indiana, for President, and Col. LOOMIS, of New-York, and Mr. GREENBAUM, of Illinois, Secretaries, with one Vice-President from each State and Territory represented, in which the report concurred. Among the prominent persons present were Gov. Palmer, of Illinois; Gov. Merrill, of Iowa; Gov. Harvey, of Kansas; Gov. McCook, of Colorado; Ex-Gov. Morton and Hon. Sam Galloway, of Ohio; Gen. Bienelline, of Ohio; Hon. James W. Husted, of New-York; Mr. Wrightington, General Agent of the Board of State Charity of Massachusetts; and B. Casserly, Commissioner of Castle Garden, New-York. A large number of resolutions were introduced, advocating the Federal control of immigration, co-ordinate jurisdiction of the State and Federal authorities, the enforcement of the present laws, &c., all of which were referred to the Committee on Resolutions, after reading, and without debate.

Defalcation of the Collector of Customs at Buffalo.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 23.—The Courier this morning confirms the rumor, afloat for several days, that ROBERT W. DANIELS, Collector of Customs for this port, is accused of malfeasance in office in using the public funds for his private business, and that United States Treasury Agent LEOPOLD is in charge of the office, awaiting advices from Washington.

Memorial Observances in Honor of Gen. Lee at Raleigh, N. C.—Eulogy by Ex-Gov. Vance.

RALEIGH, N. C., Nov. 23.—Memorial observances in honor of Gen. R. E. LEE were celebrated here today. The procession formed at the Executive Mansion in the following order: Music; Chief Marshal and assistants; soldiers of the late Confederate States Army; the clergy; the collegian, Ex-Gov. VANCE; State officials and members of both Houses of the Legislature; city officials; the Masonic fraternity; the Odd-fellows; the friends of temperance; the firecompanies; Sunday scholars and citizens. The flag over the Capitol was hung at half-mast, the bells tolled during the procession, and business was generally suspended. Stores and private houses were arrayed in mourning. The turn out of citizens was unusually large, the whole population seeming to have participated in the solemnities. Tucker Hall was crowded to its utmost capacity, about 1,200 finding seats, while a far larger number were unable to obtain admittance. A poem by Mrs. DOWNING was read by Mayor SEATON GALES, and Ex-Gov. VANCE delivered an eloquent eulogy.

Mr. Paulding and his Wheelbarrow—Time to Peekskill.

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., Nov. 23.—The actual time of JOHN G. PAULDING in traveling from New-York to Peekskill, with his wheelbarrow, was: From New-York to Yonkers, eighteen miles, in six hours and forty-five minutes; Yonkers to Tarrytown, twelve miles, in three hours and thirty minutes; Tarrytown to Peekskill, eighteen miles, in seven hours, arriving at Peekskill on Wednesday at 5½ o'clock.

THE RECENT STORM.

Effects of the Gale and Rain—A Heavy Blow and Overflow—Serious Damage.

The violent easterly gales that have lately been prevalent, together with the furious rainstorm, left many tokens of their power in this vicinity and elsewhere. Yesterday our river-front streets, wharves and sewer-openings, presented an unusual appearance—all being greatly affected by the frolic of the elements. The time marked for high water was Tuesday night at 9 o'clock, but long before that hour the mark had been reached. The tide continued to rise with alarming rapidity until it reached a height seldom attained. The North River swept upward like a freshet, and the East River currents rushed with tremendous force. Tow-boats could not manage their fleets and were obliged to give up all attempts at locomotion. The ferry-boats had great difficulty in stemming the flood and making their slips. Several large vessels dragged their anchors, and were compelled to hold on with extra cables. At Throg's Neck and Hallet's Point, where the Sound and East River tides meet, there was a miniature Bay of Fundy. The rushing waters over the reefs and around the rocky ledges roared and hissed with ominous echoes, and navigation at one time was almost impossible. Around the shores of the Hudson, at Staten Island, Bay Ridge, New-Jersey, and Sandy Hook, there was the same remarkable flooding. Several small boats, some lumber, spars and other articles were floated away. A canal-boat, occupied by a family near Red Hook Point, Brooklyn, broke loose from its moorings and was carried for some distance down the bay. The family on board were almost exhausted with terror when help came. Ship-yards, lumber and coal depots, and some of the wharves, were inundated; cellars and basements were flooded; and in some cases vessels were lifted upon the piers. The owners of threatened buildings were generally able to save themselves from much damage, but in several cases suffered considerable loss. At some places the water in the stores was nearly five feet deep, and it became necessary to suspend business for several hours.

Fulton Market and vicinity suffered the most, and for a time it appeared as if the river fishes would hold their Thanksgiving banquet upon the vast amount of goodies there collected. Many of the basements there are but a few inches above high-water mark, and were exposed to all the force of the storm. Similar damage was inflicted in the neighborhood of the other ferries.

All the ferry-boats were seriously delayed, and some were so much injured by the violent wind driving them against the piers and bridges that they had to cease their trips. The ferry-boat Jersey City had its smoke-stack blown off as she was entering the slip, and had to be laid up, as was also the Montauk at Atlantic-street Ferry, where fears were entertained that the guards of the boat would get on the fenders of the bridge. While at Fulton Ferry the water was within a foot of flooding the wharf. The amounts lost by individuals will not exceed $10,000. In addition to this there is by no means the inconsiderable loss of the store-keepers, owing to the stoppage of business.

The principal individual sufferers are BARKER, & Co., merchants, at Front and Dock streets, $1,000; N. D. HOOK, liquor-dealer, Fulton Market, $200; FORDHAM, liquor-dealer, South-street, $200; MCAULIFFE, Front-street, $200; MCKENNA, Battery-place, $100; and HERRING & WARD, oystermen, foot of Chambers-street, $200.

A very high tide again came last night, but no great damage is caused. It is expected that more or less damage along the coast has occurred.

The Storm in New-Jersey.

The storm which raged during Tuesday evening and night caused considerable damage in the upper portion of New-Jersey. In Newark, the wind and rain injured property to the amount of several thousand dollars. The earth which was filled in over the new sewers in Orange and Church streets, was washed out so that the horse-cars were unable to pass. An express wagon fell into one of these excavations, which was of such depth that it was impossible to extricate it, and it remained there all night. The roof of a stable on Springfield-avenue was blown off, and some of the timbers falling through killed a horse belonging to the proprietor. A frame-house in course of erection on Orange-avenue was completely blown down. A new house in West Hoboken met with the same fate. In Jersey City, especially on the Hill, the wind was terrific. A Hudson City car was blown from the track and thrown over on its side, and the horses were thrown down. A canal-boat was carried to the Hamburg docks at Hoboken, which had probably broken from its moorings in New-York. At Weehawken coal-docks three canal-boats were sunk. The loss on these boats alone is about $5,000.

OBITUARY.

Themagne Rameau, of Hayti.

The steamer City of Port-au-Prince brings intelligence of the death of THEMAGNE RAMEAU, Ex-Senator and Secretary of the State of Hayti. The new Republic has thus lost an able, stanch and highly-respected servant. Mr. T. RAMEAU was born at Aux Cayes in 1818, of an old and leading negro family of the south of the island. He received a liberal education at the Lyceum of Aux Cayes, and early engaged in commercial pursuits, which served to develop and ripen those faculties for business that afterward proved so valuable to his country. At the overthrow of the Empire under SOULOUQUE, he was sent as special commissioner to Jamaica and other West India Islands. In 1862, he was elected Senator, and allied himself to the Liberal Conservative Party. On the advent of SALNAVE to power, he retired into private life, and took no active part in the affairs of the country until SALNAVE declared himself Dictator, when he joined the revolution under SAGET, who at once appointed him Secretary of State and Finance. During the progress of the revolution he had charge of all the Departments of State, and was subsequently confirmed in this position by the Government. By his able administration he did much to restore the credit of Hayti abroad. On SAGET's becoming President, RAMEAU again retired, declining the offer of Haytian Minister to Europe. He leaves one son only, aged fifteen years. His funeral was attended by President SAGET and his Ministers.

A Great Event for Portage Lake—Superior and Portage United—Opening of the Portage Lake and Lake Superior Ship Canal.

From the Portage Gazette, Nov. 17.

It is with feelings of profound pleasure that we announce to the public the fact that the waters of Lake Superior and Portage Lake were brought together yesterday (Wednesday) morning, Nov. 16, at 11¼ o'clock, by means of the opening of the Portage Lake and Lake Superior Ship Canal.

In company with a goodly number of the leading citizens of Hancock and Houghton, we embarked on board of the tug Mentor, on Wednesday morning, and after a run of forty minutes, we found ourself at that particular spot, and witness of a scene, on the ship canal, which is destined to be long remembered by all who were so fortunate as to be present. Here we found two powerful steam dredges facing each other, distant but a step, one in the water of Superior, and the other in the water of Portage, surrounded by a large and enthusiastic concourse of people, and as each monster shovel made its way into the thin partition that separated the two bodies of water, the excitement became intense, and shouts rent the air. Finally, when it became a question of a mere shovelful of earth as to which dredge should have the honor of first clearing the barrier, the removal of which would be the beginning of a new epoch in our history and that of the commerce of the country, suspense was at its highest point, and not till the water of Lake Superior rushed past the bank on which we stood, and mingled with that of Portage Lake, do we find that relief which one experiences at seeing the complete achievement of a great and important event.

In former issues of the Gazette, we have pointed out the great benefit the opening of this canal would be to the County of Houghton, and in fact to the whole country; and now that the thing is an assured fact, we cannot advise the people of Portage Lake too earnestly, to set about establishing at once those branches of industry which can be carried on here so successfully.

A course of lectures is to be established the coming Winter in Glen Cove. A subscription paper has been extensively signed, by which a large number of the citizens of that village agree to pay a certain sum, or a proportionate rate thereof, toward defraying any deficiency arising in the undertaking. Some of the finest lecturers of the country are being engaged for the season.

COUNTING THE VOTE.

Eighth Day's Proceedings of the New-York Board of County Canvassers.

The Board of Supervisors for the City and County of New-York met, yesterday, at 11½ A. M., to continue the canvass. Mr. GOMAN presided, and the following gentlemen were present: Messrs. CODY, FLEMMING, WOLFMAN and SCHLICHTING. As it was expected that the canvass would be concluded, considerable interest was manifested, especially in reference to the vote in the Fifteenth Ward for the candidates in the Seventh Assembly District. A protest was offered on behalf of Mr. CAREY, setting forth his objections to the returned vote for the Republican candidate, Mr. TWOMBLY, and only one district of the Fifteenth Ward was canvassed for Assembly, Mr. WOLFMAN having protested that the further canvass of the Assembly vote be referred to the Committee on Protests, to meet in the afternoon. The following is the result of the canvass in the Fifteenth Ward:

	Governor.		Mayor.		Controller.
Dist.	Wood.	Hoffman.	Ledwith.	Hall.	Taggart.	Connolly.
1	128	177	116	184	122	182
2	123	67	122	79	119	80
3	155	114	149	126	115	101
4	158	78	156	80	150	140
5	163	172	176	154	164	141
6	229	223	222	230	218	164
7	135	124	127	116	121	110

12	161	207	149	223	139	209
13	147	152	151	148	142	98

There were over 50 blank and several scattering and defective votes in this Ward. The following is the Congressional vote in this Ward:

Dist.	Hence Greeley.	S. S. Cox.	Dist.	Hence Greeley.	S. S. Cox.
1	117	182	4	208	119
2	109	67	5	68	148
3	148	120	10	80	155

5	162	170	12	165	229
6	229	222	13	136	174
7	135	117
Total				1297	1695

The canvass is now completed, with the exception of contested districts and districts from which no returns have been received. The Board will resume its sittings on Friday, at 11 A. M., when these deficiencies will be made up, and the canvass closed.

The Contest in the Seventh Assembly District—Carey vs. Twombly.

The Committee on Protests of the Board of Canvassers, composed of Supervisors CUDDY, (Chairman,) PLUNKITT and SCHLICHTING, met yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock, to hear arguments in the case of JOHN CAREY (Democrat) vs. JOHN TWOMBLY, (Republican,) and to decide which of these gentlemen should represent the Seventh Assembly District. Many political wire-pullers were present, and also many citizens of the Fifteenth Ward, who were anxious to know how their votes would be disposed of. About 2 P. M. the Mayor glided noiselessly into the room, and a look of disappointment overspread his countenance on hearing from the clerk that his majority only reached 24,646. His grief was shared by many present who had made heavy bets on a majority of 25,000 for HALL. Under these discouraging circumstances, the Committee proceeded to business, Mr. STEWART appearing as counsel on behalf of TWOMBLY, and Mr. EUGENE DURNIN for Mr. CAREY.

Mr. DURNIN opened the proceedings by reading the affidavits on which the protest of Mr. CAREY was founded. PATRICK REEDS, of No. 46 Amity-street, swore, in his affidavit, that on the day of election he visited the Eighteenth District of the Sixteenth Ward, where the votes were being counted, found five men round the table lunching, and a Mr. TURNER, who was no inspector, engaged in counting the votes. The affidavits of JAMES F. KELLY, HENRY G. MACY, of No. 204 West Sixteenth-street, and PATRICK KEARNEY, of No. 223 West Sixteenth-street, were also read, and were in corroboration of that of REEDS.

The affidavit of JAMES DERRY, of No. 177 West Twelfth-street, had reference to the Twentieth District of the Ninth Ward, and set forth that DERRY visited on the election evening the room in which the votes were counted between 11 and 12 o'clock; that a Mr. HEREMBURG invited the inspectors out to have a drink, and left one man, Mr. HENDRICKSON, in charge; and that they did not return till deponent took his leave.

PATRICK REEDS, No. 46 Amity-street, swears that he also visited the room in which the Election Court took place, the Twentieth District of the Ninth Ward, and that nine votes were counted as ten for TWOMBLY on the Assembly ballot, and that on his calling attention to the fraud he was put out of the room.

JEREMIAH COFFIN, No. 94 West Houston-street, corroborates HENRY's testimony in his affidavit, and further states that when 131 votes were announced for TWOMBLY, the question was asked, "Is that enough?"

JAMES F. KELLY, No. 124 Laurens-street, corroborates the two preceding witnesses.

The affidavits having been read, Mr. STEWART requested a postponement, as he said the nature of Mr. CAREY's protest was not known till Tuesday evening, and the contents of the affidavits had only been made known by Mr. DURNIN.

Mr. DURNIN made some objection to this course, but an adjournment took place till 2½ P. M., at which hour the Committee resumed its sitting.

Mr. STEWART proceeded to call witnesses to rebut the allegations put forth in the preceding affidavits.

Mr. FORRES, of No. 303 West Thirteenth-street, (Republican,) being sworn, said he was acquainted with Mr. DECKER, an inspector (Democrat,) as inspector in the Twentieth District, Ninth Ward; after the close of the polls they first canvassed the general ticket, then the Congressional, after which they took up the Assembly vote. Mr. FORRES' evidence was to the effect that the greatest caution was observed in canvassing this vote, and that it was not till the votes had first been counted by his associate inspectors, both Democrats, that they were intrusted to him. He contradicted in the most positive terms the allegation in the affidavit of REEDS, and accounted for the delay in sending in the return by his statement that there was a great many split votes on the general ticket, and that it was necessary to canvass the votes twice. With regard to the accusation that in one of the packages of ten votes there were only nine, Mr. FORRES swore that this package was counted in the presence of the other inspectors, and contained the requisite number of votes. Mr. FORRES admitted that he was absent for a few moments, but said that no adjournment took place, and that during his absence Mr. HENDRICKSON, the poll clerks, policemen and several persons were present.

In his cross-examination, Mr. DURNIN failed to shake the evidence of Mr. FORRES in the slightest particular, although he was supported by Mr. CUDDY, Chairman of the Committee, who, throughout the proceedings, acted the part of a violent partisan, and never failed to show the depth of his Democratic sympathies. In his re-direct examination, Mr. FORRES swore that the Assembly vote was twice counted and found to be the same in both cases.

Mr. HENDRICKSON, of No. 322 West Eleventh-street, was the next witness. He swore he was Chairman of the inspectors in the district under dispute. He added fresh weight to the evidence of Mr. FORRES, and stated that during the absence of that gentleman and Mr. DECKER, the other inspector, he remained in the room with several others, and that on the return of the two inspectors Mr. DECKER opened the Assembly box, and the votes were counted in the manner described by Mr. FORRES; and further, that he kept his eyes on the votes all the time, and that no fraud could have been perpetrated without his knowledge.

In his cross-examination this witness reiterated his belief that the returns were correct.

Mr. DURNIN having failed to disturb the equanimity of this witness, Mr. CUDDY came to his rescue, and attempted to throw reflections on the witness, but was rebuked by Mr. STEWART.

Mr. REYNER, of No. 130 Prince-street, and THOMAS QUIG, No. 40 Perry-street, who were clerks of the poll of the disputed district on election day, were the next witnesses, and their evidence was clear and decisive that the counting of the votes in the assembly district was regular and free from the slightest fraud.

An adjournment of the Committee took place at 4 P. M. to 6 P. M., at which hour the sitting was resumed, and Mr. DECKER took the stand, and stated that Mr. FORRES' hands were at no time on the votes, and that the Congressional return in the district in which he was inspector was correct in every particular.

Mr. IRE, United States supervisor in the disputed district, corroborated the evidence of the previous witnesses, and Mr. MCMANY testified that there was much noise and tumult occasioned in the room by Mr. CAREY's friends, and that it was necessary to call the assistance of a Police officer to preserve order.

Rebutting evidence was then brought forward on the part of Mr. CAREY, JAS. LEVY and Mr. FITZGERALD were examined, but their evidence failed to throw any new light on the subject or add any weight to Mr. CAREY's case. The latter witness admitted that in his request the votes were recounted, and that the result was found to correspond with the first announcement.

Mr. STEWART then, on behalf of Mr. TWOMBLY, requested permission of the Committee to have an affidavit from Mr. TURNER drawn up in reference to the charges alleged against him but Mr. CUDDY refused this, as he said sufficient time had been already given to have brought forward all the evidence bearing on the subject.

The counsel then proceeded to sum up. Mr. STEWART, on behalf of Mr. TWOMBLY, took up the different points on which his election has been objected to, and argued that no irregularity sufficient to ignore the votes cast in his favor had been perpetrated.

Mr. DURNIN followed, in behalf of Mr. CAREY, and stated that the New Election law bore directly on the points at issue in this case, and called on the Committee to make form a precedent to disturb the purity of New-York elections.

Mr. CUDDY, on behalf of the Committee, announced that the case was closed, and that the decision would be made known at an early day.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Missouri has a paper called the Medaway Democrat. Suggestive.

R. R. BUTLER has but about 500 plurality in the First District of Tennessee.

New-Jersey Democrats think the idea of a thorough reorganization of their party in that State a good one.

The Dakota City (Nebraska) Mail nominates Gen. JOHN A. LOGAN for President as "a patriot, scholar, soldier, statesman, financier, exponent of American principles and advocate of civil and religious liberty all over the world."

Hon. LOT M. MORRILL, of Maine, improves slowly in health, but will not probably be able to return to Washington for some time to come. It is the opinion of his physicians that he has no chronic complaint, but is suffering from over-exertion during a time when he needed rest.

RAPHAEL SEMMES, whom the Mobile Register still calls "Admiral," has withdrawn as the Democratic candidate for Mayor of Mobile, his candidacy, as he says, having caused some difference of opinion among his friends as to its expediency.

The Trenton Gazette says that Congressman-elect FORKER, of that State, assured his hearers in the course of a speech in that city during the campaign that he was in favor of protection to home industry. Mr. FORKER was the Democratic candidate.

We have the vote for Congressmen in some of the districts of Missouri. The Fifth District, nearly complete, gives BURD, Republican, 9,675; SMITH, Liberal, 8,970; DALE, Independent Democrat, 2,607. In the Sixth District, COMINGO, Democrat, has 19,697, and SMITH, Republican, 9,732. In the Seventh, PARKER, Republican, has 13,147, and ELLIS, Liberal, 11,372. In the Eighth, BLAIR, Liberal, has 11,622, and HAYWARD, Republican, 9,324. In the Ninth, KING, Democrat, has 10,360; DYER, Liberal, 8,812, and DRAPER, Republican, 3,348.

Alluding to the defeat of the railroad bond amendment in Michigan, the Detroit Tribune says: "It is now evident that the only railroad amendment that can secure adoption in this State is one to pay for work actually done and completed. The great mass of bonds voted and in the hands of the State Treasurer, but not used, will not be revived by constitutional amendment. The amendment, as submitted, attempted too much. The liability of municipalities will now be tested in the United States Courts, and counsel have already been retained in the City to bring suit in these tribunals. Eventually, the municipalities will be compelled to pay these bonds, and it is to their honor, as the returns show, that those communities which had the avails of bonds generally voted to pay them."

AMUSEMENTS.

Theatrical.

"FERNANDE" AT THE FIFTH-AVENUE THEATRE.

The revival of "Fernande" was the means of collecting last night at the Fifth-avenue Theatre a numerous, fashionable and deeply-attentive audience. We have nothing to add to our former strictures on this play, or to subtract from the praise to which the excellence of its mounting at this theatre fairly entitle it. Improvement is visible in some respects over the former performance, and it must be allowed that the drama is a profoundly interesting one. The various artists who gained credit for clever acting in the original representations of "Fernande" did justice on this occasion to their reputation, and seemed pleased to resume the parts in which they had already given so much satisfaction. Miss ETHEL is very good indeed in Fernande, a character to which she is felicitously adapted. Mr. FOLK, who replaces Mr. CLARKE in the hero, gives form and spirit to a particularly well studied and finished conception. Miss MORANT makes of Clotilde one of the best and most elaborate pictures of a highly-trained and powerful actress. Mr. LEWIS is as funny as ever in the Commander, and Messrs. HARKINS and FOLK take steadfast and productive pains to give reality to the bustling action. Miss DIEHL, who improves rapidly in stage lore and the good opinion of the public, appears in the second part she has attempted—in "Fernande" to modest advantage and with cordial applause, and the rest of the cast is to be commended for neatness and care if for no higher merits. "Fernande" will be sufficiently attractive, to judge from appearances, to fill Fifth-Avenue Theatre for many successive repetitions. It is a pleasure to see conscientious industry well-rewarded, and Mr. DALY is fairly winning his substantial deserts.

"FROU-FROU" AT THE FOURTEENTH-STREET.

Mrs. LANDER appeared last night at the Fourteenth-street Theatre in a version of "Frou-Frou" prepared by herself. There is so much of the piquant and at the same time of the highly dramatic in this play, that it is not surprising it should have tempted so experienced an actress to avail herself of its advantages. Yet, in all honesty, it must be admitted that the character of the volatile, frivolous, airy Frou-Frou is not well adapted to Mrs. LANDER's mental or physical qualities, excellent as those qualities are. It is impossible for so capital an artist to do anything ill. There are, accordingly, a number of points in the lady's performance of last night which fairly compel applause from intelligent observers. But these very points make us regret they should be set in an impersonation which hardly ever admits of the possibility of an illusion. There is a certain vigorous clear-headedness in all that Mrs. LANDER does, an air of intellectual ripeness and sagacity, which is totally incompatible with the nature of the giddy, passionate and easily led-away Frou-Frou. We know perfectly well that the woman before us could, under no circumstances, behave as this heroine is represented to behave. Thus, the first element of dramatic art, the power of absolute identification, of stimulating so as to suggest reality, is lacking in this performance. Technically speaking, we again gladly suggest, there is much to admire in Mrs. LANDER's Frou-Frou, and if we feel bound to season our praise with the noted qualifications, it is with a full knowledge and admission that the lady is so consummate a mistress of her art, and shines to such advantage in nearly everything she undertakes, as easily to afford an unfavorable criticism of a single effort. The adaptation of "Frou-Frou" is creditable to Mrs. LANDER's literary abilities, and Mr. WHEATLEIGH, Mr. TAYLOR, and their companions, labor with skill and zeal to endow it with all possible effect. The drama will be repeated twice, we believe, before the termination of Mrs. LANDER's engagement.

Musical.

MISS KREBS' CONCERT.

The concert given by Miss MARIE KREBS at Steinway Hall, last evening, was enjoyed by an audience whose approval seemed of unusual value. The youth and slightness of figure of Miss KREBS, as well as her genuine talent, caused her to interest from her earliest appearance here, and the attendance of yesterday, if not as large in numbers as genius and the echoes which managers well know to awake can summon, was at least well fitted to appreciate the entertainment. This had the merit a novel programme so nearly given to modern affairs of the kind. The trio for piano, violin and violoncello, opus 49, in D minor—not one of MENDELSSOHN's representative works, but susceptible of more effectiveness than it really had—opened the concert. More numerous rehearsals, we should say, would have endowed the performance with the absolute excellence of which a loose observance of tempo deprived it. Miss KREBS-MICHALESI contributed the second number, singing SCHUBERT's "Der Wanderer." Miss KREBS-MICHALESI has a compass of voice, rather worn, husky in some of the lower notes, but exceedingly rich and powerful in the higher register. A shortness of breath, or else an ill division of the phrases was, however, a very unpleasant trait of the lady's singing. The third number, for violoncello, was a prelude, an allemande, a sarabande and a gigue, by CORBELLI, whose compositions, written upward of two centuries ago, are fresh and tuneful still under the bow of Mr. CHARLES WARNER. The solo playing of Miss KREBS closed the first part of the bill. Miss KREBS has a clearness and fluency of execution equal to any demand, and a tone

UNITED ITALY.

Dissolution of the Chamber—The Royal Visit—Attitude of the Pope—The Threats of Spain—Napoleon's Movements—Army Reduction.

From Our Own Correspondent.

FLORENCE, Wednesday, Nov. 2, 1870.

The Ministers, in Council, have decided to dissolve the Chamber and call the electors together on the 20th of the present month, to name new Delegates. The public has been for some time prepared for this decision, and accepts it as the one demanded by circumstances. Five hundred and seven Deputies will be sent back to Parliament, and for the first time the whole nation will be represented. The number of legal voters is now about half a million, or two per cent of the whole population. Not more than one-half of these generally take part in the elections, and it is one of the objects to which intelligent effort is directed, to arouse the people from their indifference and awaken in them the spirit of political life. This can be done only by the slow process of education.

THE ROYAL VISIT.

The Romans are calling more loudly than ever for the King, and no day is yet fixed for his visit. The Ministers are timid, and the King is superstitious. The former are not inclined to take any step without first finding out the feeling of Europe, and the latter is unwilling to go to Rome without the prospect of a friendly smile from the Pope. The prospect does not brighten, and a chronic scowl is now fixed on the face of the Vatican. At the beginning of October the sum of fifty thousand scudi, needed monthly for the pay of those connected with the Pope's household, was received from the hands of the Italian Government. This month the sum is not asked for, or is refused. But the Ministerial journal today assures us that very soon the Cabinet will fix the time for the King's visit.

ATTITUDE OF THE POPE.

To use a not very elegant phrase, the Pope is playing "possum" in the Vatican. The non possumus obstinately maintained, the Holy Father is pretending to be a prisoner and martyr, but with one eye open, glancing longingly toward Ireland and Mexico for the vagabond aid which will never arrive. PIUS IX. is like the heroine in the story, who waves her white handkerchief from the top of the tower to the cavalier who comes galloping to the rescue, but too late to save her from her fate. VICTOR EMMANUEL is the Blue Beard of this tragedy of the sacrificed temporal power. It is not difficult to imagine the feelings of the Pontiff and the learned Doctors of the Canonical law, by whom he is surrounded. Insult has been added to injury by the Italian Government. At the moment the Holy Father is voted infallible, the whole platform breaks down. The vanity of the Pope is wounded, and this is added to a lively sense of wrong. But there is consolation in the thought that the humiliation of the Pontiff is less than that of the Emperor, who was so long his sole prop. In the language of affairs, the maker of the note and mortgage have become bankrupt together, and the liquidation is now going on.

THE THRONE OF SPAIN.

A Prince, it seems, has at last been found willing to sit on the so long vacant Spanish throne. All authorities appear to be agreed that the Prince AMEDEO, commonly known by his title of Duke D'AOSTA, is the right candidate, and Spain has only to invite him to the place by a formal vote of the Cortes, and he will assume the Sovereign power with a general clapping of hands. Europe will be relieved by another embarrassment, and the liberal régime in Spain will have a new guarantee of stability. The Prince AMEDEO is the second son of VICTOR EMMANUEL, is about five-and-twenty, is married to a subject, or one not of royal blood, and is the father of one child. He has the reputation of a good young man; he is inclined to irregularities than some other members of the family. Without possessing brilliant parts, he has a fair share of intellect and culture and the honest common sense which has been of so much service to the father in winning the respect and confidence of the Italian people. If the Spanish take this member of the Savoy family, they will do better than they would have done had the pale boy, the Prince THOMAS, Duke of Genoa, been handed over to them a year or more ago, when PRIM and the rest were searching for a mole and pliant instrument for the promotion of their designs.

NAPOLEON'S MOVEMENTS.

The report is still current of the intention of LOUIS NAPOLEON to come and pass the Winter in the Island of Elba, for reasons connected with failing health. How fickle are the caprices of time and of fortune! If the Ex-Emperor comes to live in this island he will be the nearest neighbor of GARIBALDI, whose farm covers the area of the smaller island of Caprera. A few years ago, when Europe was ruled by an Imperial apothegm, or a nod, the Republican General was wounded in the heel at Aspromonte by a shot let loose by the order of the ruler of France. GARIBALDI has left prison and farm to do what he can to help those who, at a moment of tremendous peril, have become the heirs of power in France. New bubbles are floating on that tempestuous sea. NAPOLEON III. is neither a Tiberius nor a Diocletian, although he has had some of the experiences of both; and if his Empire never attained its majority, yet, in the quietude of his island, he will be able to write the history of the past eighteen years. Elba is in sight of the shores of Tuscany, and it may be that we shall see the Empress or the Prince Imperial here, as there is in Florence a palace believed to be Imperial property, which stands in the name of a lady formerly connected with the Emperor's Court. It was built a dozen years ago, at a cost of 2,000,000 francs, and during nearly the whole of the long interval has been shut up. It has sometimes been said that the ex-Emperor's failing health is accompanied by failing intellect, and many will be ready to believe it, if, in going to Elba, he thinks to play a dramatic part. With all the modern facilities of transport, the road from Elba to Paris is not so short as it was sixty years ago.

ARMY REDUCTION.

A dismissal of the troops called back to service in the Italian Army, a few months ago, has already begun. The class of 1842 is ordered home, which will make a reduction of about 25,000, and the diminution will continue to go on. The force engaged in the Roman expedition has already been reduced two-thirds.

ANGELICO.

A Mystery of the Cumberland—What was Seen by a Farmer and his Two Sons.

From the Nashville (Tenn.) Banner, Nov. 18.

Yesterday a farmer named GLASGOW, who lives about ten miles above the city, came to town, and tells a singular story of his experience on Wednesday night. The farmer's dwelling is situated on a gentle bluff close to the Cumberland, where the stream, taking a wide curve, strikes against the bank, and the river, except in high water, being wider than ordinary, the water is usually calm and still. Upon the opposite bank are great sycamores which bend out over the stream, while behind the banks slope upward, covered thick with trees and bushes, making a wild, picturesque spot which might well engage the attention of the painter. On Wednesday night, about 10 o'clock, the farmer was awakened by the loud barking of his dogs, mingled with human cries which seemed to come up from the foot of the bluff. Hastily throwing on his clothes, and awakening his two sons, whom he told to follow him, the countryman hastened to the top of the bluff overlooking the river, and there the cries became more distinct. They seemed to be those of a woman calling for help. Now they sounded close to the bank, almost beneath the farmer's feet, now further up the stream, and anon close to the other bank. We need hardly say, all over the water. At last there was a sound of oars in the stream, which presently ceased, and then a light as from a dim lantern was discerned by the affrighted men, who by this time stood in strange awe, with his two sons, upon the bank. By the light two figures could be seen in the canoe, which was black and of mammoth size. These figures were muffled up in white and were busy with a third figure, which they seemed to be binding with cords. It was this latter figure which emitted the strange, yet heart-rending cries, which, however, were speedily muffled. The light suddenly disappeared, and then for a few moments all was as still as the grave, when there came a splash in the river as if some heavy body had been cast into the water. Again all was still. With the "disappearance of the light all trace of the boat and its occupants had disappeared; and though the wonder-stricken farmer waited long upon the bank, oppressed by a growing dread, not another sound broke the stillness. The horrid vision, whatever it may have been, had disappeared, as if by magic. After waiting for an hour, the farmer and his sons crept shivering to bed. Next morning they were early upon the river bank, but there flowed the current with its old ripples, and all was as still and quiet as an Autumn morning could make it.

CURRENT NOTES.

Philadelphia, too, wants a statue of FRANKLIN, and thinks the printers ought to pay for it.

MARY KENNEDY, a native of Ireland, aged one hundred and two years, died a few days since at the residence of her son in Albany.

Some of the people of Lynn, Mass., have a neighbor who has been a shoemaker for seventy-four years, and they have just been helping him celebrate his eighty-sixth birthday.

A physician in Toronto has sued a paper there for libel, his especial grievance being that the paper asserted that he was "formerly a coachman." He craves $20,000.

The Historical Society of Pennsylvania have called upon DAVID PAUL BROWN to prove before them once more that SHAKESPEARE wrote the plays and poems ascribed to him.

A silver mine was recently discovered on the property of a Mr. NEWTON, at Corning in this State. The State Geologist visited the place last week, and took away specimens for examination.

The new system of water works at St. Louis, Mo., will provide the people of that city with crystal water, instead of brown fluid. The works are to be formally opened in three weeks.

A lady at North Adams, on Monday last, narrowly escaped death through inhaling too much chloroform preparatory to having her teeth drawn. She remained insensible for several hours.

Dwellers by the sea in some of the coast towns of Connecticut were again agitated by fear of an incoming tidal wave on Saturday, and fled onto the hills in apprehension of the devastating flood.

The Women's School of Design, at Philadelphia, lately elected HENRY C. GIBSON as President. It is now in full working order, and has a corps of professors and appliances for study.

An Albany boy, eighteen years old, is under arrest for setting fire to some paper, &c., in the hall leading to the stage at Tweddle Hall, while some Sunday-school anniversary exercises were in progress.

The Erie (Penn.) Dispatch states that Judge GREER was stricken with paralysis on Friday evening last, and received another stroke on Saturday morning. His life is considered in imminent danger.

A strange case of insanity was recently developed at Chicago. A young milliner was found closely wrapped in bed-clothes fervently praying for deliverance from the world, after having fasted for several days.

The Swedish colony in Aroostook County, Me., to obtain the members of which the State sent a special commissioner to Sweden, is pronounced a success, and everybody in it is supplied with work for the Winter at good wages.

The Green Bay (Wis.) Gazette says Senator HOWE of that State was tendered the appointment of Minister to England in a very flattering manner, immediately after the publication of Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN's letter declining that mission.

A suit was lately commenced in the Fourth District Court of San Francisco, against Prof. THOS. PARKER to recover $25,000 for the loss of an eye, occasioned by the explosion of a bottle containing oxygen, which the Professor had been using for experimental purposes.

A colored citizen of Middletown, in this State, who had assaulted another colored citizen, was tried by a colored jury—the first ever impaneled in that city—on Monday. The Court-room was crowded with white people who eagerly awaited the result of the trial.

The "Selectmen" of Rochester seem determined to preserve order at their places of public amusement. At the last meeting of the Council an ordinance was passed prohibiting whistling, screaming, swearing and stamping at the halls and theatres.

The capital stock of the Haymaker Base-ball Club, of Troy, consists of one hundred shares of $100 each, nearly all of which has already been taken. Strong additions are to be made to the nine, so that the club may hold its own against all similar organizations next season.

The source of the wonderful rain-shower on a single grave at Mobile, Ala., has been traced to a wild-cherry tree in an adjoining yard. The gentleman who unraveled the mystery says it is quite common at this season to see the sap falling in showers from the wild-cherry, crape-myrtle and swamp-poplar trees.

In view of the late disaster at Baltimore, Fire-Inspector HOLLOWAY urges upon the Common Council of that city some prompt action in regard to a reform of the building laws. The Inspector himself was four hours buried under a wall at the fire on Sunday morning, which resulted in the death of JOHN E. HAYES, one of the most useful members of the fire brigade.

Gov. PALMER, of Illinois, has issued the briefest Thanksgiving proclamation. This is all of it: "In accordance with the practice of my predecessors, I do hereby recommend to all the people of the State of Illinois to devote Thursday, the 24th day of November, 1870, to such acts as will manifest their gratitude to the Supreme Being for all the mercies of the year. 'But when thou makest a feast call the poor, the maimed, the blind, and thou shalt be blessed.'"

The Boston Transcript hints that, in spite of time-honored usage, the officers of a pet University in that neighborhood have just had their catalogue printed where it could be done cheapest, and that consequently the college will lose a bequest of $25,000, a member of the firm, which has usually done the printing, having altered his will to that effect. The Transcript anticipates that that catalogue, when it comes out, will be known as the most expensive document, of its size, ever printed in America.

During the fishing season of 1870, just brought to a close, eleven vessels were lost, of the aggregate value of $95,500. They were insured for $50,495. One vessel was lost in the Newfoundland, two on the Bank, four on the George's, two in the Bay St. Lawrence, and one in the shore mackereling fishery, and one was lost on a coasting voyage. Last year sixteen vessels were lost, of a tonnage of 983.81 tons, valued at $84,000, and insured for $61,121. The loss of life this season has been a melancholy item in the record, the whole number of fishermen lost being eighty-eight against fifty-six last year.

A Utah correspondent of the Chicago Tribune furnishes some interesting facts about the mines in that Territory. He says that the Emma Mine, at Little Cotton Wood, has been producing twenty tons of ore per day, the net value of which is $2,500; while ten tons of ore taken from the lode at East Cañon, produced, clear of all expense, $6,164 40, gold. At Meadow Valley, with very inadequate milling facilities, from five to ten tons of silver bullion per month are produced, at a net value of $20,000 per ton. Bingham Cañon has produced $600,000 worth of gold dust during the past three or four years.

Maine sends a bear story, which must be given verbatim. It runs thus: Mr. SAMUEL KINNALL, of Patten, finding an old pine log in the woods, cut into it to see if it were sound. He found that it was not sound, but he heard a sound inside, and had hardly time to get to the end of the log before he saw an old she bear just coming out. He gave her a blow on the head with his ax, and was about pulling her out when he was surprised to see two large cubs just back of their mother. He pulled the old one out, and was dispatching the cubs, when out jumped another old bear, which, before Mr. KINNALL could finish the cubs, made good his escape.

A correspondent of the Boston Advertiser gives an enthusiastic description of a "remarkable phase of the aurora borealis," which he observed early on Saturday evening. "From a very black cloud," says the writer, "rising about ten degrees in the northern horizon, issued an apparent column of fire, being in length about thirty-five degrees, quite perpendicular—of equal width throughout, of a brilliant color, like the train of a large rocket, which was quite steady, even while gradually fading away." The Advertiser adds, "It is a curious fact that at the time that this 'remarkable phase of the aurora borealis' was observed, a large fire was raging in Malden Centre."

The Galveston newspapers still continue to refer editorially to the loss of the Varuna. The New-York thinks that sufficient effort was not made to save the passengers, but exonerates the Captain and officers from blame in losing the ship. "We conscientiously believe," adds that journal, "that these crews have been more done, for Quartermaster WALLACE tells us he lashed the wheel, went off, got a drink, went on to the hurricane-deck, went back to the Captain's room, got another drink, and opened the weather cabin door to see how the passengers were behaving. They were all in their staterooms. Now it does seem to us that in all this time there was as much opportunity to make some effort to get the passengers out as there was to get a drink."

In the Circuit Court of Chicago the other day a case was tried which has a special interest for wives who claim a separate estate. It was an action of replevin. The plaintiff endeavored to assert her right to a quantity of merchandise that had been levied upon by virtue of an execution running against the goods and chattels of one SIMON KLEE. It was shown in evidence that Mrs. KLEE had received a considerable sum of money from the estate of a former husband, and that she had invested the same in a store, in which the second husband labored. The case turned upon the question of the intermingling of the exertions of both, and the Judge held that if her property was mingled with that of her husband, and that the latter had received no salary, it eventually became as much his as hers, and was, consequently, liable for the debts of both.

A WIFE POISONER.

Women's Influence for Evil—Confession of a Condemned Murderer in Canada.

The following confession was recently made by a condemned murderer named DEACON, who is now awaiting execution at Kingston, Canada, for the poisoning of his wife:

The confession I am about to make is made of my own free will and at my express desire. Mr. CORNERT has consented to take it down for me. I wish it made public so that my case may be a warning to all men to flee from temptation, whenever the evil one tries to ensnare them. If I had done so, I would now be a free man instead of a condemned criminal. Through the evil influence exerted over me by a false and wicked girl, I am now waiting to suffer death for my sins. Every word I am about to say will be the whole truth. I do not intend to screen myself, nor do I intend to screen others, but tell the truth so that others may see. I will have to tell my God when I stand before His great high throne. There will be no hiding anything from Him, for all men's secrets will be revealed and his heart laid bare. I first became acquainted with CAROLINE VANCOUGHNET a year ago last February at my father-in-law's. My wife was ill at her father's, awaiting the coming of her baby. My wife's sister proposed for me to hire her sister, CAROLINE VANDOUGHNET, to nurse my wife in her confinement. I hired her accordingly. At this time I was staying with my wife at the Lake House, Port Hope, very sociable, and CAROLINE insisted on nursing and attending me as well as my wife. It soon became known to me that she was in love with me. Her actions told me this. She was all the time kissing and talking of love to me. I did not at this time feel any return of affection for her. This was the beginning of a long as two months. My wife was quite well by this time, and we discharged her. We hired her again the next Spring, as my wife was not able to attend to all the work outside and in doors. She requested me to hire CAROLINE VANCOUGHNET. I hired her, and took her to work with me in the sugar-bush. This was in April. We were alone in the woods, and commenced the same kind of actions as she carried on with me the year before at her sister's. She kept getting worse every day until I was completely led away from my wife. I was now on an intimate terms with her as if she had been my wife. She told me that if I would poison my wife she would marry me in three weeks. She kept urging me to do this every day and said if I did not she would. All that the witnesses said against me at the trial, concerning our behavior, was true. I could not even go out of the house for a few minutes without her following me and behaving improperly. My wife would tell me that when I was absent from home she could not get any good out of CAROLINE, for she was always talking about me and watching for my return. My wife told me CAROLINE had wished her dead. Had I not had a hand, forbearing wife she would have put us both out of doors. Her conduct was not even so much as the mere of decent behavior right before her. My wife now told me that we had no further use for a girl, so we consulted together and discharged her. After this, whenever I had to go away from home to the store or any other place, she no doubt thought I was in my way. She proposed to me that I should go to work for Mr. SHAW, and she should go to work for Mr. HICKS, who lived next to Mr. SHAW's. This was done so that we could be near to one another. She had by this time completely bewitched me, so that I could not lose all the affection I ever had for my wife. I am sorry to say that I, a man of mature years, could be so easily led astray by a young girl from my lawful wife—one whom I had no reason to treat as I did. She was all that was good and kind to me, and if I had only cherished her as I ought to have done, I never would have been where I now am. CAROLINE used to come over to SHAW's after her work was done to see me. She asked me if I was never going to get rid of my wife. This constant urging of her's nearly set me mad, and I determined to poison my wife on the very first opportunity. The first thing I did was to go to a druggist's store and purchase from Mr. SHAW, pretending to him that I wanted it to poison foxes. I administered the poison several times to my wife, in water and tea, but I did not give her large enough quantities to cause death until I gave it to her in the salts. As soon as my wife was dead I came to my senses, and would have brought her back again to life if I would have given the whole world if it had been in my possession. My love for my wife came back to me with double force, and the illegitimate love vanished. Then it was that I saw my folly. If that girl had never mentioned poisoning to me I never would have been hanged. I make every preparation for meeting God, and hope that my earnest desire for salvation will be acceptable to Him. I hold no malice against my fellow-man, and am satisfied that the jury did their duty in finding me guilty. I die in peace with all them, and hope God in his mercy will forgive my sins.

(Signed.) JAMES DEACON.

Crime in Kentucky—Robbery and Attempted Murder on the Highway.

From the Courier-Journal, Nov. 18.

Another terrible affair, happening in Jefferson County, in the vicinity of Middletown, occurred near O'Bannon's Station last night. The killing of the peddler last winter, and the more recent murder and robbery of I. T. AVERY in that same section, is still fresh in the minds of our readers; and now comes this third entry in the catalogue of crime. From a gentleman who visited the place yesterday morning we learn the following particulars of this last affair. A Mr. ROSS, formerly a Captain in the Confederate Army, and now agent for the nursery near Hobb's Station, in this county, got off at the station at O'Bannon's from the 6½ P. M. train Wednesday night. While in the depot a letter was handed him, which he stopped to read by the station-house lamp. A negro came in during the time Mr. ROSS was charged in reading the letter, and picking up his (Mr. ROSS') carpet-bag, read the name thereon, and then laying it down, went out of the room. Mr. ROSS thought nothing particularly of this at the time, but after reading the letter he took up his satchel and started for home. When some distance from the depot, and just as he was entering the woods near the track of the Short-line, he heard some one coming up rapidly behind, she ordered him to halt. As he was turning to see the person making such a peremptory demand, he was struck on the head with a fence-rail, stunning him for the instant. Two men, and just as he thought, a white man, then appeared from the surrounding darkness, the one with the fence-rail, with which the first blow had been struck, and the other with a large knife and pistol, and commenced a furious assault upon Mr. ROSS. The negro struck him again with the fence-rail, knocking him down, but he was enabled to get on his feet again, when the white man attacked him with the knife, cutting his overcoat and wounding him in several places about the shoulders and body. He fell again when the white assailant put the pistol to his head, but, for some reason, did not shoot. The negro then beat him again about the head with the rail until he lost all consciousness. When he recovered possession of his senses—he supposes about an hour from the time of the attack—he found that the robbers had been rifling his pockets, and all the money he had with him, about $70, had been taken. The would-be murderers had dragged him to the railroad track and laid him across the rails, with the intention, no doubt, of leaving him there for the passage of the 9 o'clock P. M. train for this city to complete their bloody purpose. But fortunately consciousness returned to him some little time before the arrival of the train, and, though benumbed and wounded so that he could not rise, he was able to drag himself from his terribly dangerous situation to the side of the road. Pursuit was instituted immediately on information being given in this city of the attempted murder, and, in all probability, the parties will be captured.

The Vanderpool Murder Trial—Estimated Cost to the State of Michigan, $25,000.

From the Detroit Tribune, Nov. 21.

The famous Vanderpool trial—the cause célèbre of Michigan—has reached just such a determination as has been anticipated, that is, the jury has disagreed, there being only a majority of two in favor of his conviction. As our readers are aware, this is the second trial, the first, which took place in Kalamazoo, last February, having resulted in his conviction. The trial at Kalamazoo has taken place there in consequence of a change of venue. The case was called Oct. 12, but adjourned until the 19th, when the examination of witnesses began. From first to last the witnesses have been examined, and the case has been contested at every point, with marked skill and most tenacious vigor, by distinguished counsel on both sides. The policy of the defense seems to have been to utterly confuse the case by such a mass of testimony, involving details innumerable, and so many contradictions, that the agreement of any twelve men in regard to it would be impossible. If this was the design, it has succeeded completely. The prevailing opinion in this community, where the evidence and pleas of counsel have been widely read and where much interest has been felt in the case, has been that VANDERPOOL is guilty. The two trials of this case—the last one extending over just a month—must have cost about $25,000. There has never been a case tried in the State, excepting, perhaps, the famous railroad conspiracy trials, that excited so much interest. There was just enough of contradiction and doubt in the development of the trial to incite speculation and keep alive conjecture, while there were also some melodramatic features in the personnel of the trial that combined to fix attention upon it. We apprehend that this will be the last trial of the case, and that eventually VANDERPOOL, who has exhibited amazing nerve throughout his most trying ordeal, will be released. If innocent, his hardship and persecution have scarcely a parallel.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

The only business transacted at the Exchange yesterday (Nov. 23,) was the adjournment of several legal sales, as follows: By E. H. LUDLOW & Co., house and lot on Forty-fourth-street, near Broadway; JOHN P. CROSBY, Esq., referee; adjourned to Dec. 1. By ROBERTS & MCGUIRE, leasehold property, (Sailors' Snug Harbor,) on the north side of Eighth-street, 159 feet east of Broadway; lot 35.6 by 98.11; GRATZ NATHAN, Esq., referee; adjourned to Nov. 30. By the same firm, a legal sale under the direction of the same referee, of a house and lot (Columbia College lease) on the south side of Fifty-first-street, 405 feet 6 inches west of Fifth-avenue. Lot 25.6 by 100.11. Adjourned indefinitely. But few persons were in attendance at the rooms. Today being Thanksgiving, the Exchange will be closed, and there is but little prospects for any activity in the market during the remainder of the week, no notable sales being advertised. Business next week, however, bids fair to be more brisk, as several sales are bulletined, and in addition, for Wednesday, MULLER, WILKINS & CO. advertise a large sale of improved and unimproved City property. The transaction is a legal one, in partition, and the property will be sold. On the same day BLACKWELL & MARIS will dispose of a desirable farm near New-York, upon which a valuable iron mine is located. Other sales projected will be noticed in due season.

Attention is called to the country property offered by WM. SINCLAIR, Jr., & Co., No. 3 Pine-street; situated in Hudson Park, between Spuyten Duyvil and Riverdale. To a person in search of a country residence, an eligible opportunity for an investment is here presented.

(Unless previously disposed of by private sale or mortgage.)

ON THURSDAY, Dec. 8,

At 12 o'clock, at Exchange Salesroom, No. 111 Broadway,

(No postponement on account of bad weather.)

POSITIVE SALE OF THE ENTIRE BLOCK BOUNDED BY 8TH-AV. (CENTRAL PARK), MADISON-AV., 7TH AND 7TH-ST., comprising thirty-four building lots, and facing the grand main entrance to Central Park.

This block has long been considered by many competent judges as THE CHOICEST on the line of the Park. It is the only WHOLE BLOCK that can be purchased, it is situated in IMMEDIATE proximity to 8th-av., 10th and 7th-sts., are sewered, and the streets on the four sides of the block are PAVED with Nicolson or Belgian pavement. The Madison-av. side is macadamized, and the 8th-av. side is macadamized.

The location is HIGH, DRY and HEALTHY, overlooking the MAGNIFICENT portions of the CENTRAL PARK, and "beside all this it is admitted to be the finest of all the blocks in the City of Boston, consisting of the Whole Dock Corporation property, about 265 feet front on the Harbor River, and 350 feet deep, together with large and valuable docks, wharves, warehouses, stores, machine shops, boilers, shafting and machinery throughout, and a dwelling-house, carriage-house, stables, &c. Offers will be entertained for the whole or any number of the lots separately.

Also the two-story and verandah house, with the large and valuable lot on which it stands, known as No. 5 Fifth-st., Boston, in said city, and heretofore occupied by said Paulding.

PROPOSALS.

PROPOSALS FOR LIVE-OAK.

NAVY DEPARTMENT,
BUREAU OF CONSTRUCTION AND REPAIR,
WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 4, 1870.

Sealed proposals for the delivery of live-oak logs of live-oak timber, of the best quality, in each of the Navy-yards at Charlestown, Mass., and Brooklyn, N. Y., will be received at this Bureau until the sixth (6th) day of December next, as additional to those previously issued to indorsed "Proposals for Live-oak," that they may be distinguished from other offers.

The offers may be for one or both yards, but must be for the whole quantity in each yard bid, as required by law. Bids must be accompanied by a guarantee, signed by two of the full estimated amount will be required to sign the contract, and, as additional and collateral security, twenty-five (25) per centum will be withheld on the amount of each delivery until the contract is satisfactorily completed.

In all the following-named timber there must be a due proportion of the most difficult and crooked pieces, and where there will be withheld such further amount, in addition to the 25 per centum, as may be judged necessary to the 25 per centum, as may be judged necessary to insure the grade being delivered. The remaining 75 per centum, or other proportion of each bill, when approved in triplicate by the Chief Yard, will be paid by such Purchasing Paymaster as the contractor may designate within thirty (30) days after its presentation to him.

It will be stipulated in the contract that if default be made in any of the requisite deliveries in delivering all or any of the timber, hereof, of the quality and at the time and place provided for, and in that case, the United States is given the option to take all or any of the timber of the quality specified, and to charge the contractor with and to collect from him, or from his sureties, any excess of expense incurred thereby over the price specified in the contract for the same with good and sufficient sureties; and in case said _____ shall fail to enter into contract as aforesaid, we guarantee to make good the difference between the bid of the said _____ and that which may be accepted.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
ATLANTA, GA., Oct. 26, 1870.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

By an act of the General Assembly of the State of Georgia, approved Oct. 26, 1870, authority is given to the Governor to lease the Western and Atlantic Railroad, the property of the State, together with all of the houses, workshops, depots, rolling stock and appurtenances of every character, for the term of twenty years, and upon the terms and conditions subject to certain restrictions therein named, to wit:

The monthly rental shall not be less than twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000) payable monthly. The lessee shall give a bond for the sum of eight millions of dollars ($8,000,000) to secure the prompt payment of the amount of rental agreed upon, and for the return of the road and its appurtenances at the expiration of the lease, or on the forfeiture of the lease, if forfeited, in as good condition as at the time of leasing, five millions ($5,000,000) of which security shall be within this State, and the balance, if not of the State, shall be such as shall satisfy the Governor of the State, as to the security and value of the same.

The lessee shall not be less than seven in number, a majority of whom shall be citizens of the present bona fide residents of this State, and shall represent a majority of the whole interest in the lease. No railroad or express company, or any combination of them, shall be lessees, directly or indirectly, or if they be, they become sureties on the bonds of the lessees. The lessees shall not charge a higher rate for local freights over said road than the average rate charged by the Georgia Railroad and Banking Company, the Central Railroad and Banking Company, and the Macon and Western Railroad Company, for like local freights over said roads, and the said lessees shall have the same rights, privileges and immunities, and be subject to the same liabilities, disabilities, and public burdens of said railroad companies last mentioned. The lessee of the State is pledged to receive all coupons, gage bonds and coupons now resting on the State Road as they fall due, and to save the lessees harmless against all such bonds and coupons.

The lessees shall be and shall be constituted a body corporate and politic for the term of twenty years, under the name and style of the Western and Atlantic Railroad Company, having such powers, liabilities and immunities as are granted by the charter of said company, and not in conflict with the Constitution and Laws of the United States, or of the State of Georgia; but they will not be allowed to make or permit any discrimination in favor of or against any person or persons, having business connections with the said Western and Atlantic Railroad.

The object and purpose of carrying out this act, proposals will be received until and including the 1st day of December next, and must be addressed "to the Governor of the State of Georgia, as Atlanta," and marked on the envelope "Proposals for the lease of the Western and Atlantic Railroad; in accordance with an Act approved October 24, 1870." The proposals must state in full the names and residence of the parties uniting in making the proposition, and if a Company, the name and location of the Company, and the names of the parties therein named are worth over and above their debts and liabilities, together with a full description of the character of the security which will be offered to complete the bond.

The property to be leased is a single-track railroad, 138 miles in length, with rail and complete equipment of shops, depots, turn-outs, sidelines, engines, cars, &c., and is one of the most successful operated in the cities of Atlanta, in Georgia, and Chattanooga, in Tennessee. At Chattanooga the line is in direct rail connection with the Memphis and Charleston, Nashville and Chattanooga, Chattanooga and New-Orleans, East Tennessee and Georgia, and the Chattanooga and Cincinnati, (now in progress of construction,) rendering it the shortest line from the Ohio and Mississippi, Atlanta and Charleston, Atlanta and Savannah, and the Atlanta and Gulf lines of road, being the only railroad connection between the system of railways east of the Mississippi and the Gulf.

Copies of "An act to authorize the lease of the Western and Atlantic Railroad, and for other purposes thereto mentioned," approved Oct. 24, 1870, can be had upon application at the Executive office.

RUFUS B. BULLOCK.

THANKSGIVING.

Proclamation by the President.

Whereas, It is believed a people sensible of dependence on the Almighty, publicly and collectively, to acknowledge their gratitude for His favors and mercies, and humbly to beseech for their countenance; and,

Whereas, The people of the United States, during the year now about to end, have special cause to be thankful for general prosperity, abundant harvests and exemption from pestilence, foreign war and civil strife; now,

Therefore, Be it known that I, U. S. GRANT, President of the United States, concurring in many similar recommendations from Chief Magistrates of States, do hereby, recommend to all citizens to meet in their respective places of worship on Thursday, the 24th day of November next, there to give thanks for the bounty of God during the year about to close, and to supplicate for its continuance hereafter.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand, and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done in the City of Washington, this twenty-first day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy, and of the independence of the United States the ninety-fifth.

[SEAL.] U. S. GRANT.

By the President:
HAMILTON FISH, Secretary of State.

Proclamation by the Governor of New-York.

Thursday, the 24th day of November, is hereby designated as Thanksgiving Day for 1870, in the State of New-York. Let the people everywhere on that day, in their homes as well as in their places of worship, thank God for His many mercies during the past year, and pray to Him for continued blessings on the State and country. Let it be a day of peace and good will among men, the spirit of true charity pervading it. Let thanksgiving and prayers be accompanied by righteousness, all of us, while thinking of God's mercies, that, in His wisdom, there are always with us those who are in poverty and distress, and that it is our duty, as it should be our desire, to assist and relieve them.

Done at the capitol, in the City of Albany, this [L. S.] 8th day of October, Anno Domini 1870.

JOHN T. HOFFMAN.

By the Governor:
JOHN D. VAN BUREN, Private Secretary.

Observances in This City.

It no time in our history have we had greater cause to give thanks to the "Giver of all good," than today. While devastating wars are raging in Europe, our country is at peace with all mankind. The good old New-England Thanksgiving Day has become an institution here, as elsewhere throughout the country, and today there will be a total suspension of business in this City.

That we are not niggardly in providing for the poor, the enumeration of those who will be fed by the authorities, and the many charitable institutions, testify in figures that tell the story better than mere words. If Philadelphia has earned the soubriquet of the "City of Brotherly Love," Brooklyn that of the "City of Churches," Boston that of the "Hub of the Universe," New-York, by munificent systems of providing for the poor, especially noticeable in holidays like Thanksgiving, deserves the title of the "City of Charities."

During the past year our crops have been bountiful, no epidemics have visited us, and the public health has been greatly decreased. Would that our brethren across the water could unite with us on this happy day in our peans of praise for what we have enjoyed and are now enjoying.

To those of our German and French citizens, who, today, feel the blight of war in the loss of relatives and friends among the contending armies, we offer our sincere sympathy, and trust the teachers of religion will not forget, when giving thanks for what we enjoy, to offer a prayer for the speedy restoration of peace in Europe.

The number of persons to be fed, today, at the various public and private institutions, is as follows:

Randall's Island	1,600
School-ship Mercury	200
Ward's Island Industrial School	200
Blackwell's Island	4,000
Ward's Island	1,200
Bellevue Hospital	1,100
Children's Aid Society	800
Five Points M. E. Mission	1,000
Five Points House of Industry	1,200
St. Barnabas House	300
Howard Mission	1,000
Home of the Friendless	1,200
House of the Good Shepherd	900
Tuesville Asylum	400
Hebrew Orphan Asylum	800
Colored Home	500
Orphan Asylum on Washington Heights	500
City Prison	1,000
St. Joseph's Orphan Asylum	300
Other places	1,000
Total	19,500

CHURCH SERVICES.

The usual services will be held in nearly all the churches of the Protestant persuasion, and a grand high mass will be celebrated at all the Catholic churches by the direction of Archbishop McCLOSKEY.

Rev. E. MERRILL RICHARDSON will preach a Thanksgiving sermon this morning at the New-England Church, corner of Madison-avenue and Forty-seventh-street.

Bishop PAUL, of Alaska, will recite the liturgy in the Russian language at 10½ o'clock, in the Greek Church, No. 961 Second-avenue, but only members of the church and those especially invited will be permitted to attend.

FIVE POINTS HOUSE OF INDUSTRY.

At the Five Points House of Industry, the arrangements for a good time are on a large scale. A feature of this charity consists in inviting to their feast all who may present themselves. Last year they supplied 1,000 persons, in addition to their own protégés. Over 1,000 pounds of poultry had been received last night, and as the down-town hotels do not generally contribute until Thanksgiving morning, it is expected the supply will be more than doubled. One gentleman sent a contribution of 200 mince pies, and another 100. The services in the chapel will be held at 12 o'clock, and the dinner will be served at 4 P. M.

THE HOWARD MISSION.

The preparations at the Howard Mission, familiarly known as the "Old Bowery," at attack on Turkey, today, are extremely liberal. Nineteen hotels and restaurants have contributed, and Superintendent SHAFFER informed our reporter that the supplies furnished were larger this year than in any previous year. There will be exercises, consisting of singing and recitations, in the chapel, at 3 P. M., and the dinner, which will consist of all kinds of meat and poultry—the traditional turkey predominating, of course—will take place at 4 P. M. Last evening two wagons were engaged in bringing in supplies, and a card of our popular County Clerk, Mr. LOEW, was shown, with the brief invitation, "Call on Me," written thereon. There are now over 600 children cared for by this Mission.

AT THE RACE TRACKS.

Those enthusiasts of the turf who love good racing better than a Thanksgiving dinner, have an attractive programme of sport to choose from today. There will be trotting at Fleetwood Park, Union Course, and the Prospect Park Fair Grounds, and at each track the sport will be capital if the weather is favorable.

At Fleetwood Park a purse of $1,000, mile heats, best three in five, in harness, will be trotted for at 2 o'clock. The contesting horses will be DAN MACE's g. h. Tammany, JOHN MURPHY's b. g. David Tanner, and JOHN LOVETT's ch. m. New-Berlin Girl.

Two races are on the programme at Prospect Park. The first will be a race of mile heats, best two in three, to wagons, for a purse and stake of $300, between S. MUNRY's bay horse Bonaparte, and ANDREW ROGERS' sorrel gelding John. The second race, with the same conditions, is to be between E. FLETCHER's gray mare Jessie, and WM. JARVIS' sorrel gelding Torn Breeze.

At Union Course the sport is to begin at 11 A. M., and preparations have been made for a real Sam Lord's Castle day—running, trotting and a mule-race being included in the entertainment. The first race is a sweepstakes of $400, for trotters, four horses being entered. The second event is a race of half-mile heats, for running horses, and the sport will close with two good trots, in which ten horses are entered, and the mule-race.

THANKSGIVING ITEMS.

The Custom-house will be closed today, as also will be the Sub-Treasury and Assay Office. The Produce Exchange, which was advertised for today, will be made on Friday. The Stock Exchange adjourned, yesterday, without making a second call of stocks, and the business in the Long Room was closed at 3 o'clock. The Gold Exchange closed at 2 o'clock. The Post-office will be open today only for the reception and delivery of mails, as is customary on Sundays.

The Mayor's Office and the City Departments will be closed today. The Mayor's Office will also be closed on Friday, being Evacuation Day.

The members of Neptune Lodge, No. 217, F. and A. M., of this City, following a long established custom of theirs, gave each of the widows who are dependent upon them a fine turkey, yesterday, for Thanksgiving dinners. Other lodges might copy the good example thus shown them.

The boys belonging to the four sections of Class A, of the Thirteenth-street Grammar School, (Mr. FORBES, Principal,) yesterday subscribed the sum of $10 to aid a poor blind woman who has a dying son at home. Besides doing this, they provided the means for a good Thanksgiving dinner for the mother.

It has been the custom in Greenpoint for many years, on every recurring Thanksgiving Day, for the different denominations to hold union religious services in one of their churches, and have either a sermon or a series of brief addresses by the pastors. This year two Baptist churches, the Methodist, Presbyterian and Reformed Dutch, will unite in the Noble-street Baptist Church edifice, Dr. J. W. T. BOOTH, pastor, where a sermon will be delivered by Rev. A. McELVIE, of the Reformed Dutch Church. The services will commence at 11 A. M.

The Farmaglenia, or Rich Men's Sons of Greenpoint, will parade through the streets of that suburb today, no doubt to the great amusement of the children.

Rev. Dr. VIDAVER will preach in the Thirty-fourth-street Synagogue this morning at 10 o'clock.

A union service for the Methodist congregations worshiping in Thirteenth, Thirty-fourth, Forty-first and Forty-third-street Churches will be held in Trinity M. E. Church, Twenty-fourth-street, near Eighth-avenue, at 11 A. M. Instead of a sermon addresses will be delivered by the pastors.

Observances in Brooklyn.

The preparations for the celebration of this day in Brooklyn have been, if anything, more extensive this year than last. All the public offices are, of course, to be closed, and almost all the churches are to be open. All the important charitable institutions of the city, of any note, have determined to give good dinners to their beneficiaries. The managers of the Plymouth Bethel have for some time back exerted themselves among the charitable on behalf of the little ones under their charge, and today, at 1 o'clock, they will have the pleasure of seeing them sit down to tables well laden with turkey and other good things. At the Alms-house, the ladies of the city belonging to the various Episcopal Churches, have made arrangements for providing the poor under their charge with a dinner.

The Industrial Home for Destitute Children, situated on Third-street, near Fourth-street, Eastern District, will be converted, at noon, into a general eating-saloon. The little ones have looked forward to this occasion with bright expectations, and will undoubtedly do ample justice to the good things set before them. The public generally are invited to be present and witness the proceedings.

Incommon with the remainder of their fellow-beings, the inmates of the county institutions will be well attended to by the City authorities. Among the amusements announced for the evening in the Eastern District is that to take place in the Church of Rev. J. HYATT SMITH, in Lee-avenue, at which the pastor will delight the audience by readings from DICKENS. Mr. SMITH is considered one of the finest readers in the city. The "Messiah Oratorio" will be given by a splendid band of singers and general performers in the "Tabernacle" in Schermerhorn-street, of Rev. T. DE WITT TALMAGE's congregation. Mr. GEORGE MORGAN will preside at the organ, and Miss MARY BRAIDARD will take the position of leading soprano. All the popular places of amusement will be open, and the customary inducements offered. Special services are announced for St. Peter's (Roman Catholic) Church, corner of Hicks and Warren streets, where Rev. Dr. FRANCIOLA will celebrate high mass, at 9 o'clock in the morning. Bishop LOUGHLIN will also hold special services at the same hour in the cathedral, in Jay-street, and Rev. Dr. FERNI, in the church in Sidney-place, Brooklyn.

Observances in New-Jersey.

At Newark there will be religious services in nine of the city churches today, representing all the various religious denominations. A number of lectures will be given. The Newark Mendelssohn Union give a grand concert in the evening. "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and "The Serious Family" are among the amusements in the theatrical way. Two balls will take place, and a number of fairs, base-ball matches and exhibitions will be held. The Newark Quoit Club plays a match with the Olympians.

In Jersey City, three fairs are advertised, and services will be held in most of the churches.

At Paterson a grand Lacrosse tournament will take place. The exhibition commences at an early hour in the morning, and continues all day. The contest will be for the championship of the United States. The Knickerbocker and other New-York clubs, and the Brooklyn Club, will take part.

The Day Before Thanksgiving—Excuses From the City—The Markets.

The scenes and incidents in the vicinity of the several railroad and steamer depots in the City yesterday were of the most animating description. More especially this was the case at the New-Haven Depot, where throngs of Down-easter celebrants of their forefathers' venerated custom gathered in homeward-bound groups. All the trains were filled, especially toward evening, when the capacity of the cars was fully tested. Every available seat was occupied, and many were obliged to stand, at least as far as the Mount Vernon station. The Boston express trains were very heavily loaded.

The Harlem and Hudson River Roads were also besieged by an unusual detachment of country home-seekers or visitors. Some of the trains had to double the number of their engines. The Erie Road was overwhelmed with thousands of the homeward-bound. The Chambers-street Depot was densely packed with applicants for tickets, who choked the narrow passageway and thronged the boats—sometimes to an alarming degree. The jams of vehicles and the concatenation of curses and profane drivers' volleys were indescribable. Even the through trains were unexpectedly filled with "long-route" travelers.

The New-Jersey roads were none the less animated. Extra cars were resorted to, but even then there was considerable delay, and rushing and pushing for dear life, even to standing room.

The Long Island roads presented similar scenes. All their accommodations were pressed into service to be adequate to the extraordinary demand.

The North River, Albany, Troy, Rondout, Poughkeepsie and Newburg steamers were filled to their greatest capacity.

The Sound and coast steamers, which are usually full, were crowded with an extra number of passengers. All the ferries, and every avenue of egress from the City were packed with pilgrims homeward bound. The managers of the Fall River Line report a much larger passenger list than has ever before been had on a similar occasion.

DULL TIMES IN WASHINGTON MARKET.

The lack of employment for the masses has made itself felt in the market purchases yesterday as never for many years before. Dealers in Washington Market looked blue and more downcast than usual last night, as they remarked on the dullness of trade. With most of them their business did not equal an ordinary Saturday. One dealer called himself "Bad-luck Jimmy," because he was "stuck" on a large lot of fowl, which he had purchased in anticipation of a fair sale. The estimate of dealers of the aggregate sales of poultry yesterday was about 4,000. In other years it has reached 10,000, and 15,000. The poulterers were offering their stock last night as low as ten cents a pound, and the very prime turkeys weighing seventeen pounds were offered for twenty-five cents, which was the same asked for average gobblers in former years. The stock yesterday and last night did not appear, however, to equal other years in quality. Chickens were selling at twelve cents a pound, geese eighteen cents a pound, apples ten cents a "small measure," cranberries eighteen cents a quart. Beef and mutton were lower than usual, and most of the working people who could spare much money expended it chiefly on such meats.

Fatal Accident to a Broadway—A Man Killed by a Fire-Engine Tender.

At 6:55 o'clock, last evening, an alarm of fire was sounded for flames discovered on the third floor of No. 62 Fulton-street, in a room occupied by J. C. CAUSE, card and job printer, but they were almost immediately extinguished, and before any damage was done.

The tender of Engine Company No. 6, which is housed in Cedar-street, proceeding to the fire at the usual rapid rate on such occasions, reached the corner of John-street and Broadway, when a gentleman who attempted to cross the street ahead of it was knocked down by the horse, and before the vehicle could be stopped or its speed even checked, the heavy wheel passed over his body, across the abdomen and right thigh, and when picked up by the Police, as he was instantly, he was already dead. No one of the hundreds of persons who gathered about the scene of the catastrophe could recognize the body as that of any one whom they had ever known, and it was therefore at once removed to the Second Precinct Station-house, in Beekman-street. It was that of a man about fifty years of age, with dark hair and complexion, and the body was attired in a black beaver cassock, an under coat of fine material, dark brown vest, velvet vest, and boots. On the person was found a check for $120 on the Park National Bank, payable to the order of E. R. MILLARD, and indorsed by ELIZABETH R. MILLARD. In the pockets were also several bills and receipts, but none by which his name could be ascertained. A package of Fulton-ferry tickets, national bank bills to the amount of $63, some silver coin, $1 in currency, an open-faced silver watch, two pairs of eyeglasses, one set in gold and the other in horn, and several other small articles. From the check it was assumed that the name of the deceased was MILLARD, but no positive proof could be obtained, and the body was sent to the Morgue. Coroner FLYNN being notified took charge of the case, and his deputy, Dr. MCEWEN, took charge of the property found on the person. The remains will be left exposed at the Morgue for identification.

Extensive Fire in Harlem.

At 9:30 o'clock last evening a fire broke out in the building in One Hundred and Nineteenth-street, between Third and Fourth avenues, owned by JEREMIAH M. RIDLEY, of No. 26 Beekman-street, and occupied by the New-York Lamina Steel Pipe Company. The building, which was frame, and valued at $1,000, was totally destroyed, as was also stock to the value of $1,800. The latter was insured for $4,500, but the last as to the insurance of the building was not ascertained. The flames were first discovered at the rear of the building, and are supposed to have been of incendiary origin. The case will be fully investigated by Fire Marshal MCSPEDON.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

NEW-YORK.

At the Essex Market Police Court, yesterday, before Judge SHANDLEY, the case of JOHN PRICE, charged with stealing from Room No. 245, in the St. Nicholas Hotel, on the 7th inst., fifty $1,000 bonds of the Chicago and Iowa Railroad Company, the property of JOHN T. JOY, was investigated. The particulars of the case were recently reported in the TIMES. The prisoner was committed for trial at the Court of General Sessions.

In the Yorkville Police Court yesterday, PATRICK FEELON, No. 226 Second-avenue, charged JAMES ROGERS with stealing a ball-dog of the value of $100, belonging to him. The complainant stated the dog had been reared by MICKEY FAY, Ex-Alderman, and made a present of to him. About a year ago the dog, together with a pair of pantaloons and a pair of boots, were stolen. The accused contended that he had reared the dog himself, and that the animal had never been a day out of his possession since it was a pup. Justice COULTER set down the case for examination on Friday.

ISABELLA BRIGGS, a native of England, twenty-three years of age, living on the second floor of No. 115 Roosevelt-street, was shot yesterday morning by JAMES FRIEL, in his liquor store on the first floor of the same house, the ball striking on the right side of the head near the temple at the side of the head, making a wound which is pronounced to be severe but not necessarily fatal. She was taken to the Park Hospital by the Police, who arrested FRIEL and locked him up in the Fourth Precinct Station-house. Yesterday morning he was arraigned before Justice DOWLING of the Tombs Police Court, and committed to await the result of the injuries.

ALBERT GARNIER, the billiard player, assisted by CYRILLE DION, gave his second exhibition last night at O'CONNOR's rooms. In addition to GARNIER's fancy shots, there was a game of 1,000 points between him and CYRILLE, which the latter won by 41, averaging 42. The chief "run" by the winner was 278; that of the loser, 215. The attendance was large, and the entertainment a greater success, in an artistic sense, than that given at the same establishment on the occasion of M. GARNIER's first appearance before an American audience.

WILLIAM DOHERTY, a plumber, was yesterday charged, in the Yorkville Police Court, upon the complaint of LOUIS J. ALLOO, No. 419 West Fifteenth-street, with stealing $[illegible] worth of jewelry. DOHERTY was employed during some work at Mr. ALLOO's dwelling last June, and on the same day the jewelry was stolen. This is the seventh time that Mr. ALLOO's store has been robbed within the last few years. DOHERTY was held in $300 bail for examination.

At the Court of General Sessions, before Judge BEDFORD, yesterday, JOHN JOHNSON, colored, was convicted of robbing ANDREW RODNEY of $10, as the latter was about leaving his home, No. 5 Grand-street, at 1 o'clock last night. The prisoner denied the accusation, and said the only time he had ever been arrested was for knocking a colored man down. He was sent to State Prison for ten years.

Dr. JOHN BEACH made a post-mortem examination, yesterday, of the body of Mrs. MARY DAVIDSON, who is supposed to have been murdered by her husband CHARLES, at No. 220 Cherry-street, but the examination ascertained that death resulted from Bright's disease of the kidneys. The marks of violence are not deemed of importance. A formal inquest will be held to-morrow by Coroner ROLLINS.

The second annual invitation hop of Company A, Eighth Regiment, came off last evening at the Armory, in Grand-street. There was a very large attendance, including representatives from the Fourth Battalion First New-Jersey Infantry, Ninth and Twenty-second Regiments, New-York, and Washington Continentals. NEW-JERSEY.

The second trial of BARNEY MULLIN for the robbery of HERMANN ETTINGER on the 4th of July, was commenced yesterday in the Hudson County Court. On a former trial the jury disagreed. ETTINGER, Coroner GRAHE and other witnesses were called, but the testimony did not vary materially, from that given at the former trial, and no new points were given in evidence. On the previous trial the jury stood ten for conviction and two for acquittal. The trial will be continued to-morrow.

A New-York insurance company yesterday exhumed the remains of a German named FREDERICK HOFFMAN, in order to have them reconsigned. HOFFMAN was found dead in a bed on Canal-street, Newark, a few days since, and was afterward recognized by a woman from New-York as her husband. The woman returned to New-York and demanded $15,000, the amount of insurance upon his life. As the woman had once before represented her husband as dead, and attempted to secure the money, they were unwilling to pay it. Yesterday, with the consent of the woman, the remains were exhumed and the body was reconsigned as the one of the woman's husband. This satisfying the officers of the Company, the money will now be paid.

The dead body of FRANK LAVIGNE was found about 10 o'clock on Wednesday night, underneath his wagon, which had been overturned between West Newark and Irvington. It is said that the man was intoxicated and unable to control his horse in the storm. A horse-car driver testified that he had passed LAVIGNE, who was so drunk at the time that he (the car driver) was obliged to leave the car and guide LAVIGNE's horse off the track in order that he might pass. The deceased man's watch was broken, and the hands pointed at 8:05 o'clock, which time it is supposed the accident occurred.

The City of Paterson has expended since March 1 $196,000. The county and State tax, $90,000, falls due on Dec. 1, and it is thought that this, with other obligations which the city will have to meet, will run its expenditures for the present fiscal year up to nearly half a million. The income of the city will not exceed $400,000, leaving a deficit of $100,000.

On Wednesday night the Mayor of Bayonne did an unheard of thing in vetoing two bills for liquor licenses, on the grounds that there were already too many in the city, and that the lock-up was constantly full, principally of drunken cases. The City Council, however, passed the licenses over the veto.

On Wednesday night the Washington express train collided with a freight train at East New-Brunswick. The locomotive of the express train was badly damaged, and several freight cars were thrown from the track. Both trains delayed several hours. No one was injured.
